A Helping Hand.

Is Gladly Extended by a Manning Citizen.

There are many enthusiastic citizens in Manning prepared to tell their experience for the public good. Testimony from such a source is the best of evidence, and will prove a "helping hand" to scores of readers. Read the following statement:

W. R. White, S. S. Suffered from kidney trouble for years. I was forced to give up my position and to pass the day in frequent passages of the kidney secretions and backache and sharp pains across my loins made me miserable. At times I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly turn over in bed and mornings I found it difficult to dress. I was unable to find a remedy that would help me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. I used only one box, but the pains were disposed of and the lameness and soreness in my back disappeared. I do not have to get up at night to pass the kidney secretions and I am feeling twenty years younger. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and can say that I never used another remedy that gave me such great relief.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McBride Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

Balzac and Black Coffee.

Balzac was addicted to the use of strong black coffee and depended upon it as a nervous stimulant during the hours which he devoted to composition. Its effect he has himself described in these words:

"The coffee falls into your stomach. Immediately everything starts into action. Your ideas begin to move like Grand Army battalions on the battlefield, and the battle opens. Memories arrive at a run, standards flying; the light cavalry of comparisons breaks into a magnificent gallop; the artillery of logic dashes up and unlimbers; thoughts come rushing up on all sides; the paper becomes covered with ink, for the struggle has begun and ends in torrents of black water like the battle in black powder."

Burns as a Tax Collector.

In the olden days candles were taxed articles, and it was the duty of Robert Burns as an excise officer to see that the tax was not evaded. He generally looked the other way, however, as when passing through the kitchen one night at William Lorrimer's of Kennishall, where the wife was busy making candles, he merely remarked, "Faith, madam, ye're thrang the night," and passed into the parlor.—St. James' Gazette.

The Mountains Bother Them.

The British have had heaps of trouble in Siam to make the world understand that the world is round instead of flat. Indeed, the native teachers keep on teaching the children that it is flat, and when argued with they reply, "if it isn't flat why do the mountains stand up as they do instead of rolling downhill?"

An Odd Nugget of Gold.

There have been many large and oddly shaped gold nuggets found in the United States and elsewhere, but the oddest of them all was that discovered at the Midhas mine, on Sulky gully, near Melbourne, Australia, in 1887. The nugget was flat and almost the exact counterpart in contour of a colossal human hand held open, with the exception of the thumb and forefinger, which were closed together in a manner so as to make it appear that the thumb was holding the finger in place. Its greatest length was twelve and a half inches and its greatest breadth eight inches. It was of a fine purest gold, with but a little of foreign substances adhering, mostly between the "fingers," and weighed 617 ounces. It was found in the northwest main drive of the Midhas mine, 120 feet below the surface of the earth and at a spot only fifty feet from where the famous Lady Brassy nugget was discovered the year before. It weighed fifty-one pounds of pure gold.

Party's Fate on One Vote.

Instances are common enough in elections when a single vote turns the scale, but for that vote to decide not only the fate of a candidate, but of a party as well, is rare. Yet a majority of one in parliament, which may logically depend on a majority of one in the country, has worked some of the most momentous results possible. The classical example is the act of union in 1793, certainly among the largest, most important and most remarkable changes ever accomplished by a legislative body. One hundred and six voted for it and 105 against. Then a majority of one carried the great reform bill in 1832.

The Sunny Side of Superstition.

That there is anything cheap, cheap or therapeutically valuable about superstition may seem a tall statement with it is "dark." On the contrary, there is something very brightening about a four leaf clover. Who is not a little more of an optimist for picking up a horseshoe? What lonely farmer's wife, stormbound on a winter afternoon, with unwelcome leisure on her hands, but feels a little quickening of the pulse as she drops her scissors and beholds them sticking up in the carpet or discovers that she has laid an extra place at the table? Company signs are the commonest and welcomed of all superstitions. The scissors, the needle, the dishcloth, the fork, the Saturday evening, all incalculable hospitality and reward it by an unexpected visitor. If the needle slants as it stands up in the crack of the door it foretells a gentleman. Run, young daughters of the house, and put a blue bow in your hair!—Atlantic Monthly.

A Dutch Fishing Fleet.

