Alcoholic's Anonymous To Hold Open Meeting At Court House Tuesday

The Laurens group of Alcoholics Anonymous says there is statewide enthusiasm over the open meeting to be held in the court house Tuesday, February 24, at 8:30 p.m. The general public is invited to attend. Three prominent speakers (one a woman), will give personal experiences, cases of alcoholics who have made recoveries, and at the same time answer the following questions:

What is AA? Who are they? Why anonymous? Is AA a church-sponsored affair? How much does it cost? Is it a cure? Are alcoholics down and outers? Is AA a club? What, then, is AA? Who is eligible? How can I be certain I am an alcoholic? Will my request for information be kept confidential? I have a relative who needs AA, will AA contact him for me? How can I contact AA?

These and many other questions will be answered, explaining how many thousands of men and women have recovered from alcoholism, leaders of the movement state.

Baruch Says Genuine Peace Is Necessary For Reduced Prices

New York, Feb. 16.—Bernard Baruch told a gathering of the nation's mayors today that the problem of high prices could be solved only when genuine peace was achieved.

Addressing the opening session of the 17th annual meeting of the United State Conference of Mayors, the financier and adviser to many Presidents asserted:

"The problem of high prices can only be solved in Washington. You know we are not at peace. Until we have peace, the ordinary laws of supply and demand and private initiative cannot function normally."

Baruch's statement followed a message to the conference by President Truman which declared that unless high prices were permanently checked the living standards of millions of families "will be critically endangered."

Former OPA Administrator Chester Bowles proposed an extensive federal program which he said "can modify, to a major extent, the recession which our past mistakes have made inevitable."

"During the last few weeks," he told the mayors, "we have all witnessed what may be the beginning of the second cycle of the old dismal cycle of economic boom and bust."

Fertilization Pays, Farm Records Show

Clemson, Feb. 19.—A good way of increasing the efficiency of the land is by the use of sufficient amounts of commercial fertilizers, says P. S. Williamson, extension supervisor of unit test-demonstration farms for the Clemson Extension Service. This is true, he explains, because as a general rule liberal applications of plant food and high crop yields go hand-in-hand and good crop yields are necessary in order to obtain high profits. In fact, good crop yields are probably the most important single factor in obtaining low cost of production per unit.

In analyzing 114 farm records kept by farmers in South Carolina and sent in to the Extension Service during 1947, the records were divided into three groups based upon the expenditures for fertilizer per crop acre and an income comparison was made of them. The group having an average expenditure of only $3.00 for fertilizer per crop acre had a farm income of $1493, as compared with a farm income of $3382 for the group spending $5.77 for fertilizer per crop, and a farm income of $3557 for the group spending $10.32 for fertilizer per acre.

The study also showed that the group of farms having the highest fertilizer cost per crop acre made the highest crop yields. The average yield of cotton per acre for the three groups studied varied from 244 lbs. of lint for the low fertilizer group to 474 pounds of lint for the high fertilizer group. The average yield of corn per acre varied from 22 bushels for the low fertilizer group to 28 bushels for the high fertilizer group. The average yield of oats per acre varied from 33 bushels for the low fertilizer group to 37 bushels for the high fertilizer group. Similarly, the average yield of wheat per acre varied from 13 bushels for the low fertilizer group to 21 bushels for the high fertilizer group. Also the average yield of hay per acre varied from 1.0 ton for the low fertilizer group to 1.1 tons for the high fertilizer group.

Mr. Williamson points out that although fertilizer prices are somewhat higher now than they have been for some time the indications are that the relationship between fertilizer prices of farm products during 1948 should be favorable for continued liberal applications of fertilizers.

Taylor and Bolt In Laurens Mayor's Race

(From The Laurens Advertiser) The local mayoralty race took a definite turn yesterday when L. Hayne Taylor announced for reelection and William T. Bolt announced his candidacy for the same office.

In making his announcement, Mayor Taylor issued a statement dealing largely with law enforcement and said "I shall not bow to the lawless element but shall continue to fight and work for a cleaner and better city."

Mr. Bolt, who is a local attorney and veteran of World War II, in which he was a naval officer, said that he was running on his own merits with the hope that he could be of some service to the city. "I am not for nor against anybody," he said.

Dial Cleared Of Murder Charge

Laurens, Feb. 17.—Carl Dial, Laurens police officer, charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Ozelle Lloyd, Gray Court Negro, on the night of December 20 when the officer was attempting to make an arrest, won a directed verdict of not guilty in general sessions court here today.

Judge J. Frank Eatmon of Kingstree, the presiding judge, directed the verdict on motion of Solicitor Hugh Beasley, after hearing testimony from the defendant and from Sheriff C. W. Wier, Chief of Police W. T. Ivey, two taxi drivers, Milwood Aatkins, Robert Hodges, and Boyce Hellams. Hellams testified to a fight between Lloyd and a negro woman just before the shooting.
