LIVING

No one can savor the flavor of living
Unless he's had giving to do and forgiving;
No one can tell you or spell you the story
Of life with its stain and its pain and its glory
Who's never been beaten, defeated, and risen
From the breaking, heartaching despair of some prison.
Beating knavery with bravery and rising to heights
He'd never have known without struggles and fights.
No one can savor the flavor of living
Unless he's had giving to do and forgiving,
Unless he's had fighting and righting old wrongs,
Unless he's had grieving and leaving the throngs
And living alone with no comforting hand
And none to comfort or to understand.
Grief is a good gift, and pain is a treasure;
No one knows life who knows only its pleasure.

WOMAN SAVED FROM GALLOWS

Georgia Governor Commutes Sentence of Mrs. Ida Hughes To Life Imprisonment.

Atlanta, Ga., April 11.—Mrs. Ida Hughes, sentenced to be hanged on April 24 for the murder of her mother-in-law, Mrs. M. C. Hughes, in December, 1923, escaped the gallows today, as a result of the decision of Governor Clifford Walker in upholding the recommendation of the Georgia prison commission that she be granted life imprisonment.

In the clemency order of the governor, which states that although from the records of the case "Mrs. Hughes is guilty of murder" and that the chief executive has "no sympathy with the maudlin sentiment which seeks to make a heroine of a woman guilty of a horrible crime," the governor declares that after a study, he has "reached the conclusion that there are mitigating circumstances in this case which justify clemency."

When attorneys for the condemned woman went to the jail to tell her the governor's decision, Mrs. Hughes received the news without any visible signs of emotion. Before her attorneys could speak, Mrs. Hughes said:

"I can see by the expression on your face that you bring good news." After being assured that such was the case she said:
"Well, I'll go to the state farm and do the very best I can to be a model prisoner. And I'll do all I can to help the other prisoners do the same. I'd rather live in the penitentiary than outside under such conditions as I did before I got into trouble."

The crime for which Mrs. Hughes was convicted occurred at her home in Egan Park, near Atlanta. Her mother-in-law, with whom she had been angered for some time, entered her home accompanied by two bailiffs with a possessor's warrant for articles she alleged the defendant had stolen.

While Mrs. M. C. Hughes was bending over a trunk, the condemned woman fired. The verdict of the Fulton county jury did not recommend mercy. The Georgia supreme court upheld the verdict of the lower court. The case later was carried before the Georgia prison commission, which requested the governor to commute her sentence.

NASH CONTINUES TO SET RECORDS

March Sales Sweep Aside All Previous Records of Popular Automobile Company's Books Show.

All previous sales and production records of the Nash Motors company, locally represented by J. K. Hatton, have again been swept aside, figures on the company's books now showing that March was the biggest month in the history of Nash Motors.

"The shattering of Nash sales records began in the fall, shortly after the introduction of the new series of special and advanced series of cars," said E. H. McCarthy, general sales manager of the Nash Motors company. "October outstripped all previous records in our history, then along came February with a new sales and production record and now March has taken the lead over February. Incidentally, the March shipments from the factory were 49 per cent greater than the shipments of March, 1924."

"The situation with respect to the demand for Nash cars is further emphasized by the fact that the entire automobile industry during March had about ten per cent less business than during March, 1924. And added to this, even though last month was Nash Motors' biggest production month, there were in our hands bona fide orders for about 2,000 cars that we were unable to ship because we could not produce sufficient automobiles to fill the demand."

In anticipation of the heavy demand for the Nash line of cars the work has begun at both the Kenosha and Milwaukee factories on plant extensions, which, when completed, will provide for an increase in production capacity of 40 per cent. These extensions include new buildings and the installation of additional production machinery equipment and will be ready within a short time for operation.

GAINED 60 POUNDS

E. S. Hardy of Marshall, Texas, writes: "I had a bad case of Bright's Disease and was told that I would never be able to work. I lost flesh till I only weighed 140 pounds; my blood pressure was so high that I had to be careful of my exercise."

"I took Hobo Kidney & Bladder Remedy and I think I am entirely cured; the doctors say I am. I am running a locomotive engine every day and weigh 196 pounds. I feel for the suffering of others, and it does me good to inform others of the faith I have in Hobo Kidney & Bladder Remedy."

KEEPING WELL

HOW BAD TEETH CAUSE CONSUMPTION

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

CONSUMPTION is not hereditary, but it is now generally agreed among tuberculosis experts that, no matter when the disease develops, infection generally takes place in childhood.

This infection, like all other germ infections, can only happen if there is a break somewhere in the skin or the lining of the body cavities. The membrane which lines our nose, mouth, throat, bronchial tubes and lung spaces is a continuation of the skin, and, like it, is not affected by germs, except as they can find an opening somewhere to allow them to enter the substance of the body and begin to grow. Any break or tear in this membrane is just like an open gate in a city wall. It is a gap through which the enemy can enter.

One of the earliest and most common signs of tubercular infection in children is a swelling of the lymph glands of the neck. The lymph glands of the body, which lie just under the skin, are the filters or drains which stop and hold any infectious matter which may enter the body and so prevent it from reaching the deeper-seated vital organs. They are the second line of defense, like the street barricades which the defenders of a city would throw up to stop the enemy, after the gates had broken down.

Now it has long been known that in many, if not all cases of tubular glands in the neck, the teeth would be found to be decayed. Even if the decayed teeth are pulled, infection may enter through the holes left in the gums. If decay has gone far enough so as to kill the pulp in the tooth, the softening opens up the canals in the roots of the teeth and root abscesses may result. The tuberculous germs may then pass from the root abscesses into the fine lymph vessels. The first lymph gland they come to catches and holds them. If they are few in number, they may be killed in the gland without doing any harm. But if they are many, they make the gland work so hard that the glands become swollen and tender and finally break down and form little abscesses.

Bad teeth or openings in the gums caused by bad teeth are ideal breeding places for the tuberculous germs, as the warmth and moisture in the mouth gives them just the conditions they need for growth.

Sound teeth and clean mouths are a protection against disease. Children especially should be taught to keep their mouths clean. Bad teeth should be removed or filled at once, not only to save the other teeth but also to keep out any disease germs that may cause trouble in after life.
