THURSDAY, DEC. 1, 1921.

But how fast the years slip by after one has passed middle age. Those were the words of a Fort Mill man uttered a day or two ago after he had heard a little boy remark that it seemed to him as if it had been ages since Santa Claus came round last year. Time passes for the child as it does for the man of mature years, of course; but in a different way. Their lives are made up of different events, they think different thoughts, the obstacles they meet and overcome or fail to overcome are of a different character, they do not as a rule enjoy the same pleasures and while the things that bring sorrow to the one also sometimes bring grief to the other, usually the child's heartaches are fleeting. Not so with his elder, because he realizes that the years left him in which to overcome disappointment and vanished hopes are all too few. Blessings on the little man, barefoot boy with cheeks of tan. Thus runs the opening lines of a little poem we learned years ago when the words made no such appeal to us as they now do. Then we thought it a waste of time to glorify childhood. What cared we for the world, we reasoned, for a helpless little boy in whose welfare no one outside his own family circle was interested? The man was everything, to our childish way of thinking. How we longed to grow big and strong and to be able to take up a man's duties in life. But now we think different thoughts, since time has put behind us almost half a cycle of years, with their numerable pleasures and limited accomplishments standing over against myriad disillusionments and anxious hours that reach mountainous proportions. Where the man or woman who has passed through the shadows of 50 years who would not give any earthly possession to turn back the tables of time and again stand with the light-hearted care-free little boy or girl to whom one seems to pass between the visits of Santa Claus?

The impression seems to be gaining ground throughout the country that little need be expected of the armament conference now in session in Washington. When the conference opened a fortnight ago there was room for hope that the program proposed by Secretary Hughes would be adopted, but as the days pass there is evident from the meager reports allowed the public of the secret sessions of the conference that the chances of the so-called big powers reaching an accommodation along the lines suggested by the United States are growing smaller and smaller. However unpleasant it may be to consider the fact, it is an inescapable fact nevertheless that the fair engagements proposed by this country are no longer taken at their face value when they have to do with international affairs. Having in mind the attitude of the United States toward the League of Nations, Great Britain, without whose assistance the conference will get nowhere, wonders whether our word is as good as our bond. In that country, as in this, there is a universal desire among the people that they be relieved of the burdensome taxation necessary to build mighty battleships and other engines of war; but that country's representatives in the conference have thus far apparently assumed an attitude of hesitancy toward the American proposals lest they entertain Greeks bearing gifts. As with individuals, so with nations. One a country has broken its plighted word, it is no easy matter to reestablish its reputation among other nations. So far as Japan is concerned, it is a matter of no particular consequence what her attitude may be toward the proposals of the United States if Great Britain and this country can reach an understanding for disarmament. The conference is taking Japan too seriously. Already a poverty stricken country, if Japan should undertake to measure arms with any first class power she would learn of the fatal mistake her foolhardiness had brought her to. No country peopled by mulattoes can stand against the white race.

Klenzo Dental Creme

KLENZO DENTAL CREME does what your dentifrice should do. It makes the teeth clean—scrupulously clean; it gives them the white lustrous look that is the distinguishing mark of beautiful teeth; and its everyday use protects and safeguards them. In a word, it fulfills all the purposes of a dentifrice with singular effectiveness, and in addition, it makes the mouth feel cool and clean—a delightfully refreshing sensation that renders "tooth-cleaning" an event to look forward to.

The reason for the wonderful effectiveness of KLENZO DENTAL CREME is simple and convincing—its makers insist that it must be in exact accord with the latest findings of dental research. It is therefore a real dental cream—an embodiment of the opinions of America's foremost dentists and this fact—coupled with the wonderful results it produces—explains why the public places such unbounded confidence in it.

A SPECIAL FEATURE of KLENZO DENTAL CREME that every user will appreciate is the cool, clean feeling it leaves in the mouth. This is far more than a "flavor"—it is a testimony of cleanliness. It means that countless little taste nerves have been freed from the stale secretions that make the mouth feel hot and sticky. This is why your appetite is better and your breakfast tastes so good after using KLENZO.
