How Busy Mothers Can Make More Kiddies' Clothes---

By Using the New McCall Pattern with "Printed" Pieces for Simpler, Quicker Home Dressmaking.

With such a very little time to sew, busy mothers welcome the coming of the simple new "Printed" Pattern. So this Spring, mothers can spend less time on making Gingham rompers, Chambray or Cotton Crepe play dresses, and Organzie frocks--and yet keep their youngsters better dressed than ever before.

not only makes a simpler pattern but makes it absolutely accurate.

This accuracy in cutting out a dress does away, to a great extent, with the fussy fittings that are so difficult when little girls have to stand still with all Spring outdoors calling.

Mothers have only to decide on how much material the "Printed" pattern requires (it will be the smallest amount possible) and the low priced Dimity, Chambrays, Linon, Cotton Crepe and Gingham in our Yard Goods Section will settle at once the question of a child's wardrobe at a cost of next to nothing. Start now on your Spring sewing!

Just as the sewing machine quickens the stitching of your dress, so the "Printed" Pattern speeds up cutting out and putting it together.

Working with plainly "Printed" pattern pieces is far different from puzzling over perforations of the old-style patterns. "Printing"

New McCall Pattern--"it's printed"--Makes Dressmaking Easier.
