MANNING, S. C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1921

There is no law to prohibit the fight to prohibit prohibition.

Men do very little bragging these days. It is more aristocratic to blow.

Many a man blesses the day he married his wife. She furnishes the meal ticket.

The fact that you do not understand your neighbor at all does not worry him in the least. You have his sympathy.

The man who has more money than he knows how to spend has no trouble in finding a willing teacher.

Public office is a public trust, but our selections are not always trustworthy.

Senator Spencer of Missouri is quite justified in owning and operating a Lizzie. It gets his name in the funny columns.

Dictator Lenin finds that ruling the illiterate bolsheviks of Russia is a comparatively easy matter, but that feeding them entails more brains than he has been able to inject into his "government." They are starving and appealing to America for food.

Mr. Rockefeller has so many millions or billions that he is able to dominate about everything and everybody he comes in contact with. But all of his wealth was as naught to that skunk that calmly took up his residence on the John D. golf course and put the players to ignominious flight.

We learn from the secretary of the treasury that cleaner money is to be put into circulation. That is pleasing. When we get it it will be still more pleasing. But until we do, just keep right on sending in the dirty old stuff and we'll be eternally pleased.

The person who builds character builds fortune as well, not only in the material things of this world, but in that spiritual life to which our earthly existence is a mere prelude.

GIVE US LIGHT

The people of this country are in a maze of doubt and mystery over the millions of interest money that is due and to become due us on the ten billions of dollars owed to us by the allied governments of Europe.

It is the people's money, and yet the people are the last ones who are being afforded any light upon the subject. The London Times is considered the world over to be a truthful paper, and the Times in its financial news makes the positive statement that arrangements are under way whereby the payment of interest is to be delayed for a period of fifteen years.

Our secretary of the treasury states otherwise, but at the same time he pays out nearly thirty-five millions of dollars to the British government in order to cancel a claim for transporting American troops and freight to France in British ships, when by every rule of right and justice he should have caused that claim to be credited against the billions the British government owes us. Thirty-five millions would do wonders for the shamefully neglected sick and disabled ex-service men in this country, or it would furnish employment and relief to many of our idle millions of men who are facing destitution and want, but it was not used for either of these purposes, or for any other legitimate American purpose, so far as we can see.

Frankly, we do not understand it, and neither do the people. We disclaim any intention or desire to attack the administration, for this is a time when we need cooperation in readjustment rather than criticism and discord, but unless the secretary of the treasury can furnish a legitimate and all-satisfying reason for his surprising and amazing action he is laying the administration open to serious attack from republicans as well as democrats. We are Americans first, and partisans afterwards. Give us light.

WALKS 550 MILES

Jacksonville, Fla., July 26.—How a mother and her two sons, 14 and 16 years old, walked nearly 600 miles in order that the mother might for the last time see her sister, fatally ill, was revealed today after the funeral of Mrs. W. C. Chambers, of this city.

Mrs. Chambers became ill several months ago and physicians said it was impossible for her to recover. Her sister, Mrs. Estelle Morse, of Atlanta, Ga., advised of her condition, determined to see her once more, but could not afford to make the trip by rail. Three months ago Mrs. Morse and her boys began the journey afoot and ten weeks later finished the approximately 550 miles between Atlanta and Jacksonville. They were with Mrs. Chambers two weeks before the end.

WHEN DOES THE PROHIBITION START?

New York, July 26.—Viscount Northcliffe who is enjoying the lure of the metropolis for a short while before resuming his trip toward the Far East, has joined the list of foreign personages, who exhibit a sense of humor in discussing matters appertaining to the eighteenth amendment and its enforcement. Asked what he thought of prohibition, he said:

"Take me to a place where there is prohibition and I'll tell you what I think about it."

Which recalls what a Rumanian prince on a recent visit to New York, asked "when does prohibition begin?"

YOUNGER MEN WANTED

Washington, July 26.—All federal prohibition agents appointed in the future must be on the sunny side of fifty, under orders issued tonight by commissioner Haynes.

State directors were notified by the commissioner that hereafter the maximum age limit for appointment would be fifty years, unless it was shown that a man "is possessed of unusual qualifications."

FINE FOR FAILURE TO PAY TAX

New York, July 26.—Herbert T. Martin, treasurer of Martin & Martin, Inc., dealers in leather goods, was fined ten thousand dollars today by Federal Judge Sheppard for defrauding the U. S. out of luxury taxes. The corporation was fined two thousand dollars. Pleas of guilty were entered in behalf of both.

DUBLIN IS STILL SILENT

London, July 26.—(By the Associated Press.) The uncanny silence Dublin maintains relatives to the British government's proposals would create uneasiness but for the known fact that the Sinn Fein leaders are engaged in daily discussion of these proposals, which, as Austen Chamberlain the government leader, revealed in the House of Commons today. This was interpreted to mean that they offer a basis for continued negotiations.

No reply has yet been received by the prime minister from Mr de Valera. According to reports current in Dublin, what is called the "rock of Ulster" is the great obstacle which must be taken into consideration.

It is clear from the statements of Lord Birkenhead, Lord High Chancellor, in the House of Lords, and Mr. Chamberlain in the Commons today that the government has not lost hope of a settlement.

