

Watch Your Kidneys. Their action controls your health. Read what Foley Kidney Pills have done for your neighbor. Mrs. H. W. Allen, Quincy, Ill., says: "About a year ago my kidneys began bothering me. I had a swelling in my ankles and limbs, then headaches and nervous dizzy spells, and later severe backaches. I was getting worse, when I began taking Foley Kidney Pills. I kept on taking them until I was once more free of all kidney trouble and suffering. I have a great deal to thank Foley Kidney Pills for and shall always recommend them." Dickson Drug Co.

Handy With the Whip. Teamsters are prouder of their skill with the whip than of anything else in the world. A group of teamsters were talking one night. "Out on the plains," said one young fellow, "I used to cut down a steer with my whip, skin him and divide up his carcass."

A red headed fellow said his uncle could take two whips and write the Lord's Prayer on the bark of a birch with the left hand one, at the same time playing operatic selections with the other on a tin can at seven paces. "That's pretty good work," said a veteran, "but my own father used to draw corks with every flick of the lash."

Then a cross eyed stranger spoke up. "Gents," he said, "I know there's men can even hit out and shave you with a whip—I know it, for I've seen it done—but the only man that ever found the whip real lucrative was Tom Fallon, from Sag Harbor. Tom with his whip made a real nice little pile."

"How so?" the red headed man asked. "Pickin' pockets," said the stranger.—Los Angeles Times.

A Phillips Brooks Story. In the Christian Endeavor World the Rev. Francis E. Clark writes of his attending Andover Theological seminary with John Cotton Brooks, brother of the famous Massachusetts bishop and rector, the Rev. Phillips Brooks. The writer says: "I recall one repartee which John Brooks ascribed to his brother Phillips. A famous but sensational Boston preacher, who soon afterward fell from his high estate, being a great sportsman and decidedly 'horsy,' had written a much advertised book entitled 'The Perfect Horse.' 'Yes,' said Phillips Brooks, 'The Perfect Horse,' by the perfect ass." This was the only sentiment bordering on ill nature that I ever heard attributed to this most genial and kind hearted of men, and this could easily be forgotten when one remembers the skyrocket preacher of whom it was said.

The Earliest Cold Storage. In Macaulay's essay on "Lord Bacon" he points out that in 1628 the subject of his memoir tried the experiment of stuffing a fowl with snow to prevent it from putrefying and in carrying out the work caught cold, from which he died. Macaulay adds: "In which he died," Macaulay wrote: "In the last letter that he ever wrote, with fingers which, as he said, could not steadily hold a pen, he did not omit to mention that the experiment of the snow had succeeded excellently well." If, however, we turn to nature there are instances in Siberia of mammoths preserved in ice so that their flesh is still eatable from a period probably coeval with the first appearance of man on this globe. If the Romans brought to their banquets the dainties of the known world, had they not some knowledge of cold storage?—E. H. Hill in London Spectator.

The Misuse of Vinegar. Dr. Mansell Maullin, M. A., writing in the London Lancet on the causes of gastric ulcer, mentions vinegar as one cause. "In many of these instances, especially those which occur in young women, the effect of this chronic septic poisoning is intensified by the habit so many of them have of swallowing quantities of vinegar. Information with regard to this is very difficult to obtain, and is never volunteered. It has to be drawn out bit by bit, but I have met with many instances in which a pint a day has been consumed and a few in which the quantity was occasionally much larger. The effect is probably greater because it is often taken between meals on an empty stomach under the curious impression that it will improve the complexion."

A Bit Thicker. Parisians drink scarcely any water other than mineral water. The Seine water has a shocking reputation. John Raphael, Paris correspondent for several London papers, said that one afternoon a pretty actress met her doctor at a dress rehearsal in a boulevard theater. "Look here," she said, "I am quite sure that all this mineral water I drink, since you have forbidden wine, is dreadfully bad for me. I want your permission to drink filtered Seine water now." "Very well," replied the doctor, "if you insist. But, mind, you must chew it well."

Could, but Would He? "I have called," said the young man, "to ask for your daughter's hand in marriage." "Can you support her in the style she has been accustomed to?" "Yes," answered the young man. "But will you?" demanded her father, who was already supporting two sons-in-law.—Detroit Free Press.

A Short Story. Chapter 1—I think you are just the bestest, goodest husband in all the world! Chapter 2—I wonder how much she wants. Chapter 3—And he gave it to me without fussing a bit. I wonder what he has been up to.

After Midnight. Wife—I'm sorry to see you come home in such a state as this, Charles. Husband—I knew you'd be sorry, Charlie, and that's why I told you not to sit up.

