Safe and Sound.

In his speech at Privater Tuesday Mr. T. B. Fraser stated his position on the liquor question clearly and forcibly, and that we reproduce it for the purpose of emphasizing it and inviting the State-wide to give it their consideration. It is possible for them to impartially consider any safe and sound view of the liquor question, and which their hope of office is based. Mr. Fraser is an enemy of liquor and of the liquor traffic, and his record is not open to criticism. He was one of the first to come out openly in opposition to the State dispensary. When other men were riding into office on the dispensary platform and seeking to make reputations in the legislature as leaders by their vociferous loyalty to the great moral institution and the system that they were to establish, the same principles that he now enunciates. When he was first nominated for the House of Representatives he declared his antagonism to the dispensary system and on every stump in the country stated his views so that all might know where he stood. He was elected, not on account of his anti-dispensary views, but despite of them, for at that time the dispensary was regarded as a fixture and it was the popular thing to assert that the dispensary system was the only way of solving the liquor problem, and let it go at that. In those days many office seekers, who are now blatant advocates of the great moral issue of prohibition, were blind to the situation. They were moral institutions. Public sentiment is a great force, and more often than otherwise the office seeker builds his platform to conform to what he thinks is public sentiment, rather than according to a safe and sound policy or upon well thought out principles. To such as think the prohibition wave is sweeping the State and are therefore uncompromising State-wide, we commend Mr. Fraser's statement of his position on the liquor question, and advise them to try to understand that a man of principle can advocate local option and give a safe and sound reason for his position. Mr. Fraser's platform is one with which no sincere temperance man can consistently disagree. It is a platform which was generally adopted as the governing policy in the State, the cause of temperance would be advanced, and the issue would become a moral issue and not a political movement, fostered and promoted by those who fasten upon an issue that seems to have caught the popular sentiment.

"On the liquor question I want to say I am for local option, not because I am opposed to prohibition but because I am in favor of prohibition. Being in favor of prohibition I want that kind of law in my judgment which will prohibit. I do not believe that State-wide prohibition will prohibit. I believe local option prohibition will."

"There is no controversy between the State-wide prohibitionist and me as to the evils of liquor. The expenditure of money for liquor that ought to be used to pay debts, to increase the means of earning a livelihood, to procure home comforts and to breed, in my judgment, indefensible. The effects of liquor in unfitting men for productive work while its hideous effects continue; the creation of an insatiable appetite for more, the blasting of the lives of so many who drink and the lives of so many who love those who drink, make it the crowning evil of today.

"We must take the world as we find it, but let us better it. It is not the dream we have dreamed, but the deeds we have done that count. Local option has made 37 out of 43 counties prohibition (practically prohibition) territory and I say wide local option. I will try it again. The State-wide prohibitionist has made a marvelous. The two principal foes of prohibition were (1) a general impression that there would be immunity from punishment for the violators of this law, (2) a fully developed thirst for liquor. Now the first of these is no immunity from punishment. That foe is vanquished. The thirst must die by degrees. Then give it time and local option prohibition will demonstrate its effectiveness.

"I am not a local optionist because local option is 'good Democratic doctrine.' Democratic doctrine is not proper to State-wide or nation wide legislation. Nor do I believe a community has the right to sell liquor if it chooses to do so. No community has the right to sell that which produces want, disease or death. If I can get immunity from a scourge for my own community only when I sell and when I sell I am not to be punished and can not get protection if joined with the State, and all other communities have an equal chance to secure the same protection and do not do so, the fault is their's not mine. I want the chance to protect my own."

Farmers' Congress.

Clemson Extension Work. Article XVII.

On August 1st and September 1st and 2nd the farmers of this State are invited to assemble at Clemson College for the purpose of holding a round-up institute or congress. There will be assembled at this time along with the farmers of this State the various lines of farming that can be found in the United States. These men will talk to the farmers and give them the benefit of their experience and study. They have been selected for this purpose, not only for their scientific training, but also because they have had a large amount of practical experience in this special line and this will be able to give practical suggestions. In addition to the men from outside of the State a number of the most successful farmers of this State have also been invited and have consented to give their experience for the benefit of their brother farmers. But while both of these classes of speakers insure that those in attendance will receive valuable information, it is hoped that all who attend will realize that the greatest good can come out of such meetings only by a free discussion of the subjects among the farmers themselves.