If the traveler wants to get a real glimpse of picturesque Holland, a glimpse which shall long be a happy memory, let him journey to the old fishing village of Scheveningen, not far from The Hague. Its fishing fleet is an imposing one and is best seen at night, when the boats are drawn up on the beach. Each has a number, and these are painted on the sides in such large figures that they can be read at a considerable distance. At night when the fishermen begin to come to land the women of the village walk down to the beach with their knitting in their hands to meet them. They wear their wooden shoes, some of which are made to look especially clean by an application of whitening, and they make a merry clatter as they go. Industry is characteristic of the women of Holland in all walks of life. They must always be at work of some kind, and it would seem as if more knitting needles must be used in Holland than in any other country in the world.—E. J. Farrington in Interior

Colic of Horses and Mules.

Cleason Extension Work.—Article XIV.

One of the most common and alarming diseased conditions occurring in horses and mules is that of colic. The term is a very loose one, being generally used to denote any abdominal pain whatever, and it may readily be inferred that it therefore occurs in a great variety of diseases. It is however only necessary here to consider the term in its most common sense, viz., spasmodic colic, and colic due to impaction or obstruction of the bowels.

Spasmodic colic is probably of the most frequent occurrence and consists of a violent contraction of the muscles of the intestines, causing intense pain. It is usually brought on by giving large amounts of cold water to a horse over heated; by exposing such a horse to chilling rains after a hard drive; sometimes by giving a heavy feed of green succulent feed; and in horses that are predisposed to it, a sudden change of diet may be all that is necessary to bring on an attack.

The condition is recognized by the horse suddenly showing symptoms of intense pain following some of the causes above mentioned, stamping violently with one hind foot; looking around at the flanks with an anxious expression; sweating; lying down suddenly and rolling in agony; and with occasional periods of freedom from pain followed by similar attacks.

Colic from impaction, as the name indicates, is a condition in which there is a partial or complete stoppage of the bowels, and may be brought on by overloading the stomach when in a tired condition and particularly with dry, unnutritious feed. A faulty condition of the teeth may also be a predisposing feature on account of imperfect mastication of the food. This condition is accompanied by constipation and the animal shows evidences of a continuous dull pain as compared with that of spasmodic colic, moving stiffly, lying down occasionally and groaning due to absence of violent movements. It also runs a longer course usually than spasmodic colic.

While it is always advisable to consult a qualified veterinarian when possible, this is frequently impracticable on account of the small number of veterinarians in this State, and every horse owner ought to have some intelligent idea as to how to recognize and treat the condition.

In spasmodic colic it is evident that a sedative or narcotic treatment should be restored to in order to overcome the violent contraction and relieve the pain. One of the best remedies is fluid extract of Cannabis indica, or Indian hemp given in doses of six drams by the month. This brings on drowsiness and as a rule by the time the drowsiness has worn off the colic has disappeared. Another good remedy is chloral hydrate given in doses of one ounce dissolved in a pint of water; or if a hypodermic syringe be available, two grains of sulphate of morphia may be dissolved in a little water that has been boiled and allowed to cool and injected under the skin.

With impaction colic, entirely different remedies are needed, the object being to unload the intestines of the offending material. For this purpose five drams of aloes dissolved in a quart of hot water and combined with one ounce of oil of turpentine and one dram of fluid extract of nux vomica may be given or if this is not conveniently at hand, one and a half pint of linseed oil may be given, and if there is evidence of much pain three drams of Cannabis indica may also be given. Copious rectal injections of soap suds are beneficial also, but if more drastic treatment is necessary it should be entrusted to a veterinarian.

Much can be done in the way of preventing and by preferring to the causes mentioned the methods of prevention will suggest themselves.

DR. E. BARNETT,
South Carolina Experiment Station Veterinarian.

A Few Short Weeks.

Mr. J. S. Bartell, Edwardsville, Ill., writes: "A few months ago my kidneys became congested. I had severe backache and pain across the kidneys and hips. Foley Kidney Pills promptly cured my backache and congested the action of my kidneys. This was brought about after my using them for only a few short weeks and I can cheerfully recommend them." W. E. Brown & Co.

Obstructing the Law.