Scruples and Drams. Although there are three scruples in a dram, the more drams one takes the fewer scruples one has.—New York Tribune.

Kill More Than Wild Beasts. The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust, even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back if not satisfied. Only 50c at all druggists.

The White Whale. One of the creatures that inhabit the northern seas is the beluga, or white whale. It frequents the Arctic ocean, enters the numerous bays and inlets and sometimes travels up the fresh water streams to a considerable distance in search of food. It preys upon fish, and owing to its ability to swim very rapidly it is able to capture the fastest of these. It is pure white in color and quite large, often reaching fifteen to eighteen feet in length. It has a large mouth, containing a number of very sharp conical teeth. It swims by doubling its strong tail back under its body and driving itself forward with a powerful stroke. The natives of those cold regions which it inhabits catch the white whale with a stout net and by the use of the harpoon. A portion of the flesh is used for food, and the remaining portion is converted into a very fine grade of fish oil, which finds a ready sale. The skins are removed and made into leather.—Harper's Weekly.

Elephant Toothache. A London surgeon who had been for many years in India says he would sooner risk a railway accident than meet an elephant with toothache. It appears that toothache affects an elephant in a more severe manner than it does any other animal. Elephants have very sensitive nerves, and a touch of toothache often brings on madness. Provided you are able to climb down an elephant and draw out the offending tooth, the brute is certain to be affectionate to you afterward. Here is an instance: An elephant in Bengal, India, became afflicted with toothache, but the dentist managed to secure it while a keeper drew a decayed tooth—the cause of the trouble. After a time the elephant seemed to understand that the dentist was trying to do something for his pain, and he gave every evidence of appreciating the attention. When the operation was over he frisked round the dentist like a young lamb.

A Peek Into His Pocket. Would show the box of Buckle's Arnica Salve that E. S. Loper, a carpenter of Marlton, N. Y., always carries. "I have never had a cut, wound, bruise, or sore it would not soon heal," he writes. Greatest healer of burns, boils, scalds, chapped hands and lips, fever-sores, skin-eruptions, eczema, corns and piles. 25c at all druggists.

The Family Cat. "Under normal conditions," says Chicago's health commissioner, "all the epidemic and local diseases thrive upon the family cat. The woman who refuses to give her child a red-hot poker as a toy has no hesitancy in putting into its arms the most dangerous plaything—the family cat. It is no difficult matter to quarantine the child sick with scarlet fever or diphtheria, but the family cat goes where it pleases and comes when it likes."

Facing the Inevitable. "Is it selfish ambition that inspires your eagerness to rush into official responsibility?" "Not at all. It is merely a generous willingness to go to the front and stand my share of the harsh criticism that patriotic effort always receives."—Washington Star.

Knew His Business. "She had him arrested for kissing her, and he was fined $500." "But there are good friends now." "Yes; he announced in open court that it was worth the price."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Life Position. Annette—Ethel is about to accept a lifetime job of twenty-four hours a day. Florence—Indeed! Annette—Yes. She is going to marry a man to reform him.—Chicago News.

Never Saw One. Urchin—Paw, what is an accommodation train? Parent—I don't know, Bobby; I never saw one. Chicago Tribune.

The world is a comedy to those who think, a tragedy to those who feel.—Horace Walpole.

HUNT'S CURE. Guaranteed Cure For ALL SKIN DISEASE. A. B. Richards Medicine Co., Sherman, Texas. Sold by Zeigler's Pharmacy.

Progressing. "Do you think Miss Roxy cares anything for you?" "Well, I think she's beginning to care a little." "What makes you think that?" "Why, the last time I called she only yawned twice, and two weeks ago I counted five yawns in one evening."—Vanity Fair.

Hurt His Pride. "Do I understand you to say, prisoner, that you knocked him down because he called you a dirty liar?" "Yes, your honor; I simply couldn't stand it. If there is one thing I have always prided myself on more than anything else it is my cleanliness."—London Answers.

Mistaken Affability. "What made our pirate chief compel the prisoner to walk the plank so hastily?" asked the pirate. "He was one of those cheery and familiar ready-made humorists. The first thing he said when he saw the chief was, 'Oh, you Captain Kidd!'"—Washington Star.

Economical. Husband—You are not economical. Wife—Well, if you don't call a woman economical who saves her wedding dress for a possible second marriage I'd like to know what you think economy is like.—Glasgow Times.

A Great Deal. "Whenever I look at my wife," said the husband of the celebrated fattest woman on earth, "I feel that I have a great deal to be thankful for."

