A QUEER ISLAND.

No Bottom Found In Any of the Wells Bored In Curacao.

Curacao is one of the queerest little islands in the Caribbean sea. It lies sixty miles north of Venezuela, is about sixty miles long and twelve or fourteen miles wide, and it has a population of more than 50,000.
 There is no means of procuring fresh water on the island except by saving rainwater in reservoirs. A number of wells have been bored under the supervision of the Dutch government, to which it belongs, but each ended in a failure.
 A curious statement regarding these borings is made by the inhabitants of the island. They say that in each and every case after a certain depth was reached the tools dropped out of sight, indicating that there is no solid foundation to the island. The borings were made in low places and through hills and in about thirty alternate places, each with the same ultimate result. A few wells have been dug to a lesser depth and brackish, unpalatable tasting water is obtained, fit only for manufacturing purposes.
 The approach of the rainy season is always an interesting time. The water in the reservoir is low at this time, and the natives eagerly await the opportunity to gather a fresh supply. Clothing is never washed there in fresh water, but at all hours of the day the beach is alive with women beating the clothes with clubs on the rocks.—Buffalo News.

INOPPORTUNE DEATHS.

Men Who, Had They Lived, Might Have Changed History.

Julius Caesar was assassinated when he had almost completed the task of consolidating the administration and dominion of the Roman empire, and his death opened the way to that despotism and corruption which ultimately undid his work. Henry of Navarre was killed when he had almost healed the differences between Catholic and Protestant which subsequently rent not only France, but Europe, and William the Silent also fell when he was on the point of uniting the Netherland provinces into a compact barrier against the encroachments of Spain.
 In English history Lord Clive died at the moment when he was the one man who could have saved the American colonies and kept the Anglo-Saxon race united. But there is the one man in France who could have averted the horrors of the revolution, saved and reformed the monarchy, and so spared Europe the murderous career of Napoleon and all the devastation it brought. If he had lived ten or even five years longer, the history not only of France, but of Europe and the world, would have been different. It is, in fact, sufficient to say that he would have made both Robespierre and Napoleon impossible.—Strand Magazine.

A Great Leveler.

Have you ever thought what a great leveler the telephone is? You would never think of meeting some dignitary of church or state or some great society lady on the street and address either with a familiar "Hello!" It would be unpardonable rudeness, and yet that is what you do daily when you use the telephone, and nothing is thought of it. The judge on the bench, the governor in his office, the busy coupon clipper at his desk, the overworked clerk, the lady in her boudoir, the artisan at his lathe, are all slaves to that democratic "Hello!" it matters not who may be on the other end of the wire.—Stanberry Owl.

The Old Commercial Instinct.

"What do you think of this table, William?" asked Mrs. Newrich, pointing proudly to the antique piece she had purchased.
 "What did you pay for it?" granted her Bill of "without any money" days.
 "One hundred dollars, dear."
 "I think you ought to have been able to buy a new one for that," returned her unantiquarian informed spouse, casting a reflective and scrutinizing glance over the ancient piece of furniture.—New York Herald.

A Wrong Steer.

A mathematical professor had been invited by a city friend to visit him at his residence in a certain square and had promised to do so. Meeting him some time afterward, the friend inquired of the professor why he did not come to see him.
 "I did come," said the mathematician, "but there was some mistake. You told me that you lived in a square, and I found myself in a parallelogram, so I went away again."

The Point of View.

"You can't get in here on a half ticket," exclaimed the doorkeeper at the circus.
 "I thought I could," apologized the small town citizen. "I have a bad eye, and I only expected to see half of the show."
 "Then you'll have to get two tickets," said the doorkeeper. "If you only have one good eye it'll take you twice as long to see the show."—Harper's Weekly.

The Supreme Test.

"That seemed such a queer marriage of Robinson's. How did he come to select his bride?"
 "He found they had kept the same cook in the family for twelve years."—Baltimore American.

A Broad Hint.

Fred—Last night as you stood in the moonlight I couldn't help but think how much I would like to kiss you.
 Freda—Well, the poet says, "The thought of yesterday is the action of today."—Plek-Me-Up.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritation, soothe the throat, and soothe the lungs with a superior cough remedy. Do not blindly suppress it with a suppressing poison. It is strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label. If poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for buyers, druggists, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on the label. It is said to be by those who have a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chances then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

DEERING MOWERS AND RAKES.

FARMERS: The heavy rains of August have insured fine hay crop, this as you well know is becoming each year more valuable and in consequence the necessity of saving it greater, in order to do this economically you must use machinery, now when you buy machinery, "do not fail to buy the best." There are several Mowing Machines that are recognized as standard, we have selected from these and are selling the "Deering Ideal Mower." Our reasons for handling this Mower are many, among which are: Because it is the strongest made and owing to it being evenly balanced is as light in draft as many machines of less weight. These are the most important, but we are prepared to show our machines point for point against anything made. "We are sorry to say that they are made by the trust, we will sell the first machine that we can find that is not made by the trust, when we are convinced that it is as good as our Ideal Deering Mower."

We keep a full stock of repairs at all times. The Deering Rake sold with Ideal Mowers has the advantage of simplicity of operation, any boy can work one after a short trial who can drive a horse. It is made solidly of steel.

In connection with hay-saving machinery, every farmer or community should have a Hay Press. With this in view we have placed on the market the Red Ripper Hay Press. We have this press now in stock, the press is set up ready for use so that any one can see how simple and rapidly the operation of baling can be carried on.

This is the ideal way of storing hay. Buy a press and bale your hay, in this shape it is not only more economically stored, but will keep better and fresher and make better feed than if stacked in the open or housed loose in barns.
 Let us show you this press, if you are not convinced that it is the best and easiest press operated on the market we will not ask you to invest your money in it. Very truly yours,
