FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR Dr. King's New Life Pills The best in the world.

The practice of clipping of the wings of Leghorn hens to keep them from flying over a sixteen foot fence has been in vogue for some years, but not until lately have we seen the same plan suggested for keeping queen bees from leading new swarms away from the apiary. There are tricks in all trades, even the bee business.

Few of nature's agencies prove unimpaired blessings. Thus the bee, everywhere recognized as a most valuable ally in the cross fertilization of many kinds of fruits, is the chief distributor of the germs of the blight which has wrought havoc with apple and pear orchards in many sections of the country, getting hold of the germs from old oozes or infections in the orchard or in nearby hawthorn or service berry shrubs.

The balkiness of the mule is proverbial, but the western mule seems to have the trait unduly developed, if an instance can be recalled that was reported to us by the owner the other day. This one was a bunch grass animal from eastern Oregon. He balked on the road while his owner was trying to fetch him over the m. ins and couldn't be bugged by any force or persuasion that could be brought to bear. He kept this fit for five days and nights, finally dropping dead from sheer exhaustion without having taken a step.

Hogging down corn is an economical feeding practice familiar to dwellers in certain sections of the corn belt—briefly, turning the hogs into small fenced portions of a field of mature corn and letting them eat it at will. Colorado sheep growers seem to have adapted this idea to sheep and bees and last year harvested twenty acres of beets by turning sheep into small patches of the field set off by hurdles. They ate tops, roots and all, the only assistance received being a loosening of the deeper rooted beets with a spading fork. The feeder commends the plan as a successful one.

While the tomato will produce some fruit of fair size with little or no attention, very satisfactory results in the matter of an improvement in the size of the fruit can be had by thorough and frequent cultivation and a pruning of the vines so that they will set fruit on but three or four leaders or branches. When this plan is followed it is well to stake the plants in a upright position, using a strip of cloth to fasten the vines to the stakes. Should fruit of exceptional size be desired, this may be brought about by still further restricting the number of tomatoes allowed to ripen.

While housewives are generally of the opinion that it is more difficult to make good bread from soft than hard wheat flour, the following recipe gives excellent results: One quart of wetting, including one cupful of soft yeast. Add two level tablespoonfuls of salt and three and three-quarters quarts of sifted flour. Mix and knead fifteen minutes, let rise, mold down, let rise again and put in tin. Let rise again and bake. The above recipe gives equally good results with hard wheat flour by reducing the quantity of flour to three quarts. With this recipe one can start a batch of bread at 6 in the morning and bake it with the dinner.

Several points have been pretty well learned about fenceposts—seasoning them, their durability, etc. Among these are that the post timber should be cut during the summer or early autumn, that the bark should be peeled off at once so that the drying process will be hastened and that if possible from eight months to a year should elapse between the time of cutting the posts and setting them in the ground. More recent experience proves quite conclusively that giving the butts of fenceposts a bath of hot creosote will increase their life from two to three times. Whether such treatment would pay in any particular case would depend on the price of posts and the cost of creosote.

As a result of using seed of poor vitality many a corn grower is just now confronted with a stand of corn so poor that it will hardly pay him to give it the care it should, having during the remainder of the season, and naturally he is looking for a substitute. While buckwheat, cowpeas, soy beans and sorghum may prove the most desirable substitute crops in certain sections, millet will likely prove most satisfactory in a majority of instances. Of the three varieties of millet—common, Hungarian and German—the first is considered best for a forage crop, while the last will give the best results in a seed crop. The chief objection to the Hungarian millet is that it crosses readily with the common wild foxtail, a near relative of the millet family. The common millet and Hungarian will do better on light soils than the German variety. With all of the millets which are intended as forage crops it is important to cut before the heads have passed the dough stage. Perfumes in Ancient Days. Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans revelled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of Palæstine wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers after the battle of Cirra refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Balæ the whole surface of the Lucrine lake was strewn with flowers.