It is therefore hoped that those in attendance will consider that this is their institute, and will not only ask questions, but also will not hesitate to give their own experience. Only the success it should be. After all, all that the set speech can do is to suggest ideas and that speech is the best that arouses the greatest discussion.

But even if the speaker does not come to the college with the right determination could not fail to reap rich benefit. It is but right that every farmer of this State should be as familiar with the college as he is with his own farm. This knowledge can only be gained by a visit to the college of two or three days and a close inspection of this magnificent educational plant that they have built. Every department will be open for their inspection with the exception of the faculty in their place, thus affording an opportunity of becoming personally acquainted with the work and with the man. Of these this is perhaps the most valuable. When you have known a man personally you are more willing to accept advice and suggestions from him.

At this meeting it is hoped to form some permanent organization so that in the future this may be a real congress, and not merely a round-up. This State needs some such organization where the business of farming is discussed in all its phases.

The object of this meeting is for the improvement and instruction of those who attend, and all who have a deal to say for such an interest. It is not a pleasure gathering and while all will be done to make the three days pleasant, it is hoped that this pleasure will come from interest in the work. Those who are not interested in the work of the college and are not interested only upon a profit will be a mistake in coming and are not invited. Strict order will be maintained and ample provision has been made to that end.

The railroads of the State have been asked to give special rates for this occasion, and it is hoped that such will be done. As soon as the information is received from them as to what better rate will be published. All who can had better come via Calhoun. The college is one mile from Calhoun on the main line of the Southern and two miles from Cherry Station on the Blue Ridge railroad. The back fare from either station is twenty-five cents and ample meals will be furnished by the five-man Mr. Clinkenscales, to accompany the college free, but it will be well for each person to bring their own sheets, pillow cases and a light blanket, as the college cannot supply these.

Meals will be supplied at the mess hall at thirty five cents for single meals or three for one dollar. The college does not expect any profit from these meals and will put the full value in the mess hall service. After reaching here a maximum expenditure of four dollars should cover every legitimate expense—it will hardly cost any one more than ten dollars including all expense from home and return to the most distant part of the State.

Upon arrival at the college each person is to register with the clerk who will assign rooms, issuing a ticket to same. Be sure and register and receive this ticket as no one will be allowed a room who has not a ticket. This is necessary to prevent confusion and preserve order. The meal hours will be:

Breakfast 7:30
Dinner 12:30
Supper 7:30

Promptness at meals will be necessary, as it will not be possible to serve them irregularly. The full program will be published in the next few days, so come here, and be ready.

Acute or Chronic—Which?

No matter if your kidney trouble is acute or chronic Foley's Kidney Remedy will reach your case. Mr. Claude Brown, Reynoldsville, Ill., writes that he suffered many months with kidney complaint which baffled all treatment. At last he tried Foley's Kidney Remedy and a few large bottles effected a complete cure. He says, "It has been of inestimable value to me." W. E. Brown & Co.

His Sarcastic Apology.

A well known New Yorker figured in a quaint encounter with a "panhandler" not long ago. The fellow had asked him for a dime, when the following conversation took place:

"You're a positive nuisance! Tuesday you struck me for a dime, Thursday I gave you another, and now you have the nerve to ask for a third!"

"Excuse me, but are you the gent that gave me a dime on this corner the day before yesterday?"

"Yes."

"And now I've tackled you for the third dime?"

"Yes."

"What!" said the hobo contritely, "I sincerely beg your pardon, old man. That's too much gall even for me. The only excuse I have to offer is that you have improved so much in your personal appearance that I didn't recognize you."—Cleveland Leader.

Both Stung.

Some time ago an eminent London physician requested an equally eminent surgeon to accompany him to see a distinguished but slippery patient. The patient was exceedingly polite to both the medical gentlemen, shaking hands with them and bowing them out of the room in the most affable manner. Soon after this professional visit the same physician called on the surgeon, requesting him to accompany him to see another patient. "I hope this patient will behave more liberally than the last did."

"Why?" said the M. D. "Did he not give you a fee?"

"Not a shilling," was the reply.

