CURIOUS BURIAL CUSTOM.

The Pigeonhole Tombs In Use In the

Cemeteries of Spain. A rather curious and to our ideas somewhat unpleasine custom obtains that of a nest of pigeonholes, often seen in postoffices and similar institutions. Each pigeonhole is a tomb.

When a person dies his relatives hire a pigeonhole for five years, and the remains are placed inside. The end is then sealed up with mortar and a memorial tablet affixed on the outside. The lease of the pigeonhole may be renewed at the end of the five years, but if it is allowed to expire the tomb is unsealed and the bones removed to make way for another tenant.

Needless to say, the plan has some good points. The space taken up by the "pigeonhole cemetery" is comparatively small, as is also the cost of burial. Picturesqueness is, however, conspicuously absent, nor is sentimental grief catered for, as it would be impossible to go and mourn at the grave of a person buried in a pigeonhole so high up that a ladder was needed to reach it. To such as prefer the old fashioned graves the central space of ground is offered, but the pigeonholes are the most popular.-Wide World Magazine.

HOMELY CHILDREN.

Often Develop Into Beauties When the Face is Fully Grown.

Let no parent despair of a plain child. Beauty so far from being "skin deep" largely depends upon the proportion between the different parts of the face, and this depends upon their rate of growth. Before a boy's voice breaks he may have a very defective chin, a serious blemish for our ideal of manly beauty. But that chin may be destined to grow just when the boy's beard be gins to grow and may transform him.

I saw the other day an old school fellow whom I could scarcely recognize so vastly improved was he since his young boyhood by the acquisition of that chin which anatomists tell us is a peculiarity (and therefore a beauty) of our species. Robert Southey was described by his nurse as a "great ugly boy" when he was born, but he grew to be so handsome that Byron said he would be almost content to father Southey's poetry if he might have it's author's head and shoulders. I cannot say what percentage of ugly children turn out handsome later in life, but certainly many do partly because in earlier life the various parts of the face have developed at somewhat unequal rates and partly because of the influence of another factor of beauty, in which Southey was rich. Its old fashioned but familiar name is the soul .- Dr. C. W. Saleeby in Strand Magazine.

LAID THE SPECTER.

The Story of a Ghost With a Trouble Conscience

The following well authenticated ghostly happening is recorded in Jessie Adelaide Middleton's "The Grey Ghost

A lady had taken a furnished house in Suffolk, England, from a widow who had lately lost her son. One day she was sitting in the drawing room when the figure of a boy of about thirteen walked across the room, halted opposite a table on which was some china and began to weep bitterly. When she got up and hastened toward the boy to comfort him he at once vanished. As the same thing occurred repeatedly, the lady wrote to the owner of the house. seeking for some explanation. This was her answer:

"Will you kindly search the table with the china ornaments on it, and if you find sixpence in any of them put it into the poor pag in church? I gave him sixpence to put in the bag the last Sunday he went to church, and instead of putting it in he kept it to spend. He told me about it before he died, but I did not know where he had hidden it." The tenant searched and found the sixpence in a little china jug. She put it into the poor bag-and was never again visited by the apparition.

"Paying Through the Nose." "Paying through the nose" is to be indirectly swindled in a transaction or to pay an exorbitant price for a thing in consideration of long credit. A variant is "to be bored through the nose," "bored" here having the meaning of cheated, deceived: At this instant he bores me with some trick. "Henry VIII.," I. 1, 128.

BEYOND THE TOMB.

Victor Hugo's Views on the Immor tality of the Soul.

Victor Hugo's opinion on the question of life beyond the grave was a remarkable one. The great Frenchman was firmly convinced that he would meet all his friends in a future world. He was equally sure that he had always existed from the antediluvian times. when the Creator placed him on earth. He believed that he would exist forever, inasmuch as he felt in his soul thousands of hymns, dramas and poems that had never found expression. When the atheists would say to him. "The proof that you will not exist in the future is that you did not exist in the past," Hugo would answer: "Who told you I did not exist in the past centuries? You will say that is the legend of the ages. The poet has written, 'Life is a fairy tale twice written.' He might have said a thousand times written. You do not believe in the doctrine of surviving personalities for the reason that you do not recollect your anterior existence. But how can the recollection of vanished ages remain imprinted on your memory when you do not remember a thousand and one scenes and events of your present life? Since 1802 there have been ten Victor Hugos in me. Do you think that I can recall all their actions and all their thoughts?

"The tomb is dark, and when I shall have passed the tomb to emerge into light once more all these Victor Hugos will be almost wholly strangers to me. but it will always be the same soul."

The Montenegrins. It is only in recent years that Montenegrins have begun to appreciate the services of the hospital. Hulme Beaman, after visiting the country in 1889. wrote that the people "take very little care of their children, and only the sound and strong grow up. In after life, too, they are extremely averse to sanitary precautions or medical treatment, and a sick Montenegrin is almost synonymous with a dead man. At least he at once gives himself up and, if he recovers, looks upon it as a curious freak in nature's laws. The few who reluctantly submit to losing an arm or a leg invariably refuse anaesthetics and converse with their friends, smoking a cigarette while the knife and saw are at work."
