The execution took place after the woman had twice been reprieved on account of appeals made by her coun sel and after the United States Supreme Court refused to take action in the case.

Only a comparatively few persons witnessed the hanging, the number being restricted to those permitted to attend by the laws of Vermont. Mrs. Rogers maintained her composure to the last and mounted the gallows with a steady step. Although a deathly pailor overspread her countenance, hardly a muscle quivered as Deputy Sheriff Shafford pronounced the fatal words, "I now proceed to execute the sentence of the law and may God have mercy on your soul." When the words were pronounced Deputy Sher: ff Angus McAuley sprung the trap and the drop fell.

The crime for which Mrs. Mary Rogers was sentenced to death was the murder of her husband, Marcus Rogers, at Bennington, on August 13. 1902. At the time the crime was com mitted Mrs. Rogers was only nineteen. She had been separated from her husband for some time and was desirous of marrying a young man named Maurice Knapp.