Psychology of Store Planning. The basement of a store was formerly regarded merely as a cellar, fit for storage, packing boxes, etc. Then came a merchant of the present day, gifted with an imagination to an unusual degree, who recognized—though, perhaps, not in these terms—that the customer was guided by subconscious control and argued that the lack of effort in going downstairs would appear to the subconsciousness and that the jolt of displays seen at the foot of the stairs would lead customers to the basement, notwithstanding the low ceiling, the imperfect ventilation and the absence of daylight. This merchant has lived to see not only a daily attendance on a basement floor ten or a dozen times greater than that on the average floor above the first, but also to see his discovery copied by practically every store in the land. The real gist of his discovery was that subconsciousness leads us to the easy thing first—namely, go downstairs—without reckoning with the next problem, which was, of course, getting out of the basement.—Cassier's Magazine.

The Kangaroo's Defense. In the kangaroo hunts of Australia capture is sufficiently easy, but sometimes the kangaroo makes an original defense. If possible the kangaroo directs his flight toward a river. If he reaches it he enters, and, thanks to his great height, he is able to go on foot to a depth where the dogs are obliged to swim. There he plants himself on his two hind legs and his tail and, up to the arrival of the pack, waits for the first news he seizes by the head the first dog that approaches, and as he is more solidly balanced than his assailant he holds the dog's nose beneath the water as long as he can. Unless a second dog speedily comes to the rescue the first one is inevitably drowned. If a companion arrives and sets him free he is glad to regain the bank as quickly as possible. A strong and courageous old kangaroo will hold his own against twenty or thirty dogs, drowning some and frightening others, and the hunter is obliged to intervene with a bullet.—New York Press.

Straining the Keg. Rufe Bierins, a giant woodchopper, whose good nature and ready wit made him a welcome addition to the store circle, entered the village grocery. The loafers moved a little closer together to make room for Rufe on a friendly note, he marched past the friendly circle, plumped an empty money bag down on the counter and drew a stained bill from his pocket, which he held out to the proprietor of the store. An expectant grin went round the circle, for Storekeeper Jones had the reputation of never wronging himself by overweighing or undercharging. The merchant adjusted his glasses and looked expectantly from the bill to the woodchopper. "Notice you charged me for five gallons of molasses last time I had this four gallon keg filled," drawled Rufe. "I don't mind payin' for the extra gallon, Mr. Jones, but I do kinder hate to have a good keg strained to pieces."—Youth's Companion.

The Samurai's Servant. Here is an interesting legend about an office which appears as the badge of a family at Matsue. The story, as Hearst tells it, is that: "Once a servant of the family went to sea, in despite of his master's orders to remain in the house. When he came back the samurai flew into a rage and killed him. Then the murderer felt sorry and buried the body in the garden or bamboo patch. The day after the servant came back again and apologized for his absence at sea. You can guess the rest of the legend. When the grave was opened there was no dead body there—only an off-da cut in two, as if by a sword slash."

Never Suffered From Bath. There are quarters in London in which the uselessness of the bath is no novel proposition. A district nurse called at a house where there was a case of infectious disease. "Have you a bath in the house?" asked the practical visitor. "Yes, mum," was the reply; "but thank God, we've never 'ad to use it."—London Chronicle.

Atmospheric Resistance. The resistance of our atmosphere materially retards raindrops, hailstones, hailstones, and all other bodies which fall through it, and were it not for the resistance it presents every rainstorm would be disastrous to the human race, as each drop would fall with a velocity great enough to penetrate the full length of a full grown man's body.

Ambiguous. When Bilkins was away from home on a long business trip he got a letter from his wife that still puzzles him. It ended thus: "Baby is well and lots brighter than she used to be. Hoping that you are the same, I remain, your loving wife."—Everybody's Magazine.

An Observant Youth. "Is that man a bill collector?" said the new clerk. "He may be in some places," replied the messenger boy, "but not in this office."—Washington Star.

Unfortunate, Yes. The trouble with the story which you tell is that it is almost sure to remind somebody of another which is just as old.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Doing nothing for others is the undoing of oneself.

Parson's Poem A Gem. From Rev. H. Stubenvoll, Allison, Ia. in praise of Dr. King's New Life Pills. "They're such a health necessity. In every home these pills should be. If other kinds you've tried in vain, USE DR. KING'S. And be well again. Only 25c at all druggists."

Avoid Substitution. Youngbuddy (as he is called down his first bite of pancakes)—Wow! What awful stuff! (What is the mischief is it?) Youngwife (retruly)—Oh, dear, I was hoping you wouldn't notice it, but the grocer was all out of table sirup, and I got a bottle of cough sirup instead.—Jude.

