CLINTON, S. C., SEPT. 4, 1919

10 PAGES

Let no young man of industry and perfect honesty despair because his profession or calling is crowded. Let him always remember that there is room enough at the top and that the question whether he is ever to reach the top, or rise above the crowd at the base of the pyramid, will be decided by the way in which he improves the first few years in securing for himself a thorough knowledge of his profession and a sound moral and intellectual culture.

THE GOLDEN RULE IN BUSI- NESS.

All the newspapers and magazines in the country are discussing the fundamental causes of the present industrial unrest. Every public speaker, every writer and thinker has a different solution for the problem. Otto Kahn in an address before the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh has about the best solution and it's not as impractical as some might think. He says in part: "The principle on which all concerned should deal with the labor question is the principle of the Golden Rule. I think the formula should be that, first, labor is entitled to a living wage after that capital is entitled to a living wage; what is left over belongs to both capital and labor, in such proportions a fairness and equity and reason shall determine in all cases."

You will find that many employers know that it doubly pays them to consider their employees in the light of the Golden Rule.

First, they consider them as individuals with individual tastes and ambitions. They give them the work that interests them.

Secondly, they give them a comfortable wage so that they can do their best work and not be troubled by the worry of sickness and debt.
This is the application of the Golden Rule—and a very practical rule it will be found in all lines of work.

ONE SOLUTION.

Are you a nervous motorist, panic-stricken every time your car just misses running down a child playing in the road? Here's what they did to solve the problem in Coblentz, Germany; according to a Red Cross worker there just returned from war service.

"In Coblentz," she says, "the situation became most annoying.
The children would play in the streets in spite of all admonishments. It was particularly harrowing and nerve-racking for army motor truck chauffeurs, who came whizzing along on official business to stop and pick their way through the throngs.

"At last some one suggested a way to keep the children from the roads. Public notices were posted up announcing that all children found playing in the middle of the road reserved for conveyances, would be publicly spanked. If the offense was committed again the child's father would be given three months of hard labor. That was to impress it on the parent's mind.

"There were six cases. Six children were publicly spanked, with a representative of every family in town present. The father was asked to officiate, which he did with such ardent enthusiasm that the Americans were compelled to ask him to stop. The rest of the children stayed out of the roads after that and not a father was sentenced to three months at hard labor."

PENSION NOTICE.

For the purpose of complying with the late act of the legislature, applications of those Confederate soldiers and widows who were on the pension roll before 1919, (also those who have not been enrolled at any time) will be received as follows:

At Clinton, for Hunter and Jacks townships, September 15th.

At Cross Hill for Cross Hill township, Sept. 15th.

For other townships at this office as follows:

Youngs, September 16.

Dials, September 17.

Sullivan, September 18.

Waterloo, September 23.

Scuffletown, September 24.

Laurens, September 25.

All applications must be filled out and signed by applicant in ink, giving the first Christian name of both the widow and the soldier. The pencil must not be used on applications.

Don't forget that this does not call for any soldier or widow that enrolled during this year, but to re-enroll those who were on the roll prior to 1919, or anyone that has never enrolled at any time.

Let pensioners appear in person, if possible. We must have facts as to age, marriage, death of husband, income, etc. Let all act promptly. By waiting you may fail to get in.
