AT THE PASTIME.

Dr. Witmer Stone, Curator of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, has been delivering some lectures on the economic value of our wild birds before the University of South Carolina, the Charleston Museum, the Leconte Scientific Society, etc., under the auspices of the National Audubon Society for the Protection of Birds.

Dr. Stone is now visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Shope of Manning and at the request of some of his friends here he has agreed to exhibit his series of colored lantern slides of wild birds and their nests in this town. Mr. R. D. Plyler has kindly offered the use of the Pastime Theatre for the purpose and the exhibition will be given on Thursday evening, May 17th at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Stone's pictures are all from photographs of wild birds taken in the woods and fields. He will explain how such photographs are taken and describe the habits of some of our common birds showing why it is important for us to protect them and encourage them to nest about our houses and farms.

This exhibition is entirely free and Dr. Stone would be glad to have anyone present who is interested in the subject in anyway. School children will be especially welcome as it is upon the coming generation that we must rely to provide for birds as well as all our national resources the protection which they deserve. Birds are nature's greatest check upon the increase of all kinds of destructive insects, and at the present time when we are all striving to make the most out of our crops it is especially important that we should realize the important part that birds play in protecting them from insect pests. Dr. Stone's pictures are among the finest that have been taken of wild birds and those interested in photography will find them particularly attractive.

WANTED HOME!

Died at, twelve o'clock Thursday night, little Kimmie Player the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Player. His health was good nearly all of his life. When he was about a month old, he had a bad case of sore eyes and developed a case of serious disease, which caused his death in a few days.

The funeral was conducted by his father and mother's pastor, the Rev. Dukes, on Friday afternoon at three o'clock by the grave in the Turbeville cemetery.

Kimmie was in his second year of age and was a bright little angel. He is in his Heavenly home and all we got to do is to work for our Master which is our "Lord Jesus."

We extend to the bereaved parents, sister, and no brother, he was the only darling son, our heartfelt sympathy and mourn with them. God only knows best when to call one of his own home, and when the angel comes to our home for one of His jewels, we should feel it a blessing to know that He has a nobler work for them to do, so let us try to realize that as we part with the loved one and friends he has gone a little while before us, walking the golden streets in the New Jerusalem, and is now celebrating the greatest event at his spiritual life. The family has the deepest sympathy.

"Little Children, Little Children Who love their Redeemer, All his pure one, all the bright ones, His loved ones and His own, Like the stars of the morning His bright crown adorning, They shall shine in His likeness Bright gems of his own."

HOW TO FEED COTTONSEED MEAL TO HORSES

A reader writes: "I want to use cottonseed meal for feeding horses and mules, please give me the proportions in which these should be put with corn, or with corn and oats, or with oats."

Again we are asked to do the impossible. No one can state the proportions in which these should be mixed, without knowing the kind of hay to be used and, as influencing the case to a lesser degree, the kind of work the animals are doing. The amount of cottonseed meal should be much larger if any grass hay, or corn fodder is used, than when the hay is a legume. In fact, with clover, cowpea, or soy bean hay no cottonseed meal is required to balance the ration.

First, we will suggest proportions when a non-leguminous hay is used. That is, when grass hays, corn fodder, etc., constitute the roughage.

- 1 part of cottonseed meal by weight to 5 parts of corn.
- 1 part of cottonseed meal; 4 parts corn; 4 parts oats.
- 1 part cottonseed meal; 10 parts oats.

In case legume hays are used, we would not advise the use of any cottonseed meal when oats constitute as much as one-half the grain ration. When corn is the only other concentrate used we would suggest one part of cottonseed meal to 10 parts of corn, with any of the legume hays. All these proportions are by weight. Measuring is not sufficiently accurate, although a given measure full of a given mixture may be weighed and afterward, in feeding, this measure may be used for giving out the feed, but we can only use weight as a measure in discussing these matters.—The Progressive Farmer.
