

Laurens County Slated for Top Spot At Piedmont Fair

Spartanburg, Sept. 21. — Clinton will be in the purebred livestock spotlight when the third annual Piedmont Interstate Fair opens here Monday, Oct. 11. It is the largest and night.

A bright spot in the expanded livestock show is expected for the fair by being the annual show and sale of the South Carolina Hereford Breeders' association.

C. W. Anderson, of Clinton, is president of this farrow-grown and progressive breeders' cooperative which will set aside 75 fine Herefords for its show and earmarked 50 for the sale.

The show is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 14, and the sale on Friday, Oct. 15th. The association will also hold its annual meeting here Thursday night, Oct. 14.

Paul Swaffar, extension livestock specialist, North Carolina State college, will place animals in the show, and J. E. Ripstein, state veterinarian, will supervise the show.

Also of interest to Clinton and Laurens county folk is the annual show and sale of the agricultural exhibits, sponsored by Clemson S. C. Straining, Clemson college extension news editor.

Clinton area school children, along with all other school children in Laurens county, also their teachers, will be given a special admission charge — of the fair on school grounds, Oct. 12.

Public officials of Clinton and Laurens county will be guests of the Piedmont Interstate Fair, held on government-public officials day, Thursday, Oct. 14.

The fair is composed of Laurens, Union, Cherokee and Spartanburg counties in South Carolina, and Polk and Barberford counties in North Carolina.
