Timely Advice Given Mrs. C. Wiloughby, of Marengo, Wis., (R. No. 1) prevented a dreadful tragedy, and saved two lives. Doctors had said her frightful cough was a "consumption" cough and could do little to help her. After many remedies failed, her aunt urged her to take Dr. King's New Discovery. "I have been using it for some time," she wrote, "and the awful cough has almost gone. It also saved my little boy when taken with a severe bronchial trouble." This matchless medicine has no equal for "throat and lung troubles." Price 50c a bottle. Guaranteed by all druggists.

The American Born Princess. My father, Prince Napoleon Lucien Charles, was in exile in the United States, and so it happened that I was born in America on the borders of the Delaware. I came into the world with the last sigh of the old year—that is to say, at midnight on the 31st of December, 1833. I have said that my father was in exile. When he was eleven years old his mother left Naples with her four children—two boys and two girls—and retired to the Chateau de Frohsdorf, taking the title of Comtesse de Lipona—Napoli transposed. There my father lived till he was joined by his uncle, the Emperor Napoleon's eldest brother, King Joseph, who on the fall of the first empire had retired to the United States and taken a lovely place near Bordentown, N. J., where he lived for eleven years as Count de Surville. It was at Bordentown that I entered this sorry world, my father having in 1831 married a Miss Carolina Georgina Fraser of Scotch origin, descending from the old family of Lovat—Princess Caroline Murat's "Memoirs."

A Shock to Vanity. "My wife gave me a birthday present that has a tendency to take the conceit out of any man who thinks he's good looking," said the man who shaves himself. "I confess that I have all along had a sort of sneaking idea that I had a little more than my share of manly beauty; that when it came to a showdown I was there with the goods. But not any more. I'm cured. And my wife's present did it. What was it? Why, simply one of those shaving glasses that magnify three times. The first time I used it I got a view of my face that rather startled me. Every blemish, every wild hair under the skin, every open pore, all the minute ugliness that isn't apparent to the naked eye—these things confronted me in all their magnified repulsiveness. I used the glass just once and then accidentally dropped it down the air shaft to the basement below. I don't want to look like a monstrosity every time I shave myself."—New York Times.

The Addition. "What makes you act so grumpy this morning, Dobkins?" "Had an addition to my family?" "What? Why, you ought to be ashamed to be gloomy over that! To think that a normal human being should be angry because of the advent of such a cherub! Do you actually grudge a place in your happy home to an innocent creature fresh from heaven, bringing with it the very fragrance of those celestial realms? Do you greet with an unwelcoming chill a small epitome of all purity and sweetness given into your keeping as a priceless though undeserved treasure by a too benevolent Providence? A lovely copy of what fancy feigns the angels to be like—a tiny shred of grace and glory snatched from the?"

A Cow For a Life. The Ober Gabelhorn is a peak notorious for the dangerous cornices which decorate its upper ridges. Of many accidents reported in connection with it perhaps the most remarkable, says G. D. Abraham in "Swiss Mountain Climbs," was the adventure which befell an amateur and his young guide. In passing along the dangerous final cornice it suddenly gave way under the amateur, and he was falling through space to a certain destruction. The guide at the other end of the rope seemed in hopeless plight, but with astounding presence of mind he flung himself down the opposite side of the ridge, thus saving two lives. The rope cut deep into the snow above, but held firm. The young guide's name was Ulrich Almer. His reward was a cow.

His Choice of Weapons. In "A Century of English Ballads," a book by Harold Simpson, there is a delightful story of Stephen Incedon, an eminent tenor of other days, whose singing of "Black Eyed Susan" was peculiarly to the people's taste. While staying at a country inn Incedon had quarreled during the evening with an army officer. He imagined he had closed the controversy by going to bed, but the officer, not downstairs, but over his wrongs, thought otherwise. Making his way to Incedon's bedroom, he found the singer fast asleep. When he succeeded in waking him, a matter of some difficulty, the officer demanded satisfaction. "Satisfaction?" murmured Incedon sleepily. "Well, you shall have it." Whereupon he sat up in bed and sang "Black Eyed Susan" in his best style. "There," he said, trying down again, "my singing of that song has given satisfaction to thousands, and it will have to satisfy you." And he turned over and went to sleep again.

West Point Traditions. "It is an interesting fact, often referred to at alumni reunions and in addresses delivered to the cadets at West Point," said a retired army officer, "that one of the most distinguished of the graduates of the academy, who afterward wore the epaulets of a major general, was once a bootblack on the streets of New York, and was plying his trade when he noticed in a newspaper an announcement of a vacancy at the academy for the district in which he lived, and he applied for it. "Another of the traditions," continued the officer, "is that one of the best cadet officers that ever wore the gray was the son of a convict, and, although that fact was known to every one of his comrades, it never made the slightest difference in his social standing. I do not know of any other institution where the same social recognition and the same loyalty of comrades would be displayed."—Washington Herald.

