WE ARE NOW READY!

WE take this means of announcing to our friends that our Ginneries at Manning and Summerton are now in operation and prepared to give you the best possible service.

NO ADVANCE IN PRICE.

NotWithstanding the tremendious advance in the price of bagging and ties, we are ginning and covering cotton for the same price we charged last year. We purchased our bagging and ties early and are giving our customers the benefit.

GOVERNMENT STANDARD GRADES.

For the benefit of our customers, we have at each office a full set of GOVERNMENT STANDARD GRADES. By comparing a sample of your bale with these grades, you can know absolutely what your cotton will grade before putting it on the market.

COTTON SEED.

Our object in operating ginneries is primarily to get a supply of seed for our mill at Manning. The price of seed this year will probably average higher than ever before in our history. We will at all times pay as much for seed as the price of products will justify, and we solicit a large share of your patronage.

HOT WATER BED IS RESTFUL

Four Hours' Sleep in Bathtub Said to Be Equal to Eight of Usual

Sleeping in a bath tub full of water kept at blood temperature is claimed by some physicians to give the required amount of rest in half the time that sleeping in a bed requires, Popular Science Monthly says. In other words, four hours' sleep in a bathtub filled with water at the proper temperature—and always maintained at that temperature-will result in the exact amount of restfulness that eight hours in bed will give.

The explanation is that warm water completely relaxes the nerves, which ordinary sleep does not necessarily do. The most difficult part of this treatment is in maintaining the water at a constant temperature, and for the purpose of accomplishing the result a middle western manufacturer has recently brought out on the market a thermostatic water-control apparatus, which, as its name implies, maintains the water at any desired temperature. In practice, the patient climbs into a bath tub filled with water, his head protruding through a hole in a rubber blanket, which is strapped around the edges of the tub. Water constantly flows in at one end of the tub and out at the other.

For the harried business man, who complains that his working day is too short, such a sleeping couch as this should have a distinct appeal. He should be willing to rest four hours at Many Reasons Advanced for Cases of Truancy Reported in the Schools of the Country.

The average public-school truant is a physical defective and has an abnormal blood pressure, equal to that of a man of twenty-five. This is the conclusion reached after a scientific study of eighty typical truants in New York city.

Only seven of the group were found free from physical drawbacks, which the investigators enumerate as follows: Bad teeth, 73; poor vision, 17; defective nutrition, 21; trouble with their feet, 20; tobacco users, 60; alcohol drinkers, 19. Those who did not breath right made up 10 per cent of the 80 truants; enlarged tonsils, 10 per cent; difficult hearing, 7 per cent;

heart ailment, 5 per cent. As to high blood pressure among the truants, this was verified by examination of inmates at the parental school. There the boys, on admission, almost uniformly show an abnormal pressure which usually is reduced to the normal after two or three months' stay in the institution. According to the school authorities, 49 per cent of the pupils have something the matter with their teeth. Truancy is due not only to physical defects, the investigators found, but is chargeable to poor digestion, crowded classes, improperly trained teachers, lack of special studies and

Compared with past decades, the increase in mortality from the early breaking down of these organs is very marked. The records of the last census show that the increase continues in the younger as well as the older age groups. This points to the shortening of the valuable productive period of life. These indications are well attested. They cannot be disposed of by the easy process of denying the statistics without investigation. Nor can the extraordinary increase in cancer be explained in this convenient way. The early breaking down of these important organs points to a decline in the vitality of our people in the mature and most useful period of their lives, and presents a phase of the problem meriting the most careful study and

TWO HABITS THAT ARE BAD

May at First Appear Insignificant, But Really Are Dangerous to the Health.

The practice of licking stamps and gummed envelope flaps, as well as that of sucking the end of the lead pencil. is very unsanitary indeed. As everyone should know, the glue used on stamps and envelope flaps is made of refuse products, consisting of the bones and hoofs of animals which may or may not have been diseased. The stamps and envelopes themselves are made of all sorts of rags, which, in the course of their transformation into paper, are handled by all sorts and conditions of people. We never know whether it is a clean or dirty pair of hands that has handled a stamp or envelope just before we purchase it. There have even been cases of poisoning from the stamp-licking practice. Fortunately, they are rare, but it suffices to say that the ordinary sterilizing process in their making does not necessarily kill a form of germs that are poisonous. The safest plan is to moisten the gummed surfaces on a small wet sponge and take no risks. Children should be carefully warned about the indiscriminate sucking and chewing of pencils. This seems to be a habit of childhood that is hard to overcome. The lead in a pencil is poisonous, and so is the point, and the wood furnishes a convenient lodging place for all sorts of germs.

Each year the city of Gloucester, England, presents the king with a pie. For many centuries, until the year 1834. A number of miniature yacht races are already scheduled as a part of the Fourth of July celebration of several public schools.
