IN REMEMBRANCE

In loving remembrance of John William DeLoach, who died November 23, 1948. Gone is the one we loved so dear, silent the voice we used to hear. The sad but true, we wonder why, we loved you so, yet you had to die. No one knows the silent heartache, when those who have lost can't get to the great that's before it, silence. For the one we loved so well. We think of you each moment, but No one can see us weep. But many a silent tear we shed. With others who are left alone. Oh! how hard we tried to see you through and learn why you had to die. Happy angels came and took you from this world of toil and pain. Please say you're really watching here. But, son, it ain't true! These two long years have passed. And our hearts still ache for you. Yet again we hope to meet you in the days of life we lead. Wish us, Heaven with you to greet you. When no farewell tears are shed. —Father, Mother and Brother.
