THE PERSONALITY OF THE TEACHER.

Address by Prof. I. M. A. Myers Before State Colored Teachers' Association in Florence December 30th.

We are here representing the school teaching profession in the State of South Carolina. Several hundred men and women are engaged in this field of labor among our people in our state, and to see so few of that number in session argues favorably for the position that we, educated or uneducated, are not yet willing to do anything helpful as a mass of people. But, like in the church, we can but feel happy of the opportunity to address ourselves to the many through the feelings and ears of the faithful few who love the race, the building of the country's citizenship, future welfare of the boys and girls as much so that, that they have sacrificed time, spent money and energy to further the needs of so great an Association.

Fellow teachers, the work that is before us is much and if taken hold of by the strongest of us and with the best methods great must be the result. There is a demand for something more than a teacher who is good in life and the work to be done in our profession depends upon the individual employed. Pessimistic teachers and narrow minded leaders are not to be counted in the greatest advance of anything better than the needs set for great of human events.

It is the individuality of the person that makes him the star of his calling and the real leader of the people. The school teacher has got to make an impression and if he does not he lessens the respect of the people for that which he represents because the man, in this line of work, is the object of something said. That is the person before they recognize his intentions or are called to respond to effort.

There is quite a demand for an improvement in the school system in the state. The poor school system of the past is being discarded to the life of the system. If the condition spoken of is to be brought to the desired standard it must come through the personality or individuality of the teacher.

If the people love their preacher it is easy for him to raise his church claims and erect a new church costing up in the thousands. The magnitude of self exertion of a school man will tend, if he puts himself in the proper attitude to draw the people to him and bring about the desired results. We have not the resources to draw on like other races, but I say much when I say we have the people. History points out the fact that what has been done can again be done. I offer to you the greatest thing in school teaching, I also offer as a solution to the educational problem among negroes in this state, the acquisition of the art of friend making. Let the teachers and preachers, class leaders and deacons go hand in hand. If we must have men hear us and follow us we must go among them with no selfish motive but with an open heart and hand if we would build up a strong public school system in South Carolina. The valuation of self is primitive; as we proceed every one our daily work we can do no more than put our ideas into another's life and by this method we shall live among others in character and truth to be a blessing to ourselves and posterity. The whiskey drinkers, liars and hypocrites dressed in school teachers' garb should be shunned. The sooner they are forgotten the better for the profession.

What does the literary world care to admire about Brutus, Benedict Arnold and Judah? But the pages of history are full of men who are great and inspiring when we turn and read of the illustrious lives, awe inspiring examples and lessons handed down from the sons of Milton, the plays of Shakespeare, the echo of Homer, the depth of reason by Bacon, the elegance of Gray; power of Racine, the grandeur of Byron; the wisdom of Franklin, or the teachings of Moody; of Paul, Talmage, Martin Luther or Wesley and a host of others whose images hang in the hall of fame are shining rays of light and life filled with biblical, poetic and classic lore. They taught great lessons by the work accomplished and the great impression they stamped upon the minds of men by their very being, shall live forever.

The negro teacher has done much but he must resolve to do more. He must handle his community by his strong individual impression and a lot of it comes to us by keeping our mouths and not our tongues with the people. We must encourage the best wishes of the white people of the state. You cannot live under two impressions in the same community. If you impress the blacks you must likewise impress the whites. Those teachers who have been encouraged by both races.

Fellow teachers: I feel more optimistic of the work today than ever before. The idea being advanced by some that the strongest men and women are the best is not true. There may be many of our college men learning for the sake of greed but the man who gives up because of adverse conditions is not strong. Those who stand to their guns during the fiercest storm are the strongest and bravest soldiers. The man born to teach is like the man born to preach. The born preacher would suffer rather than throw aside his bible and hymn book for a more profitable job. The born school teacher will never throw aside his Speller, Grammar and Greek Lexicon for a more lucrative position. Strong men let's push every idea and thought that perpetuates our work, make it bring us a better income. I assure you that the more you put into it the more you get out of it.

Individual effort does much in the solution of all problems. The negro problem has had various predictions as to its solution, but the fact that individuals make up the race in proportion to the ability each individual shows in handling himself, in proportion does he offer a solution to the general problem over which hangs discussion.

The school question must be handled by the individual men and women in the profession by the impression we make for good in our various fields among the people. They do not readily respond but in time conditions will be changed and the profession, instead of being looked at as secondary will be looked up to as the great lever power, used in elevating a people. May the men and women of this body stress and encourage the individual output of brain power, the individual output of best exertion that will yet redound to the greatest good of a wanting people. We are no longer to be considered school keepers, we are the Apostles of our cause.