In a murder case recently before the New York Court of Appeals, the judge was asked to order a new trial, even though the prisoner's guilt was well established, because "the indictment did not specify the defendant was a human being." Cases similar, and often less well founded, have hampered the administration of justice for years, and of late the excessive delays litigants are put to, and the severe cost for retrials, have driven the public into an attitude of suspicion for all the processes and formalities of the law. Criminal practice has been made to appear a device for the prevention of truth telling rather than in aid of it. Most of these ingenious technicalities, with the policy of frustration, grew into vogue largely in that English era, when criminal punishments were so severe as to shock lawyers, public and jury into a partisanship for the prisoner, into wishing him every available advantage. There were at least 200 capital offences then, and the theft of a shilling handkerchief was punishable by hanging. But conditions have changed much since, with the result that the course of justice is badly hampered. The higher courts begin to show a tendency to frown upon such shallow technicalities as are constantly obstructing in the path of justice. The time when justice need deceive its own servants has passed away. And for the best interests of public sentiment and conduct, for the good of individual justice, judges must stop this transparent quibbling over the letter of the law.—Boston Herald.

Atlantic Ocean Resorts

Evidence of the Growing Importance of North Carolina's Popular Resorts Wrightsville and Carolina Beaches—Approaching Season Will be Big One.

The rapidly approaching season will unquestionably be the best in the history of Wrightsville and Carolina Beaches, the delightful summer resorts in close proximity to Wilmington.

Practically every organization of importance in the State, including the Wilmington Society, Association and Wrightsville between June 1st and September 1st, among which are the United Commercial Travelers of the Carolina, the North Carolina Press Association, North Carolina Good Roads Association, State Medical Society, State Dental Society, Association of the Bankers' Association, State Council, J. O. U. A. M., the North Carolina Architects, and probably others. Nearly, if not quite all, the travelers will make a short trip down the Cape Fear River with probably a stop at Carolina Beach, as no trip to Wilmington is complete without a trip on the steamer Wilmington.

One of the most important of the many improvements at Wrightsville Beach is the enlargement of Tarrymore Hotel, Mr. W. J. Moore, manager, the excellent hotel having added another wing to the north of the old part, in which are 50 well appointed rooms and equipped with all the conveniences of a modern hotel. The addition extends out toward the ocean and is so arranged that every room commands a view of the ocean. The extension is built on concrete piers and is connected with the old part of the hotel by spacious verandas.

Of equal, not greater importance is the extensive improvement at the Seashore Hotel, Mr. Edgar L. Hinton, manager. A steel pier has been constructed from the rear entrance of the hotel to extend 700 feet out into the ocean. The pier is 30 feet wide the greater part of its length and out at the end is 50 feet wide. At the end of the pier will be erected a large building to be used for concerts, dances and other forms of amusement. The roof of the building will be used as observation veranda, from which a fine view of the beach can be had. The pier is really a continuation of the hotel veranda. The pier will be greatly patronized by fishing parties as well as for the different forms of amusement mentioned above. Besides the pier, the Seashore has enlarged its capacity by the addition of 80 rooms, in a wing extending to the ocean front. With this addition the Seashore Hotel now has 250 well equipped rooms.

Lumina, North Carolina's pleasure place has also been improved, or rather the approach to the amusement resort has been greatly improved and beautified by the removal of all small buildings, except Lumina, standing conspicuously out in an open, clear space.

Additions have been built to nearly all of the many high-class boarding houses, and a fine view of the beach can be had.

Down at Carolina Beach, where so many Wilmingtonians and out-of-town visitors like to sojourn, a number of improvements have been made and visitors this season will find the resort even more attractive than ever and a trip on the steamer Wilmington is one that should not be missed.

Some stop at the beach and others will go on to Southport, from whence they will take the delightful trip out to sea.

Every day points to probably one of the best seasons in the history of the resorts around Wilmington and many new faces, as well as familiar ones, will be seen during the season.

The Atlantic Coast Line is offering an attractive line of excursion rates from several hundred points in the Carolinas to Wilmington and Wrightsville Beach, and a number of excursions can be obtained from their agents, and the Tidewater Power Company and the Harper Line of Steamers from Wilmington.

Wilmington and the beach—Morning Star, Wilmington, N. C., May 15, 1910.
