Back up! We're not licked yet.

Swatting Carranza is at least giving the fly a rest.

All aboard for Mex. Free passage for all who will fight.

But Mexico, of course, has forgotten the lesson learned by Spain.

We continue, though, to hear an occasional word about politics.

And the mosquitoes, too, are springing to arms in defense of their inalienable rights.

China, perhaps, approaches some semblance of civilization in this day of slaughter.

War is cutting down the use of liquors in England, but America is hitting the high spots at every jump.

Three of the most desirable things on this earth are peace, a full stomach, and a stuffed pocketbook.

Honesty is the best policy and will take you a long ways, but this very often pulls down the biggest plums.

One-third of the employees of shoe factories in the United States are women. Of course they ought to vote.

No wonder we have so many big paunches in this country. Forty five per cent of the income is spent for food.

We copied it, but it is good: "Drink often brings a man so low that he can't even raise the price of a drink."

The Michigan peach crop, they say, is never a failure. And to be sure, neither are our feminine peaches.

While the men do the fighting in the field wouldn't it be well to let the women stop the fighting at home?

A close friend occasionally loosens up, says an exchange. But most friends, we note, are just beyond the border of closeness.

The woman who diplomatically allows her husband to think he is boss of the ranch will continue herself to rule the roost.

Georgia employs practically all of her county prisoners in the construction of good roads. It's one way of improving them, anyway—the roads, of course.

If given his choice between health, wealth and happiness we don't know of a man on earth who wouldn't scramble for the bunch.

The armies of Europe have suffered one notable set back. They have been backed off the front page in honor of our own little scrap with the buzzards of Mexico.

The Brazilian government has a power boat which develops six million four hundred thousand horsepower, equal, we believe, to power developed by the average American citizen.

The Genuine That Does Not Affect the Head Because of its tonic and laxative effect. LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE is better than ordinary Quinine and does not cause nervousness or dizziness in head. Remember the full name and look for the signature of Dr. W. G. GROVE, INC.

SAD FOURTHS OF JULY.

The saddest Fourth's of July in the history of the nation were those of the years of civil war. The day was no longer a day of rejoicing of a united people, and brother fought brother with a valor never surpassed in the history of the world.

But the independence days of the civil war were not all days of rejoicing for the north. In 1861 Big Bethel had just been fought and had been won by the south, and Ellsworth had been shot while hauling down the Confederate flag in Alexandria.

The Fourth of July of 1862 had also been a gloomy one for the north, for McClellan suffered severely in the Seven Day's battle and had been forced to retreat and change his base of operations.

Dark indeed was the Fourth of July of 1864, and with the exception of the sinking of the Alabama by the Kearsage off the coast of France two weeks beforehand the north had little cause for rejoicing.

OUR NATIONAL HONOR.

This is a time when every citizen of the United States, either native or foreign born, should rally to the flag of his country. Whether it be by the bearing of arms or by the expression of loyalty in sentiment and action, our country should have the undivided support of every person.

We want unity of purpose and of action by a united people and for a united people, and nothing else.

The Mexican leaders appear determined to force us to a conflict of arms, and if it must come it is the duty of every citizen to be a citizen in fact as well as in name.

When the national honor and the protection of the lives and property rights of our people are in jeopardy political considerations and party strife should be relegated to the rear, leaving in its wake a nation welded together by the chains of an unquenchable fire of patriotism.

Our national honor is in the balance today. It must be upheld at any cost and under all circumstances and conditions.

WHERE THE FLAG WAS BORN.

The small two-story house still standing at 239 Arch street, below Third, Philadelphia, has an interesting history. In it the first flag containing thirteen stars and thirteen stripes was made by Mrs. John Ross.

The design for the flag was from a drawing made by George Washington with a pencil, and the flag thus designed was adopted by a resolution of congress on the 14th day of June, 1777. A committee of congress, accompanied by General Washington afterward called upon Mrs. Ross and engaged her to make a flag, from this design.

MAKING TIMES PROSPEROUS.

Prosperity to a considerable degree rests upon the whims of the business interests of the country and upon the people themselves.

If they are optimistic and believe in prosperity and work faithfully to that end, prosperity will be with us, regardless of conditions in other countries.

But if we become pessimistic, and constantly predict disaster and force ourselves to the belief that it is to come, then we are likely to get no more than that which we predict.

A few people through the constant use of their tongues can in time install into the minds of others the same atmosphere of gloom that pervades them, and this is spread to others, and yet others, until communities and states and whole nations suffer from the effect.

