THE LESSON OF THE STRIKE

There is a lesson in the proposed great railroad strike which it would be well for us as a nation to learn, and to profit by.

Probably a very small part of the membership of the brotherhoods, when they voted on the proposition to strike, had ever given serious thought to the far reaching effects of their action should it come to an actual walkout.

One great trouble with us is our wastefulness in our daily lives, in our homes, in our business occupations. We have never learned the lesson of economy.

In the great crisis, which has been for a time averted, however, the country has at last been awakened to the enormous power of organized labor.

Few of the masses of the people had ever realized how fully were the railroads the arteries through which coursed the commercial life blood of the nation.

But now that we are at last awake to the real significance of the situation that confronts us, we should profit by our knowledge.

Yes, we know all the rights of labor, and of that proud boast that we are all free born American citizens.

We must recognize the fact that the railroads are an absolute necessity to national life; that this now a moral and patriotic duty incumbent upon not only the managers, but upon the employees as well, to keep the roads in operation.

They have become a part of the machinery that moves a nation, and must bear the responsibilities that accompany the position.

We must realize that for the railroad man to quit his post, unless a competent substitute is at hand to assume his duties, is as reprehensible as a violation of train orders and fraught with as great peril to the public safety.

The soldier guards our homes and our honor; the railroad guards our very life. He should not destroy that which he guards.

A united nation should insist that these men who thus bear the burdens of our comfort, prosperity and safety should be fairly dealt with. The thousands of men who daily and hourly expose their lives to the perils of the rails that we may prosper and live in comfort should have the full weight of our influence and sympathy toward securing a square deal. The roads should be made to feel that an injustice to them is an affront to the nation.

Also all that lot of land with the improvements thereon, situate on the North-east corner of Main and Dukes Street, in the Town of Summerton, Clarendon County, State of South Carolina, measuring and containing in front on Main Street twenty-five feet, more or less, and in depth one hundred feet more or less, said lot of land being bounded as follows: North by lot of W. R. Coskrey, above described, East by lot of J. W. Broadway, South by Main Street, and West by Dukes Street.

Purchaser to pay for papers. E. B. GAMBLE, Sheriff of Clarendon County.

Constipation The Father of Many Ills. Of the numerous ills that afflict humanity a large share start with constipation. Keep your bowels regular and all disease will be avoided.

Can this be done without government action? Possibly not. If such action should be taken, then the sooner it is taken the better. Another such question and uncertainty would do untold harm to our American loves.

Of course our Mexican cousins will be good after they have been turned over Uncle Samuel's knee and spanked into decency.

We haven't a shadow of a doubt but that the agreement ultimately reached between the American and Mexican commissioners will go into history as just another "scrap of paper."

Have you aired your views yet on the result of the primaries throughout the country. Of course everybody knows just how it happened, and everybody is trying to tell everybody else what everybody already knows.

The death angel visited the home of Mrs. C. M. Jenkins, of Fairfield county, and taken the dear husband from their midst. He had been in ill health for about nine months, and at last was called to that great beyond.

He leaves to mourn his loss, a loving wife and three children, Sarah aged 5 years; William aged 3 years, and little girl 7 days old. Also a host of friends and relatives who will greatly miss him.

Dearest brother thou hast left us, And thy loss we deeply feel, But 'tis God that has bereft us, To His will we must surely yield.

God in His wisdom has recalled, The boon His love has given, Though the body slumbers here, The soul is safe in heaven.
