arrangements for some one to look after him.

On they go to see the dear little baby who for months past has been so ill—he is so much better, it does one good to see him try to smile; and while the nurse is there she is teaching the mother the best way to give a bath, telling her the amount and kind of clothing which he needs, and how to cook certain foods which he is allowed to have.

Next they stop where the mother is ill with typhoid fever. She too is improving. Though for many weeks she has been ill, she has had good care because when she first became ill the doctor sent for the nurse and asked her to go and teach the daughter how to care for her mother. She explained to the family the need of screens and of killing the flies, of the need for sanitary conditions about the home. Before she leaves she gives typhoid vaccine to all the members of the family according to the doctor's instructions.

She must hurry, there is a meeting which she must attend and give a talk on the Prevention and Care of Tuberculosis, and distribute literature from the State Board of Health in order that all may be educated on this subject.

After the meeting the nurse must go on, a dear little girl is ill her mother is anxious to learn how to bathe and care for her and the proper way to change the bed linen without moving her too much.

Still her day's work is not done. She must see some of the physicians and ask their co-operation in examining the school children. Night is coming on and she must start for home—there is still much to be done but she must hurry if she gets home before dark. She doesn't mind the dark but she is all alone except for "Henry." Back again over twenty miles or more of rough dusty roads, back to her room for a refreshing bath and supper. Tired? Yes, more than tired, but so thankful that it has been given to her the privilege to alleviate pain and to teach some one to "carry on" while she can not be there. Then to bed to regain her strength for the next day's work for she must be up early and a-doing.

Each day brings some new work, some new problem to face and solve, over she goes onward and upward pushing forward toward the goal—health and a normal life for all.

CONFUSION EXISTS, SAYS CORPORATION

Power of Board in Connection With Extension of Agricultural Credit Not Understood

Washington, Sept. 26.—The war finance corporation issued a formal statement tonight reiterating its powers under the recently passed legislation authorizing the extension of credit to agricultural interests, the nature of which the statement said, appeared to be misunderstood in many sections. As a result of the confusion the corporation has received many applications from individuals and even from banks asking for their "share of the billion dollar credit."

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE

What are you doing, Miss Moore? The question is asked so often that it might be well to tell you of a day's work. The following is a memorandum of one of my days this week. This is not a story made to appeal to the public but a fair example of every day. Some days I am holding meetings, some I have conferences and clinics, but every day is full and no day passes without ministering in some way to the sick, trying to help and uplift in every way possible.

They left early, knowing that there was much to be done and many miles to cover. (They, referring to the Red Cross Nurse and her faithful friend, "Henry" Ford). The sun was up, shining and warm, and as they journeyed over the first few miles of bumpy roads the birds sang and flitted here and there and the flowers kept looking and smiling a merry good morning, and the heart of the nurse was light with the joy of being so close to dear old Mother Nature.

Soon they came to a little white house with many lovely flowers in the yard. Here lives the little girl who had her diseased tonsils removed at The Clinic—she is so rosy now—one could scarcely realize that she is the same little girl who a few months ago was so frail. After a short visit in which the nurse gives the mother advice as to the best foods for her family and how to prepare them, tells her of the value of fresh air and sunshine and promises to call again soon, they start on—bump, bump—oh the bumps! but the birds continue to sing and the flowers nod and "Henry" is such a good friend. Now they stop at a very poor dwelling—no flowers here to cheer the sick and give hope of better things. Here is an old man—in bed for many years. No tender hands to minister to his needs (and they are many). Quickly the nurse goes to work and with her sleeves rolled up and her uniform covered with a clean white apron, as gently as she can she gives a cleansing bath, changes his bed and dresses his sores. Her heart is sad as she leaves him knowing that he needs constant care and knowing too that it is impossible for him to have it under present conditions. She will try to make ar-

Much Suffering Caused by Waste Products in the Blood

What Science Knows About the Matter and How It Is Best Treated.

The blood is more important than any of the organs. It is thru the blood that the whole human body is directly or indirectly nourished. The blood gets its nourishment from the intestines. The intestines also contain waste products—undigested foods, acids, gases and refuse, which sometimes get in the blood.

When waste products get in the blood, nature will strive to cast them out. If your resistance is strong enough, nature will probably succeed. But if you are "below par," weak, run-down, and nervous, nature will begin to show signs of distress.

As a result, you will have that feeling of fatigue. You will lack the energy you need for the day's duties and pleasure. Minor ailments will begin to affect you—pimples, black-heads, and boils.

If the waste products are not gotten out of the blood at this point, it is possible a more serious skin eruption or disease will begin to show itself.

It is not infrequent for waste products to settle in the muscles and joints and cause rheumatism.

Listen to nature's warning. Your blood is your fountain source of energy—therefore keep your blood rich and pure.

For over 50 years, thousands and thousands of men and women have relied on S. S. S. to clear their blood of waste products. S. S. S. will improve the quality of your blood by relieving you of the waste products which cause impoverished blood and its allied troubles—skin disorders, rheumatism and a lowered vitality.

Test this Gasoline for Yourself, on the Road

HOWEVER sincere one motorist's statement may be, his experiences with his car cannot be applied exactly to your operation of your car. Most drivers know that individual cars have peculiarities. We do not ask you to use the improved "Standard" Motor Gasoline simply because you have heard that it is the best on the market. We want you to try it for yourself, according to your own requirements. On a basis of results, alone, we would gladly have you decide whether or not you should use it regularly.

"Standard" Motor Gasoline is a light, volatile fuel which enables your car to start easier and run more smoothly. It has extra pulling power. The recent improvements in the product, made possible by the work of our Development Department, have made "Standard" Motor Gasoline the best obtainable.

But remember that the final test of gasoline quality is how it performs in your motor. Try "Standard" Motor Gasoline for yourself under varying road and weather conditions. It will pay you to begin at once.

A great combination is "Standard" Motor Gasoline for power and Polarine for lubrication.
