The American Way

From his denunciation of the Republican labor law, the high cost of living, and about everything else, the new candidate, Walter Stoen, as an enemy of the people, charges that the opposition, as controlled by New York utilities, is very near to all the hallmarks of totalitarianism, know what is meant by 'Wall Street' any more. In many respects, the article has manifested this overworked man. In the early days of Manhattan, there was a wall which ran east and west across the island, and which was erected as a fortification. Later, when the wall came down, the street which took its place was called 'Wall Street.' Industry and business are often contrasted in the minds of some who do not follow such things very closely. In the fewest words possible, 'industry' might be called the manufacturing branch of our economy, 'business' the banking branch. The two are interdependent, as every informed person must know. The one raises the money with which to build the factories and provide employment.

business' or as Mr. Truman and Wallace call it—with a few pan-pans. The 'Wall Street' group wouldn't have developed all these gluttons of privilege' who are destroying our country, making us an ancient Rarasa, starving the poor and eating little children. We would be one big, happy, surely agricultural folk, run by an efficient, not bloating, economic experts like President Truman, a farmer who would support other methods for manufacturing goods, as we were before the revolution.

All of Wall Street speak have been a communist, but this financial center is an important, important part of our economy. Personally we favor compromise of the American way—industry and business. It is upon this system that our country has grown so great.

Campaign Nears End

Only three more weeks remain until the presidential election which is expected to bring out one of the largest votes in the history of the nation. President Truman continues to broadcast on his extensive reputation that he has captured the people—and that the Republicans are the party of 'special privilege.' The president, concerned with the progress of the 'worst' ever. As a contrast, Senator Markham of this state who spoke in this city a few nights ago, stated that the campaign in reviewing some of the accomplishments of General Eisenhower's administration on his speech, set forth unity, honesty and competence in the great issues of 1948.

President Truman continues to risk of the high cost of living. He wants prices to come down and offers to return high school districts make sense. He favors reduction of price controls which congress refuses to approve when it refers back upon OPA.

Parent-Teacher Group Begins Fifth Year

(Written for The Chronicle)
In the four short years of its existence the Florida Street Parent-Teacher association has achieved a record of which it can justly boast. It was organized in February, 1944, in the face of much opposition, and with very few members. It has since prospered, however, realized the need for closer relationships between school and home, and in the hope of providing for the needs of the school and being co-workers in that task, the PTA has its beginning. A Parent-Teacher association never attempts to dictate the policies of the school, but to be critical of its servers. On the other hand it does stand ready to lend support and guidance, be a source of informing parents of school conditions, foster goodwill between home and school, to raise the standards of home and school, and to do anything for the good of the children. All these things the Florida Street PTA has attempted and still attempts to do.

Before the association came into existence, no provision was made for physical examination of children ready to start to school. Now each spring a clinic is held (not only at Florida Street school, but at several other schools) where first grade teachers, with their assistants and inoculations. This is made possible through the cooperation of the school and the doctors and nurses who assist. Meetings of the organization are held the first Tuesday night of each month at the Florida Street school where programs of pertinent interest are given and where parents and teachers get to know each other better. The membership has increased from 68 charter members to the present enrollment of 268. Every fall the association sponsors a bazaar which other than being representative for the association, affords a time of community fellowship and fun which is beneficial to the life of the community. The PTA had adopted the school in its efforts to run the lunch room at the school. The association has provided tables, chairs, silverware, dishes, curtains as well as lending help toward canvas, vegetable and fruit, and assisted in purchase of a refrigerator.

In February, 1946, the PTA helped the school purchase a moving picture projector which is now being used in all of the schools of the system. Visiting teachers are given the most successful means of instruction. It is hoped that more projects can be obtained in the near future, and finally obviously, one machine is not adequate for a system of five schools.

A set of Compton's Encyclopedia has been bought for the school and a number of books for each grade. The association has from the beginning given its support to the city library, though up until this past year the support has necessarily been meager. In 1947, however, the children's room at the library is a special project the organization of a special fund last summer over $1,000.00 was raised to finance this project and the children's room at the library was equipped. There are some 1232 books available there for children 724 purchased by the funds raised.
