

Barnett Bros. Circus Group To Study Here December 5

The Barnett Bros. circus will exhibit at Clinton, Monday, Dec. 5th.

There are many new acts, numbers and displays with the show this year. The opening spectacle is entitled "Patriotic America" and the high lights from the life of George Washington are worked into the theme and bi-centennial thought. A beautiful ballet of girls are carried for the presentation and the spectacle is lavishly produced.

The Rogers-Chapin troop of high wire walkers are new this year. A baby elephant brought to America by Howard Thurston last year, was purchased by the Barnett Bros., and "Delia" is not only the youngest and smallest elephant in America but the only elephant past or present that walks a tight wire.

Nearly every nation in the world is represented in the Barnett Bros. personnel. Arabs, a Jap troop and a Mexican troop, both imported this spring. Victor Cody, a nephew of the original Buffalo Bill has charge of the American cowboys and cow girls. An English trio of strong men have never been in this country before.

However, when grandpa brings his children's children to the circus he will not be disappointed for lack of the old time favorites. The human butterflies, the acrobats and tumblers, the trained animals and the pony drill.

The pretty girls riding the dancing horses will all be there.

There will be a street parade at noon.

Of special interest are the reduced prices for this date only, 25 cents to everybody.

Afternoon shows start at 2:30 and night performances at 8:00 o'clock.

Circus Coming Next Monday

The Barnett Bros. 3-Ring circus will exhibit in Clinton, Monday, Dec. 5.

There are many new displays and acts this year, and the show is advertised as "The circus that is as modern as tomorrow."

The Rogers-Chapin troop of high wire artists are one of the outstanding features this year. A troop direct from Japan and a Mexican troop are new to American circus fans. The Aerial Lakes have never been seen in these parts.

The opening spectacle is entitled "Patriotic America" and the high lights from the life of George Washington are worked into the theme and bi-centennial thought. This is lavishly produced and a special ballet of beautiful girls are carried for the presentation.

However, Grandpa will not be disappointed when he takes his children's children to the circus. Many of the old time favorites of his childhood are still retained. Dancing horses, trained animals, pony drills, human butterflies, aerialists, acrobats and tumblers and an array of clowns will all be seen in the three rings, the air, hippodrome track and elevated stages.

Circus day would not be complete without the street parade. Promptly at noon the parade will be given.

The prices for this engagement are of special interest. Twenty-five cents for everybody. These reduced prices should pack the tent at both the afternoon and night performances.

Afternoon show starts at 2:30 and the night performance commences at 8:00 o'clock.

Seven Named To Consider Need of Legislation and Report To General Assembly

Columbia, Nov. 26.—Governor I. C. Blackwood today appointed a committee of seven to begin immediately a study of the state's banking laws and supervision in order that the system, "if inadequate in any respects, may be brought in line with present day needs."

Two members of the general assembly, two bankers, two business men and Attorney General John M. Daniel compose the committee. It will report back to the governor, who announced he would submit the results of the study to the legislature.

Members of the committee, in addition to the attorney general, are: D. Gordon Baker, Florence, member of the house; Taylor H. Stukes, Manning, member of the senate; F. F. Beattie, Greenville, and Henry P. Williams, Charleston, bank presidents; Col. Holmes B. Springs, Myrtle Beach, real estate and insurance man, and B. E. Geer, Greenville, textile manufacturer.

In announcing the committee, Governor Blackwood said he was aware that a somewhat general opinion existed that the present banking laws are inadequate, and that state supervision of banks had been handicapped by this in safeguarding the interests of bank depositors and stockholders.

At the last session of the legislature, a committee was appointed to review the work of the present supervising agency, and the report of this committee, the governor said, confirmed the impression that the banking laws are inadequate.

"In recognition of this demand," he said, "I deem it my duty to inaugurate a study of these matters to the end that our banking laws and our system of state supervision, if inadequate in any respects, may be brought in line with present day needs."

"With this in view, I have appointed a committee to begin immediately the work of studying this situation and we have requested them to report to me for submission to the next session of the general assembly the result of their deliberations."

"The selections I have made for this committee are men whom I consider of outstanding ability and business integrity and are representative of diversified interests. I believe that when after careful study their recommendations are made we shall be in position to deal intelligently with these important matters."

Timmerman, representative of the Acme Studios of Columbia, has completed arrangements necessary for bringing to our town a distinctly new and unusual type of entertainment. Apart from its recreational value as an entertainment for the public, it will offer the equivalent of a course of study in tap, ballet and musical comedy dancing of the highest type, also singing and expression, absolutely free to all the children of the school from three years of age to 20. It will give all children the advantage to discover their talent in the various forms of the dance being instructed by a professional paid dramatic director, Miss Clemmie Jamison."