The former announced that the government was hopeful it would be able to make a statement at an early date. Mr. Chamberlain went further, clearly indicating that the government expected a late autumn session in order to pass legislation regarding peace in Ireland.

TO STUDY PROHIBITION

New York, July 26.—Two members of the British Parliament started today a first-hand investigation to ascertain how prohibition is working out in the United States. The two Charles Siteh, member for Kingswinford, Staffordshire, and John E. Davison, member for Smethwick, Birmingham, said they would report the findings to the Labor party, of which they are members.

Both took occasion to deny predictions of American reformers that England will be dry within ten years.

GOVERNOR SMALL TO SURRENDER

Springfield, Ill July 26.—Governor Small, from the office of one of his counsel in Chicago tonight offered to surrender himself without resistance to Sangamon County authorities on warrants charging him with embezzlement of State funds while treasurer of Illinois.

Sheriff Henry Mester announced late tonight that he had received the following message from Chicago: "to the Sheriff of Sangamon County, Springfield, Ill.:

"This is to advise you that Gov. Small is ready to submit to you or any of your deputies, or to the Sheriff of Cook County, at any time tomorrow Wednesday, July 27, in the office in Chicago, Ill., in submission to the capias which I understand Judge Smith has directed you to execute on the Governor. In order to conserve all parties' rights, please advise me when you will come to Chicago."

(Signed) "Albert Fink, Counsel for Governor Len Small."

HOME-MADE AMERICAN CHEESE GOOD DISH THAT KEEPS WELL

Americans Do Not Always Appreciate Cheese as a Food: Those Who Have Surplus Milk Can Make Cheese with Little Trouble.

American or Cheddar type cheese is palatable, rich in food value, and it may be kept for long periods without refrigeration. Every housewife knows of a number of palatable dishes made from cheese which serve as a change in the ordinary diet. As it may be made at any time of the year where there is a surplus of milk, cheese making offers an exceptionally advantageous means of conserving for later use milk which might otherwise be wasted, suggest specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture.

Approximately five or six hours are required from the time the milk is placed in the vat for heating until the cheese is put into the hoop for final pressing, and during that time it is not necessary for the operator to give it his entire attention. From this point until the end of two weeks only a few minutes each day are required to turn the cheese. After that time the cheese is turned only twice a week until fully cured. Best results have been obtained in regions where the nights are cool throughout the summer and where cool water may be obtained.

Approximately 10½ pounds of cheese are obtained from 100 pounds, or 11 2-3 gallons, of milk containing 4 per cent butter fat. It is important to have fresh, clean, whole milk for cheese-making. If milk is to be kept over night it should be cooled to a temperature of 60 F. or lower, and held at that temperature until used. The milk should not be held more than 12 hours, as it is very important that it be perfectly sweet.

A wash boiler, large kettle, or tub may be used for cheese-making, but if cheese is to be made frequently a regular cheese vat is more satisfactory. A cheese vat is so constructed that hot or cold water may be circulated around the milk for regulating the temperature. Control of temperature throughout the manufacturing process, therefore, should be used. The milk is heated in the vat, or wash boiler, to a temperature of 86 F., at which it is held until after the curd has been cut.

Use Rennet to Curdle the Milk. Cheese made without the addition of coloring matter is light yellow or straw color; if a deeper shade of yellow is desired, a small quantity of coloring is put in the milk. Regular cheese color should be used, and not butter color, as the latter colors the fat but not the curd. Rennet is added in the proportion of one-third ounce, or two teaspoons, to 100 pounds of milk. First dilute the rennet with a pint of cold water, then stir it in thoroughly, and leave the milk and container undisturbed for 30 minutes. Cut the curd when sufficiently firm; do not crush or break it. Stir the curd gently from 15 to 20 minutes. Heat it at the rate of 2 in 5 minutes until the temperature reaches 100 F. Stir it while heating. Allow the curd to remain in the whey at 100 F. until firm and until enough acid has developed. Do not let the curd mat together. Sufficient acid has developed when the curd applied to a hot iron will form strings one-fourth to one-half inch long. The curd is firm enough if a handful of it pressed together between the hands falls apart readily when the pressure is released. Draw off the whey and put the curd on a draining rack which has been covered with a muslin cloth. Do not let the curd form into pieces larger than a hickory nut. Keep the curd warm while on the rack.

When the curd forms strings from three-fourths to one inch long on a hot iron, add salt at the rate of 3 ounces for 10 pounds of curd. Have the curd at a temperature of about 90 F. Put it in a hoop lined with cheesecloth and apply pressure gently. Cheese hoops may be obtained from dairy supply houses. The cheesecloth is left on the finished cheese. After one and one-half hours the cheese should be taken out and dressed, that is all wrinkles are taken out of the cheesecloth which covers it. When the cheese has been properly dressed it should be put back in the press and full pressure applied for 24 hours. Then the cheese is ready for the curing room where it remains at a temperature between 50 and 60 F. for two weeks.

The cheese should be turned daily in the curing room until it is paraffined to prevent it from drying too much, and also to prevent molding. The paraffin is heated to a temperature of 240 F. and the cheese rolled in it. After this has been done, the cheese need be turned only twice a week. Cheese may be cured enough to be eaten when six weeks old; the flavor, of course, is then quite mild. Farmers' Bulletin 1191, Making American Cheese on the Farm, gives many details of the process and equipment for cheese making.
