BULL ASSOCIATIONS

IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Clemson College, September 21.—On July 1st, 1920, there were seventeen cooperative bull associations in the State. The eleven Jersey Associations own 39 bulls and the six Guernsey Associations own 27 bulls. There are 701 members of bull associations owning a total of 2381 cows and 66 bulls. About one-third more cows are bred to these bulls than are owned by members, which means about three thousand cows that will be bred to association bulls during 1920. Of the associations now in operation one was organized in 1916, three in 1917, two in 1918, six in 1919, and five in 1920.

It is easy to figure just what this means to the milk cow population of South Carolina by assuming that half of the calves sired by association bulls, or 1500, will be heifers. Even if this proportion does not hold and 300 is allowed for deaths and other losses, there will be 1200 heifers. Since the bulls owned by the associations are extra well bred, coming from ancestry with production and show ring records, and since they give every promise of producing better calves than are the cows to which they are bred, these 1920 heifers are equal to importing into the State from dairy sections 48 carloads of 25 head each of high grade milk cows. At present prices these heifers at two years old would cost about $150.00 each, or a total of $180,000.00. Another advantage of raising our own milk cows is that at present South Carolina has very little contagious abortion or tuberculosis among its native milk cows, while shipments from dairy sections are very sure to bring some animals infected with these two dreaded diseases, which can soon spread to our home-raised cattle.

Bull associations have proved practical and economical in South Carolina. They are not a theoretical scheme brought down from some Northern dairy section. They are of special practical value here in the cotton section, where each farm keeps only a few cows to supply the family with dairy products.

During 1919 South Carolina had more bull associations than any other state in the Union. This lead should be kept. A good purebred dairy bull is needed in every community in the State. An Association can be organized in any county. The county agricultural agent or the Dairy Division, Extension Service, Clemson College, S. C., will furnish information and assistance.

STORM IS BREWING

Washington, Sept. 27.—The weather bureau announced today: There were indications this morning of a disturbance over the east central portion of the Gulf of Mexico."

NOTICE, MEETING TONIGHT

Tonight at the New Zion School house, there will be held at community meeting at which will be presented various phases of community work. Miss Ruth Moore, County Nurse, will give a health talk, Miss Minnie McFaddin will discuss adult schools and Mrs. S. O. Plowden will tell of Home Demonstration work. Mr. H. C. Curtis the speaker of the evening, will take as his topic community work and spirit in its broadest and most humane aspect; Mrs. R. T. Gibbons, who is in charge of the adult school work in New Zion and is also local chairman of the Nursing Committee, will act as chairman of the meeting.

Within the next week Miss Moore expects to give tuberculosis talks illustrated by motion picture slides at Manning and Gable.

PUBLIC HEALTH NOTES

On last Tuesday Miss Moore gave three health talks. In the morning she spoke to the members of the junior home demonstration class at the Gable School. Later she talked to the junior club at the New Zion school, and in the afternoon most interestingly to the women's club on tuberculosis, its prevention and cure.

TRACTORS AND Boll Weevil

The doubting Thomases have disappeared. The boll weevil is here. How much damage he will do this season is a question. Farmers all over the county are wondering what to do and how to prepare for next year.

All authorities agree that the boll weevil should be plowed under deep as early as possible.

Let the Fordson Tractor help you. It will plow 14 in. deep if you wish. Will plow more acres per day than 3 men and three teams.

Let us demonstrate this on your land.
