The funeral services were canducted by Rev. G. T. Gresham at Fellowship church, and were attended by a large number of relatives and friends.

The effort being made for the local cemetery is a laudable one and should receive the active encouragement of every person. An association should be formed which should purchase some of the adjoining property and extend the present limits of the grounds. The owners of adjoining property, we have no doubt, will sell the association at a more reasonable figure than they would to individuals, and now while there is yet a surviving trustee of the old association much complication can be avoid-