The Ham Fair at Paris. A feature of Parisian life is the ham fair which is held on the Boulevard Richard Le Noir. The name of this fair is wholly misleading, for as far as I have ever seen hams are the very last thing any one ever buys there. Old brass and copper curios, quaint jewelry, rare china, lace, tapestries and books are what most people go out to seek, and a sight not to be easily forgotten is the long, wide boulevard lined with ramshackle stalls laden with every possible kind of lumber and presided over by the most rapacious of brocanteurs. Out of piles of valueless lumber Americans and English diligently seek for their pet kind of curio, and there is not an artist in Paris who cannot point to some bit of furniture in his or her studio and say with pride, "I got that for 5 francs at the ham fair." No one ever pays more than 5 francs, I notice, but, alas, every year these five franc bargains are becoming more rare, and even as housekeeping in Paris grows more and more costly so does the furnishing of one's house to keep.—London Queen.

Only a Question of Possibility. Among the customers of a tea store opened in the northwest part of the city the other night was a man who, after buying a pound of coffee, handed a counterfeited half dollar to the shopkeeper. "This moun is counterfeit; I'm sorry, sir," said the shopkeeper. "Yes; I know it," replied the customer, grinning. "Got it here one day last week, and I've been saving it for you." Then, noting the smile upon the shopkeeper's face, the customer said, evidently offended, "Perhaps you doubt my word?"

"Oh, not at all, sir; not at all. I couldn't doubt the word of so truthful a man. I was simply smiling because I wondered how it was possible for you to have got the money here. This place was opened only night before last." Thereupon the customer departed hastily after producing a good coin and slipping the counterfeit into his own pocket.—Philadelphia Times.

Lancashire Humor. There was a Lancashire collier who went out on Sunday with his wheelbarrow because, as he said, "I've lost my dog, an' a felly looks sich a fool 'goin' a-walkin' bi hisself." Then there was the workmen's club committee which wanted to include the accounts audited and found correct an "expensive over" and the customer who on being told that the price of candles had gone up owing to the war, asked whether they were "feightin' bi candle leet."

Japan's Giant Wrestlers. Japanese wrestlers are not to be confused with Japanese exponents of Jiu Jitsu. The wrestlers belong to the older school, in which weight is a paramount quality. It is a remarkable thing that a race which is on the average four or five inches under the European standard in point of height should have produced a special cult of wrestlers who are giants in stature and strength. The leading wrestlers of Tokyo or Osaka or Hilo are all men at least six feet in height and weighing perhaps 300 pounds. They are a race apart. Wrestling is an occupation which has been handed down from father to son for many generations. And the explanation of their prowess is that they have always been meat eaters, while the rest of Japan, either from choice or necessity, have been in the main vegetarians.

Diamonds Under Water. An imitation diamond is never so brilliant as a genuine stone. If your eye is not experienced enough to detect the difference, a very simple test is to place the stone under water. The imitation stone is practically extinguished, while a genuine diamond sparkles even under water and is distinctly visible. When possible, place a genuine stone beside the possible imitation under water, and the contrast will be apparent to the least experienced eyes.

Consistent Theory. "Don't you believe the husband is the head of the house and should have the final say?" "Certainly I do." "Then why don't you come out in the open and say—" "Because my wife won't let me."—Exchange.

Well Trained. Mrs. Boggs—Mr. Meekman is a splendid example of what a man ought to be. Mr. Boggs—Not at all. He's a splendid example of what a wife, two sisters, a grownup daughter and a mother-in-law think a man ought to be.

Reckless. "Aw, come on!" the little boy was heard to remark. "Pe a sport. I'll bet yer any amount of money up to 5 cents."—Harper's.

Scared Into Sound Health. Mr. B. F. Kelley, Springfield, Ill., writes: "A year ago I began to be troubled with my kidneys and bladder, which grew worse until I became alarmed at my condition. I suffered also with dull heavy headaches and the action of my bladder was annoying and painful. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them a few weeks the backaches left me, the action of my bladder was again normal and I was free of all distress." W. E. Brown & Co.

Hair Monstrosities. French theater managers in the eighteenth century had worse evils than picture hats to contend against. Marie Antoinette, who was short even according to French standards, set the fashion of high coiffures, and ultra-fashionable women prided themselves on measuring four feet from their chins to the tops of their heads. The structures took about six hours to erect, the hairdresser mounting a ladder in the process. Some coiffures were almost as broad as they were long, with wings sticking out about eight inches on each side of the head. For the "frigate" coiffure the hair was ripped in a huge pile to represent the waves of an angry sea and surmounted by a fully rigged ship. As a consequence of these monstrosities disturbances in theaters occurred almost daily until an ordinance was issued against the admission of women with high coiffures to the floor of the house.—Chicago News.