Preaching and Practice. Visitor—Could I speak with the parson for a moment? Servant—Oh, if I disturbed him now he'd take my head off! He's writing a sermon on "Self Control."—Puck.

Happiness at least is not solitary. It joys to communicate; it loves others; for it depends on them for its existence.

Center of the Earth. If a shaft were sunk vertically to the center of the earth and an object suspended from a spring balance were lowered down the shaft the weight of the object, as indicated by the dial of the balance, would at first increase as the descending object approached the deeper and denser strata. After passing a certain depth, however, the weight would begin to diminish, and it would continue to diminish to the center of the earth, where its value would be zero, because the object would there be equally attracted in every direction.

Bright Child. "How long has your daughter been studying art?" "Five years, and she has made great progress. She can talk about motifs and atmosphere and such things in such a way as to make you think she knows perfectly well what she means."—Chicago Tribune.

The College Damsel Explains. "I breathe my vows from a surcharged heart," said the young man. "Nonsense, George," said the college damsel. "You don't breathe from your heart. You breathe from your diaphragm."—Kansas City Journal.

Jealous Thing! Miss Plainleigh—See my new engagement ring? Don't you think my fiancé showed excellent taste? Miss Rival—Oh, yes—in the selection of the ring.—Boston Transcript.

True to Life. "Oh, if ever I come across that artist! He calls his picture 'The Sleeper on the Bench' and has put a volume of my poems in his hand."—Hlegende Blatter.

Escaped With His Life. "Twenty-one years ago I faced a awful death," writes E. B. Martin, Port Hatterson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything, I could hear of, for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctors in Georgetown, S. C. for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure." It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds and all bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.

A Critical Shave. John Hays Hammond once paid $5 for a shave, and he did it at a time when he was not worth much money. He was married in a small town in Maryland and arrived there the morning before the ceremony after a dash across the continent. One of the things he carried with him into the town was a thick but unornamental growth of whiskers, and one thing he did not have was a razor. His search for a barber resulted in the discovery of the only one in town, an old negro who had been imbibing too freely for several days. As a result of intemperance the tonsorial artist was shaking like an aspen leaf in a gale. "Look here!" said Hammond. "You are going to shave me. If you so much as make a nick in my face I'll cut your throat! If you don't cut me I'll give you $5."

The Barber, after much effort, agony and tremor, finished the shave successfully. But the strain was too great for him. Just as his hand closed on the five dollar note—he fainted away.—New York Tribune.

The Taste For Music. Public taste in America has progressed in no direction more rapidly than in music. Not only opera, but instrumental music of many kinds, is now thoroughly entrenched in the public interest. An amusing contrast can be found in a letter which Bret Harte wrote to his wife in 1879. He had been to see "Tannhauser," which he deemed the "most diabolically hideous and stupidly monotonous performance" he ever heard. The orchestra to him was "like a power factory at work in the next street." The singing was a multiplication table, he claimed, lugubrious, ponderous and monotonous. Bret Harte executed the idea better than most of the others. Not long ago the newspapers were full of other great composers are accepted simply as great writers or great painters, and Bret Harte, if he were alive today, would scarcely produce the same joke.—Collier's.

Kidney Diseases Are Curable under certain conditions. The right medicine must be taken before the disease has progressed too far. Mr. Perry A. Fittman, De. Tex., says: "It was down in bed for four months with kidney and bladder trouble and gall stones. One bottle of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured me well and sound." Ask for it. Dickson Drug Co.

The Skeleton at the Wedding. A. G. C. Liddell was once best man at a wedding at which one of the presents was, to say the least, unconventional. This is his story in "Notes From the Life of an Ordinary Gentleman": "Considerable excitement was raised among the spectators when it was rumored that a tall oak box placed against the wall contained a skeleton, and all sorts of rumors were told as to the significance of such a curious wedding gift. The real explanation was simple. An eccentric old gentleman had once found the bride, who was fond of drawing making a study from a skull, and had vowed that he would give her a whole skeleton when she was married. The result was that after protracted negotiation he secured the framework of an Austrian grenadier, which, I believe, it was found most difficult to import. This was not the sole trouble connected with the gift, as when the young couple set up house, the servants shuddered at this strange inmate of the establishment, and he had to be presented to a hospital."

Inquisitive Girls. Bessie! I almost hate Carrie Dyer! She asks such impudent questions, you know. I was telling her if Frank Barnes had asked me to marry him once he had asked me twenty times, and she had the impudence to ask me if he had asked once. Minnie—The idea! But has he, Bessie?—Exchange.

Not Popular. "I don't take much stock in that scheme of yours," said the moneyed man. "And no one else does, either," responded the promoter.—Amateur Stage.
