A letter addressed to the Bank of Manning was picked up on the streets and opened, then thrown away. The finder of this letter, whoever it was, violated the law by opening it. The letter should have been returned to the postoffice or to the address unopened. How the letter came to be on the street, is mere conjecture; probably it fell from the hands of one of the bank's employees while going from the office with the mail. We are satisfied no one is tampering with the bank's box, but if they are they will be caught, and it will mean a long term in a federal prison.

Manning very reluctantly parted with Mr. E. E. Randall and family yesterday. Mr. Randall came here from the north to become superintendent of the Manning Hosiery mill and after being here a short while he was so well pleased with the people that he sent for his family. Mrs. Randall fell little by little on the hearts of their acquaintances, and we had hoped the Randalls had become fixtures, but for business reasons they decided to go to Slatinsburg, Pennsylvania, where Mr. Randall will have charge of the mill, also some of those who have been in conversation with him be expressed an affectionate feeling for the people of Manning, and that he hoped some day to return. We want our tobacco raising friends to bring their crop to this market and help to make it what the proprietors of the People's Warehouse promise a first class market. Clark will manage the floor, whether somebody else has a lien on it or not. A man can sell his crop where he pleases so long as he pays his debt. The County Commissioners have awarded the contract for building the new jail to the Fayette Building Co., of St. Louis, Mo. This company was the only bidder and the amount bid is $6,500, which is $500 more than authorized by the Act, but we understand the Board, before signing the contract, conferred with the delegation, who agreed to supplement the additional amount at the next session of the Legislature. The plans and specifications have been seen by us and as the jail appears on paper it will be a nice building. We heartily agree with the Board, if a jail is to be built it should be a good one, and the additional amount will insure a building that will not come under the censure of grand juries. The jail is to be completed by November, and we suppose work will be commenced soon.