Yet He Meant Well. Just as the train was leaving the Fifty-eighth street elevated station a man who had got out there hurried along the platform and spoke to a passenger sitting by an open window in the smoking car. "Quick!" he cried. "Please hand me that package. I left it on the seat when I got out just now." "Sure," said the passenger, picking up the bundle and tossing it out of the window. "Thanks."

"Hey, there! What are you doing that for?" demanded the wrathful, red faced man sitting next to him. "Why, he—" "You double dyed idiot, that package belonged to me! It was $15 worth of lace and ribbons I was taking home to my wife." Over the scene that followed let us draw a veil.—Chicago Tribune.

Foley's Kidney Remedy may be given to children with admirable results. It does away with bed wetting and is also recommended for use after measles and scarlet fever. W. E. Brown & Co.

A Pearl Stringer's Keen Eye. The pearl stringer's eye becomes practiced in the detection of real and imitation pearls. One glance is usually sufficient. A genuine pearl has a hard look. It presents a sort of shell-like surface with an indescribable bluish tinge. This bluish is so cleverly counterfeited in wax imitations that even those who are accustomed to handling pearls day after day are likely to be deceived.

Marvelous Discoveries mark the wonderful progress of the age. Air flights on heavy machines, telegrams without wires, terrible war inventions to kill men, and that wonder of wonders—Dr. King's New Discovery—to save life when threatened by coughs, colds, la grippe, asthma, croup, bronchitis, hemorrhages, hay fever and whooping cough or lung trouble. For all bronchial affections it has no equal. It relieves instantly. It's the sure cure. James M. Black of Asheville, N. C., R. R. No. 4, writes it cured him of an obstinate cough. All other remedies failed, 50c. and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Spirit of Young America. A teacher in a Philadelphia public school narrated the following account of how an aspiring young Italian citizen was beginning to show the effects of an American environment. The association meeting, runs something like this: "Tony had been away from school about a week, and when he showed up one morning the teacher asked him where he had been. "I ran away," said Tony. "Run away? What did you do that for?" asked the teacher. "My father was going to lick me, so I thought I'd run away," was the reply. The teacher by further questioning brought out the fact that Tony for some trifling dereliction had been threatened with a beating and had stayed away from home the best part of a week. "But your father has the right to whip you," said the teacher. "Yes, he ma," added Tony. "but I was born in the country, and I don't want no more beatings to lick me."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

CHINESE FANMAKING. The industry Carried on In One District For Centuries. The fanmaking industry in China was started centuries ago in the village of Pengshow, at Ampow, about three miles from Swatow. It was formerly confined to women in various households, but for many years past every family in the village has been devoted to the work, all the members of the families being occupied in the manufacture. Only the open fan is manufactured in this district. For the frame the split bamboo is repeatedly steamed until each piece is sufficiently slender and flexible. Three threadlike pieces of bamboo are arranged in a row, attached to each other by a thread passed crosswise through the middle. This thread is fastened to a semicircular strip of bamboo, giving the fan its shape. The ribs are then slightly heated and bent at the ends. The fan has now the peculiar and characteristic shell-like shape at the top. Very flimsy silk gauze is then pasted on the face and a kind of tissue-like paper on the back. After the handle is attached the border of the fan is black varnished and the gauze is coated with a chalk and water mixture. The handles are made of bamboo, various kinds of hard wood, bone and ivory. The hand painting on the fans is cleverly done, in some instances being works of art.—Exchange.

It loosens the cough, soothes and heats the inflamed air passage, and expels the cold from the system." W. E. Brown & Co.

"All Things Come." The man who looked up impatiently from his work. "Well, my good man," he snapped at the diffident rural person who stood twirling his rusty hat, "what can I do for you?" "I guess ye don't remember me, Hank," muttered the caller. "But you an' me use ter go swimmin' together in th' town. Then you got a job in th' bank, an' I got a job in th' grocery store."

The Midnight Sun. The midnight sun is not visible south of the polar circle. It is above the horizon throughout the twenty-four hours at Bodo from June 3 to July 7, at Tromso from the 19th of May to the 22d of July and at the North Cape from the 12th of May to the 20th of July. There are corresponding periods during December, January and November when the sun is not seen, but the darkness of the winter is by no means so great as might be imagined. The whiteness of the snow and the glimmer of the northern lights make a sort of perpetual twilight.