But prosperity can be made, if we want it. It will come, if we seek it. It will remain, if we nurse it.

We should talk prosperity, feel prosperity, and act prosperity, if we would have prosperity, for in no other way will we meet up with the favors of the gods.

It is up to you, to every citizen, to work for prosperity in this community, for it is an almost universal rule of men that we receive in proportion as we do

Mr. Cochran is not a Candidate.

Editor The Times: With your kind permission I would like to get a few facts before the people of this county, through the columns of your paper.

I want to state in the outset that I am not a candidate for any office, and not asking the suffrage of the dear people at this time. I want to mention one thing in particular that has been in a dormant condition, so to speak, in this county for a good many years.

From campaign year to campaign year we have heard would-be representatives say from stump to stump what they intended to do if the dear people would send them to represent their county in the general assembly.

The examinations will be held at the court house on Friday, July 14th, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

It has happened in the history of our county that these positions have not been filled by our boys, and the vacant places awarded to other counties.

I am making this appeal to the boys of Clarendon county, and shall appreciate it if each reader of your paper will make a point to see that some enterprising, energetic boy of your acquaintance be put in touch with this notice.

Respectfully, E. J. Browne, County Supt. of Education.

"Israel" Angel of Music.

Israel or Israfil, in Mohammedan mythology, was the angel of music, who possesses the most melodious voice of all God's creatures.

I want to stress up that I have been guilty along with the rest of the citizenship of giving him my full share of cursing.

Well, says some one, I think he is guilty and should be put out of office for not performing his duties.

Friends, we are all mistaken, he is only human and has had us in a good deal of trouble. He has done fully as well as any of the rest of us could have done.

I have heard different people in discussing the road question say what about the coming tax?

Helped by Tanlac. "It would be a hard matter to estimate the good Tanlac has done me," said W. Day Barrett, 2615 Broadway Street, one of the best known men in Savannah.

"I've been a little better than a nervous wreck for three years," he continued, "and have been treated by no less than fifteen doctors right here in Savannah."

"I suffered with headaches and neuritis and my stomach was in bad condition all the time and it seemed like I couldn't get anything that would see me in order or enable me to digest my food."

"I had a Madison avenue car stopped at Seventy-ninth street and a pretty young woman in blue climbed aboard. She took the one vacant seat, looking aggressively about her, and crossed her legs. Blue silk ankles, about twenty inches of each, were revealed."

"The possessor of the blue silks blushed. She stared at the prim couple. Not a word was spoken. Smiles flashed on one face and then another. 'The girl broke the ice.'"

"'Honest,' she said, with a Harlem accent, 'why doncha mind your own business? Mr. O. B.—Mindur own business, see? This is a free country, ain't it? And I guess I can do what I please.'—Baltimore Star."

CELESTIAL SMILED AT LAST

But It Was Not Because His Hair Had Been Pulled and His Nose Tweaked.

Because he refused to smile and look pleasant when commanded to, Charles Chang, an Alhambra Chinese, had his hair pulled, his nose tweaked and both eyes discolored by A. B. Mills, who the police say had imbibed freely, says an Alhambra dispatch to the Los Angeles Times.

Mills and the Chinese were both passengers on a late car out of Los Angeles. Mills was in a happy frame of mind and favored each of the passengers with a benign grin.

Chang was probably thinking of a bad business week, for his conduct was long, solemn and mournful, and when Mills grinned at him the celestial only looked the more forlorn.

Chang didn't see anything laughable about the hair pulling, so he continued to look sad. Then Mills grabbed the flat oriental nose between his fingers and tweaked it until Chang belatedly for mercy, but did not smile.

As the car reached Barfield and Main streets Mills decided on one last superhuman effort to get a smile from Chang, so he smashed him two hard blows in the face. Just then Marshal Parker boarded the car and took Mills and his victim into custody.

Judge Northrup placed Mills under a heavy bond to appear before him for trial in the morning and then—Charles Chang smiled.

Nothing to Apologize For. Blue Silk Ankles Merely Wanted the Other Passengers to "Mind Their Own Business."

A Madison avenue car stopped at Seventy-ninth street and a pretty young woman in blue climbed aboard. She took the one vacant seat, looking aggressively about her, and crossed her legs. Blue silk ankles, about twenty inches of each, were revealed.

Prim, mid-Victorian aspect. They cast prim glances at the blue stockings, and two mid-Victorian sniffs chilled the air. Simultaneously the men lost interest in their morning newspapers.