Things Are Changed Now. The Fourth of July, the day of our arrival at Albany, was the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and on our arrival we were told that great preparations were making for its celebration. Our landlord, as soon as he found out who we were, immediately came to us to request that we would excuse the confused state in which his house was, as this was the anniversary day of "American Independence," or, as some indeed more properly call it, "American re-orientation." We were all of us a little surprised at this address, and from such a person. In stances, however, are not wanting of people openly declaring that they have never enjoyed so much quiet and happiness in their own homes since the Revolution as they did when the states were the colonies of Great Britain. Among the planters of Virginia I have heard language of this sort more than once.—From "Travels Through the States of North America," by Isaac Weld, Jr., 1795.

A Wedding Hoax. There have been many foolish hoaxes since the days of Theodore Hook, but few so cruel as one mentioned by Bram Stoker in his book, "Famous Impostors." "A young couple were about to be married in Birmingham when those officiating were started by the delivery of a telegram from London with the message: 'Stop marriage at once. His wife and children have arrived in London and will come on to Birmingham.' The bride fainted, and the bridegroom was frantically perturbed at this summarily being provided with a wife and family. But it was useless—the unhappy man had to make the best of his way through an exasperated crowd full of sympathy for the wronged girl. Inquiry, however, showed her friends that the whole thing was a hoax—possibly worked by some revengeful rival of the man whose happiness had been so unexpectedly deferred."

Found the Word. The late Thomas Lowry of Minneapolis was a great wit and a great story teller as well as a great financier. He needed $1,000,000 one time for one of his railroad enterprises, and he went to New York to get it. On the morning of his arrival a friend met him at the hotel and asked, "What are you doing, Tom?" "I am going downtown to get $1,000,000." "Can you do it?" "My boy," said Lowry impressively, "in the bright lexicon of youth there is no such word as fail." That night Lowry came back to his hotel after a hard day. The same friend met him. "Did you get the million?" he asked. "No," replied Lowry, "I didn't. I opened that bright lexicon of youth, and the word was in it."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Anecdotes of Richter. Dr. Richter was fighting us, we are sure, for telling two rehearsal stories about him. Madam X was singing at a rehearsal and was decidedly out of tune. Dr. Richter stood it as long as he could, then turned to her, "Madam," he said, "will you kindly give the orchestra your A?" At another rehearsal one of the instrumentalists made a mistake. "No," said Dr. Richter; "it goes so (humming)—rum-tum-tarum!" The same player made another mistake. "No, no—rum-tum-tarum!" At the third mistake Dr. Richter momentarily lost patience and cried, "Why do you make so many mistakes, Mr. —?" Then quickly recovering his habitual good humor, "Ah, I know why it is—you like to hear me sing!"—Manchester Guardian.

Magnitude of a million. In some public schools where large halls are available an effort has been made to realize the meaning of a million. They secure 100 large sheets of paper, each about four feet six inches square, ruled in quarter-inch squares. In each alternate square a round black wafer or circle is placed, a little overlapping the square, thus leaving an equal amount of white space between the black spots. At each tenth spot a double width is left so as to separate each hundred spots, ten by ten. Each sheet then holds 10,000 spots, each horizontal or vertical row containing 1,000. One hundred such sheets contain, of course, a million spots, and they would occupy a space 400 feet long in one row or ninety feet long in five rows, so that they would entirely cover the walls of a room about thirty feet square and twenty-five feet high, from floor to ceiling, allowing space for doors, but not for windows. The Bible from Genesis to Revelation is supposed to contain 8,500,000 letters. If every letter in the Bible were a dollar it would about half build a battleship.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Queered Himself. "Absentmindedness is a dreadful drawback to success," said a prominent official. "I know a very absent-minded lawyer. The day he was engaged in a taxicab. On the way to court he overtook the judge plodding along on foot through rain and mud, and he halted the taxicab and invited his honor to ride with him. The judge accepted the invitation, the taxicab duly halted at the courthouse, and the absent-minded lawyer hopped out and ran upstairs to get ready the papers for a petition he was to present. But when the court opened and the petition was presented the judge, who had been so courteous in the cab a few minutes before, now reproached the lawyer coldly and contemptuously. As the poor fellow stood stupefied a critic whispered to him: "Do you know what you did? You ran in and left his honor to pay for the taxicab!"—Washington Star.

Is the World Growing Better? Many things go to prove that it is. The way thousands are trying to help others is proof. Among them is Mrs. W. W. Gould, of Pittsfield, N. H. Finding good health by taking Electric Bitters, she now advises other sufferers, everywhere, to take them. "For years I suffered with stomach and kidney trouble," she writes. "Every medicine I used failed till I took Electric Bitters. But this great remedy helped me wonderfully." They'll help any woman. And they're the best tonic and finest liver and kidney remedy that's made. Try them. You'll see. 50c at all druggists.
