LESSON VIII, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNA-TIONAL SERIES, FEB. 25.

Text of the Lesson, Mark ii, 1-12. Memory Verse, 5-Golden Text, Mark ii, 10 - Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1906, by American Press Association.] The two lessons following this one and the first lesson of the next quarter will all be in what is known as the sermon on the mount, and, according to the harmonics, the draft of fishes, which was our lesson two weeks ago; the healing of the leper and the lesson of today follow. in the order of events, that sermon.

thou canst," drew forth the compassion of Jesus, brought the touch of that healing hand, and with the words, "I will; be thou clean," there came perfect health to that poor leprous body, for Luke as a physician says he was full of it. Although the man was asked to tocracy and who suspected that the say nothing about his healing, he so blazed it abroad that Jesus could no more openly enter into the city, but withdrew Himself into the wilderness and prayed (Luke v, 16). Access to God is as open to us as it was to Him, for He is now there for us, but how little we seem to know of the power could not hold the people who came. Luke tells us there were Pharisees and of Galilee and Judaea and Jerusalem, and the power of the Lord was present to heal them (Luke v. 17). Our lesson says that He preached the word unto them. His teaching on the resurrection day as recorded in Luke xxiv, 27, 44, when He expounded in all the Scripture the things concerning Himand the Psalms; His teaching as set the Olivet discourse of Matt. xxiv, xxv Luke give us some idea of His teaching at other times, but we must ever remember that He always said only what the Father told Him to say (John xii, 49; xiv, 10). The highest attainment of teacher or preacher is to have Matt. x, 20, fulfilled in them, "It is not Father which speaketh in you," or

While these blind, self righteous Pharisees and doctors, who might be healed if they only knew their need of healing, are listening to His wonderful words a case of manifest and realized need is suddenly in their midst with a zeal and a determination sure to accomplish its end if it be at all possible of accomplishment. These four get of the Lord Jesus in anything but man's coming or the story of the poor woman who pressed through the crowd and tremblingly touched the hem of His garment forever set aside all thought of the manner of our coming. The one thing to do is to come. Jesus is not disturbed by the break-breaking up of the meeting, this unseemly intrusion; but, looking upon the sick man, he says, "Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee" (Matt. ix, 2). This He said when He saw their faith, for nothing pleases Him like confidence in Him, and "without faith it is impossible to please Him" (Hab. xi, 6). If we were always of good cheer, how many we might cheer as we journey on day by day! .But the foundation of all real "good comfort" is the forgiveness of sins, for apart from this there is no peace nor comfort. The gospel that does not proclaim the forgiveness of sins is not the gospel of God nor the gospel of the grace of God, but another gospel (Gal. i, 6-9). The health of the soul is of more importance than the health of the body, for if our sins are forgiven by the precious blood of Christ we shall in due time, by virtue of that same precious blood, have a redeemed, a glorified body which shall never know sickness or weakness any more (Phil. iii, 20, 21). Whether this man's sickness was the result of special sin on his part or not we do not know, but our Lord attended to his greatest need first.

As the blinded, self righteous scribes and Pharisees who were present heard Him, as they thought, pretend to forgive sins they said in their hearts. This man is a blasphemer, for only God can forgive sins." Had they been teachable they might have said, "This must be our Messiah, for He forgives sins." But they were rebels against God. This is indeed "mind reading extraordinary," but all things are naked and open to the eyes of Him with whom we have to do (Heb. iv, 13). See Ps. cxxxix, 2, 4; Ezek. xi, 5. How surprised they must have been to have their thoughts told out before all the people, but more surprised possibly when they saw the sick man arise healed and, taking up his bod, go forth well man! We do not wonder that they said, "We never saw it on this fashion" (verse 12) or, as in Luke v, 26. "We have seen strange things today." It is said that "they glorified God, who had given such power unto men" (Matt. ix, 8), but it does not say that they glorified this man as God because He proved Himself such by healing both body and soul. His "I say unto thee" might have reminded them of the "Thus saith the Lord" of the prophets if they had not been blind and palsied and leprous themselves, which they were, but knew it not ..

TAMMANY SOCIETY.

The Origin of the Organization In the Time of Jefferson. Tammany was the heir of the spirit of the Sons of Liberty of the Revolutionary war. It was kin in some of its purposes at least to those who were then beginning the revolution in France. It was enthusiastic in its support and approval of that revolution. Indeed a misty legend has been handed down from generation to generation in the hall that the suggestion came from Jefferson Limself, who, called from France to Washington's cabinet, was pained to see that aristocracy, English in its impulse and fostered by the Society of the Cincinnati, was rooting it-

BURIED LIVING PERSONS.

Horrible Custom of Japanese Prior to Year 646 A. D. Prior to the year 646 A. D. the Japanese had one of the most horrible burial customs that can be imagined-Jer. 1, 9, "Behold, I have put my words that of burying all the immediate in thy mouth," or II Sam. xxili, 2, "The friends and retainers of a prince or other person of note in a standing position around the potentate's grave and leaving them in the earth up to their necks to perish of thirst and hunger. The custom cannot be said to have been general as late as the date given for the Japanese records prove that in the time of the Emperor Suinin (97-30 B. C.) the burial rites of royal personages were so modified as to partially abolish former cruelties. Speaking of a young brother of Suinin, who died and had his retinue buried standing around his grave, the old record says: "For many days they died not, but wept and cried aloud. At last they died. Dogs and crows assembled and ate off their heads. The emperor's compassion was aroused, and he desired to change the manner of burial. When the empress died, soon after, the ing up of the roof nor by the apparent mikado inquired of his officers if something in the way of a change could not be suggested, and one proposed to make clay figures of men and bury them as substitutes." That this did not entirely do away with the former custom is proved by an edict issued in the year 646 A. D., the date given first above, which forbid the burial of living persons and provided a penalty for further adherence to the awful rite.-St. Louis Republic.

"Robbing Peter to Pay Paul." This saying had its origin in the rivalry between St. Peter's cathedral, now Westminster abbey, and St. Paul's, when, in 1550, an appropriation was made from St. Peter's to make good a deficiency in the accounts of St. Paul's. Much opposition was shown to this, and it was for the time a popular outery, "Why rob Peter to and makes horses travel with so much pay Paul?" The saying was revived ease. as a proverb upon the death of Wil-We Make Them Look New. liam Pitt, earl of Chatham, in 1778.