"Indeed!" said the eminent physician, with a toss of the head. "Why, he borrowed 2 guineas from me to give to you!"—Tit-Bits.

How Township Government Would Help the South.

How much further advanced our whole Southland would be if we had had township meetings at least one year, gathering all the people together to discuss roads and schools and taxes, and health matters and public improvements, etc., and everything looking to public progress and the public welfare. This is what New England has done for generations, and her material progress is largely due to it; this what the South has not done, and our backwardness is partly due to our not having done it.

Once a year there is the regular annual "town meeting" in each rural township or civil district in Massachusetts; that is to say, all the voters of the town or civil district meet together and all the business of the township or district is arranged for. The township school committee is elected; selectmen, whose duties for the township correspond to those of county commissioners for the county, are chosen; they transact all the general legislative business for the township. Assessors are named. Certain other citizens are named as overseers of the poor. Other men are named as road commissioners. Other men compose the board of health, or the duties of this board may be left to the selection. Registrars are elected by the same meeting. Numerous other smaller positions are filled so that some man of the town or every public duty; for instance, one man is named as "fence viewer," and instead of two farmers having an expensive law-suit about a line fence, this man judges the matter and settles it once for all.

Not only are all these officers named for the routine work of the township, but any question bearing upon the public welfare of the community may be brought up and settled. This meeting has entire authority as to what the expenditures and the tax rate of the township shall be; it debates and decides upon the public improvements; it decides what road improvements shall be made, etc., etc. If any new matter comes up or new interest develops in some old subject, a certain percentage of the voters may call another meeting, provided the selectmen and regular officers do not handle it satisfactorily.—Clarence Poe, in Progressive Farmer.

Our Southern Builders and Architects.

Our Southern builders and architects have not been independent enough in their work, but have too generally imitated models suited to colder climates instead of building houses specially for the South. The average Southern farm-house has only half as many windows as it ought to have, or if there are windows enough, they are only half as large as they ought to be. Whether in summer or winter fresh air is one of the best as well as one of the cheap blessings, and there is much wisdom in the old Italian proverb: "Where the sunlight never comes, the doctor often comes."

The canning season for many vegetables is just now at its height. From now on until cold weather, tomatoes, corn, beans, okra, to say nothing of apples, peaches, and other fruits, should be put up in abundant supply. Canned sweet potatoes, too, are good, and most people like canned pumpkin. He read the directions we have published this summer for canning various vegetables and write to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for Farmers' Bulletin 359.—Progressive Farmer.

Remember, it isn't too late to plant an early variety of sweet corn and have plenty of roasting ears right up till frost, and later if you cut the corn when frost threatens and set it up in big loose shocks so that it will not mold.—Progressive Farmer.

The Atlanta Constitution cites the case of a farmer in Georgia who refused to contribute a strip of his farm for a good road because he did not believe in good roads on principle. But the road made all the same, and that farmer was offered ten dollars an acre more for his 300 acres than he had asked before the road was built. Query sort of principles, his.—Raleigh (N. C.) Progressive Farmer.

They Have a Definite Purpose.

Foley's Kidney Pills give quick relief in cases of kidney and bladder ailments. Mrs. Jose Glaser, Terre Haute, Ind., tells the result in her case. "After suffering for many years from a serious case of kidney trouble and spending much money for so-called cures, I found Foley's Kidney Pills the only medicine that gave me a permanent cure. I am again able to be up and attend to my work. I shall never hesitate to recommend them." W. E. Brown & Co.

The Confederate Monument.

The movement so long neglected has at last begun to erect a monument to the memory of the heroes who won the gallant victory over the traitors of the civilized world. A national house square a suitable mark of its patriotism by having erected a shaft in honor of those who responded and laid down their lives for the country's altar. "Sure Cure"

"I would like to guide suffering women to a sure cure for female troubles," writes Mrs. R. E. Mercer, of Frozen Camp, Va. "I have found no medicine equal to Cardui. I had suffered for about four years. Would have headache for a week at a time, until I would be nearly crazy. I took Cardui and now I never have the headache any more."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

The pains from which many women suffer every month are unnecessary. It's not safe to trust to strong drugs, right at the time of the pains. Better to take Cardui for a while, before and after, to strengthen the system and cure the cause. This is the sensible, the scientific, the right way. Try it.
