SOUTH-CAROLINA-GEORGIA BOUNDARY RIGHT SETTLED

Mid-Stream Held to Be Line Where There Are No Islands—Islands Belong to Georgia, Says Court.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The Supreme Court today decided the boundary dispute between Georgia and South Carolina, holding that where there are no islands in the river the line shall be midway between the two States a normal flow stage and that where there are islands the line shall be midway between the islands and the South Carolina shore. The island in the Chattooga River were awarded to Georgia.

The boundary controversy between the two States has prevailed for over a century and became acute when the location of hydro-power sites were injected into it.

Georgia claimed the middle of the three rivers, Savannah, Togaloo and Chattooga, formed the boundary where there were no islands in these streams and that the middle of the stream between the islands and the South Carolina shore marked the boundary in those parts where there are islands. South Carolina claimed that low water mark on the Georgia side was the boundary where there are no islands, and low water mark on the north shore of the islands was the boundary where there are islands, conceding that the islands belonged to Georgia.

The suit was brought by Georgia under a resolution adopted by the Georgia Legislature in 1917. The two States, in an effort to settle the issue by arbitration met at Beaufort, S. C., in 1787, and adopted a pact. Under Article IX, of the confederation subsequently ratified by the two States and by Congress, the boundary was stated to be low water mark on the southern bank of the most northern stream of the Savannah and Togaloo rivers, where those rivers were broken by islands, and the middle of the stream of the two rivers were not broken by islands, and the middle thread of the stream of the southern shores of the Chattooga river, the islands of the Savannah and Togaloo rivers being reserved to Georgia.

BACK GIVES OUT

Plenty of Manning Readers Have This Experience.

You tax the kidneys—overwork them—They can't keep up the continual strain.

The back may give out—it may ache and pain; Urinary troubles may set in.

Don't wait longer—take Doan's Kidney Pills.

Manning people tell you how they act. Ask your neighbor! Mrs. C. M. Taylor, S. Boundry St., Manning, says: "About a year ago I was troubled with kidney complaints. I had terrible backaches and headaches. Nervous spells upset me and my nerves were just a wreck. I felt tired and languid and I suffered from dizziness. Finally I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and bought some at Arant's Drug Store. I can certainly say Doan's did me a wonderful lot of good and quickly relieved me."
