The CALL for BETTER SHOES

It is human nature to try and get the biggest value a dollar will buy—we are human—and take just as much pride in buying goods to offer you as you take in satisfying your own needs.

WE HAVE answered the call for better shoes by putting in a complete line of LONGWEAR SHOES—the more you wear them, the better you like them! They are built to fit and give foot comfort from the first time you wear them, and will give longer wear than any other shoes for the same money. We are showing some exclusive patterns in Men's, Women's and Children's shoes this season that are the latest word in style—nobby lasts for the young people and conservative lasts for the more sedate. We can fit you up in any leather your fancy dictates—Patent, Tan, Gun Metal, Vici, White Buck or White Canvas—give us the chance to prove the superior worth of LONGWEAR SHOES!

Henri Rochefort and Beranger.
One finds an interesting link with the past in the fact that Henri Rochefort began his literary career as a poet and in that character presented a poem, together with a letter of introduction, to no less a literary master than Beranger, whose reply, carefully preserved by the distinguished journalist, is interesting.
"Can it be true," Beranger wrote, "that you are only sixteen? If I had written verses so well turned at that age I should indeed have believed that a great destiny was in store for me. But then you college gentlemen are brought up, as it were, in forcing houses, whereas when I was sixteen I hardly knew how to spell. Remember, then, all the devices employed for the development of your faculties and do not be too uplifted by vanity at the prizes of an old rimer, dazzled by your compliments."
And the letter concludes with a commendation to the young applicant to return to his studies and not to challenge serious criticism by premature publication.—Westminster Gazette.

To See Through Paper.
A very remarkable experiment which any one can repeat with very little trouble has been unearthed by a German. Take a piece of paper of such thickness that when it is laid upon a piece of printed matter the characters just show through, but cannot be read. Placing it over a printed sheet, impart to it a circular motion and presto, and to your surprise you will find that now you can read the print below the paper. It is rather difficult to explain this peculiar effect. The explanation offered is that the paper has thin places in it, and by rapidly moving it over the print every part of the printed matter is exposed in turn underneath one or the other of the thin places in the paper, and thus the entire print can be read. However that may be, the experiment is interesting and very simple, requiring for its performance only the simplest means imaginable.—New York Press.

Will G. Richmond, a resident of Ingleswood, Cal., will answer any inquiries about Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. He says further "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has greatly benefited me for bronchial trouble and cough, after I used other remedies that failed. It's more like a food than a medicine." Do not accept a substitute—for sale by all dealers every where. Adv.

Helping Her Mother.
The Youngs had dropped in unexpectedly upon the Baileys just as dinner was about to be served. Mother, who was somewhat disturbed, called Helen aside and explained that there would not be oysters enough to go round and added: "Now, you and I will just have some of the broth. And please do not make any fuss about it at table."
Little Helen promised to be good and say nothing. But when the oysters were served Helen discovered a small one that had been accidentally laid up with her broth. She could not remember any instructions that covered this contingency, so, after studying the situation awhile, she held the oyster up as high as she could on her spoon and piped out:
"Mamma, mamma, shouldn't Mrs. Young have this oyster too?"—New York Globe.

Secret of a Sign Painter.
Sign painters do not usually achieve fame, but there was one in the last century who did achieve a curiously long lived bit of work. This was the man who painted a station sign at Harpers Ferry, shortly after the completion of the railway line to that point. The sign is in possession of a western society of engineers.
For a long time the society endeavored to ascertain who mixed the paint and applied it to the sign, which was placed in position at the Harpers Ferry station about forty years ago. Summer's heat and winter's storms in no way dimmed the luster of the paint used to make the words "Harpers Ferry." They stand out as boldly as the day they were formed by the painter's brush. The wood around the letters has been worn about a sixteenth of an inch by sand beaten against it by fierce winds, but the letters have withstood the elements. It is asserted that no paint manufactured nowadays is equal in durability to that which was applied to the old sign.
For a long time, but without success, the society tried to learn the identity of this humble artist.—Boston Post.

Her Angel Child.
Mother's darling, aged four, was not to be like other boys and learn to use naughty and slangy words. He was not allowed to play with the older boys in the neighborhood for fear his sensitive nature might be shocked at the language they used. One day while mother was busy he slipped over into the next street and played for half an hour with a crowd of older boys. In that half hour he took a complete course in modern language.
On his return mother said:
"Where has my precious been?"
"You should worry and get a wrinkle," he cheerfully replied.
"Dearest, tell mother where you learned such horrible language!" mother exclaimed.
"Aw, good night, shirt," came sweetly from the cupid bow mouth.
Then mother commenced to weep, for she realized that her angel child was just a boy after all.—Kansas City Star.

Henry A. Johnson, a business man of L'Anse, Mich., writes: "For years, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds has been our family medicine. We give it to our children, who like it on account of its pleasant taste. It is a safe cure for coughs and colds." It contains no opiates. For sale by all dealers everywhere. Adv.

Curiosities of Korean Justice.
The Korean judge dispenses justice in the open, and by etiquette only the judge can sit. Every one else must stand, excepting the prisoner and his friends, who are forced to remain in a humble kneeling position with bowed heads. Until quite recently these trials were always very one-sided and shockingly unjust. When a man was brought to a judge, he was taken for granted he was guilty, and if he did not confess he was tortured and made to do so. Witnesses, too, were openly bribed, in fact, giving evidence for or against an accused person meant a living to a portion of the community, and these witnesses naturally favored those who paid best. Punishments varied, if the prisoners were too full and the condemned could not pay a fine they were often given a chance to escape or disappeared by some means. Though these are things of the past, Korean justice, like those of China, possess a poor idea of the sense of justice.—Wide World Magazine.

A Marvelous Escape.
"My little boy had a marvelous escape," writes P. F. Bassians of Prince Albert, Cape of Good Hope. "It occurred in the middle of the night. He got a very severe attack of croup. I luck would have it, I had a large bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. After following the directions for an hour and twenty minutes he was through all danger." Sold by all dealers. Adv.

Avoid Sedative Cough Medicines
If you want to contribute directly to the occurrence of capillary bronchitis and pneumonia, use cough medicines that contain opium, morphine, heroin and other sedatives when you have a cough or cold. An expectorant like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is what is needed. That cleans out the culture beds or breeding places for the germs of pneumonia and other germ diseases. That is why pneumonia never results from a cold when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It has a world wide reputation for its cures. It contains no morphine or other sedative.
