The report from Manning that tobacco bags and trash were being used as a fertilizer has given a new idea for economy to the farmers. An analysis of this material shows it to contain about two per cent of nitrogen, about eight per cent potash, and about five per cent phosphoric acid. Average this material it would be worth as a fertilizer about $20.00 a ton, provided the land to which it is to be applied is in need of potash.

ORCHARD AND COVER CROP MEETINGS

Beginning with a meeting at New Zion at 10:30 Tuesday, August 24, I will hold eight farmers meetings at different points in the county during the week. I have attempted to schedule these meetings at places that will cover the entire county as nearly as possible. I am unable to keep the speaker from Clemson College for more than four days at this time, so it will be impractical for us to schedule any additional meetings for the present.

I want Clarendon county to make a start toward better home orchards. We know that it is now imperative that we feed ourselves if we are to make any success whatever with our farming operations. I am confident that a good orchard on every farm is one of our greatest needs. There are those in the county who are interested in commercial peach growing, and I think it will be advisable for them to attend one of these meetings.

Another feature that will be gone into, and by one who knows his subject, is that of truck farming in this county.

These subjects will be handled by Mr. Geo. P. Hoffman, Extension Horticulturist of Clemson College.

One of our soils greatest needs is humus or vegetable matter. This can to a great degree be supplied by growing winter cover crops. I shall have something to say on this subject.

Everyone is invited—we shall be glad to have a good attendance of ladies at these meetings, and I think the talks will interest them.
