Great Moose Flock Flees Alaskan Fire

Big Game Perilled in Forest by Wind-Swept Blaze.

KENAI, ALASKA.—The world's largest moose herd fled from a wind-whipped forest fire which was destroying huge stands of timber.

Herds of other big game fled before the crackling flames, which spread over a 100-mile area in the northern section of the peninsula.

An airplane pilot who flew over the fire said there is a "good chance the entire peninsula will be destroyed unless rains come."

Pilots who flew over the Hidden lake and Moose reservation regions said animals were running ahead of the fire. Other game dived into streams and lakes as flames shot 100 feet into the air.

Road commission men said hundreds of big game animals already had perished.

R. R. Robinson, chief of the Alaska fire control system, said it would be impossible to estimate the timber loss until the fire had been controlled.

Pilot Gentry Schuster of the Seward Safeway Airways said smoke was rising 25,000 feet.

Two sportsmen were caught in the Kenai river area by dense smoke. They were flown to Anchorage.

No casualties were reported.

Other fires were burning on the mainland near Palmer, Alaska, 50 miles north of Anchorage, where more than 8,000 acres of spruce had been destroyed.

New Kinds of Atoms Are Split by U. S. Scientists

BERKELEY, CALIF.—Atoms of three new elements have been split by American physicists but it cannot be used in the development of atomic energy or bombs, Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence said.

Lawrence, Nobel prize winner and inventor of the atom-smashing cyclotron, said atomic fission had been achieved with lead, bismuth and thalium—elements much lighter than hitherto used to release atomic energy, the basic energy of the universe.

But the splitting of these atoms," Lawrence said, "at present is only of scientific interest. It will teach us something about the nucleus of the atom but is not of practical application in making atomic bombs."

'Pushbuttons' Direct Plane 2,000 Miles Without a Stop

WILMINGTON, OHIO. — A pilotless four-engine army transport plane landed at the army air forces flying center here, completing its eight hours and 46 minutes a 2,000-mile nonstop flight from Long Beach, Calif., during which no member of the 10-man crew touched the huge craft's controls.

Describing the flight as the longest of its kind on record, army engineers said it was made by a new "push-button" automatic flight system not to be confused with the "drone system" of remote controlled flight.

Some human control must be exercised in the operation of a "drone" plane, it was explained, but in the automatic flight system all the necessary flight data was fed electrically into a master control panel within the plane itself.

The plane's instruments were preset to take the plane off the runway in Long Beach, direct it on a course via Denver and Cincinnati and set it down here.

The engineers emphasized that the automatic system was not planned to replace pilots, but was developed as part of a program to beat the hazards of flying in bad weather.

The crew was in charge of Capt. Thomas J. Wells of Orlando, Fla., project and safety pilot, who said the trip was uneventful.

Improvement of "landing technique" is one of the big problems still to be overcome, Wells said.

Stradivarius Violin Worth $25,000 Was Pawned for $30

NEW YORK.—A Stradivarius violin owned by Caryl Bryan Oakes, Bloomington, Ind., concert violinist, and insured for $25,000, was found pawned here for $30.

Police found Oakes as saying the man they are questioning visited his Bloomington home last January and offered to sell the Stradivarius for $25,000 on a commission basis. Oakes consented and the man departed for New York with the violin. At the months passed, Oakes said he became uneasy and came to New York to find the instrument.

Sandwich Man Gets Crowd by Climbing Up Side of a Hotel

NEW YORK.—Usually the crowds in Times Square pay scant attention to a man carrying a sandwich sign — but a more enterprising one attracted a throng of several thousand by clambering from ledge to ledge along the front of a hotel.

He put on a 15-minute hair-raising show, inching his way from the fifth floor to the marquee and back up again, while crowds tangled traffic.

Crowd members at first thought him a would-be suicide—until they got a good look at that sign advertising a rodeo.
