

Brown Attends Educational Meet In Savannah

Dr. Marshall W. Brown was in Savannah, Ga., last week-end for an educational conference held in connection with a meeting of governors of Southern states.

Governor Millard F. Caldwell, of Florida, president of the Regional Council for Education, recently appointed Dr. Brown to represent South Carolina on an executive committee which has one member from each of the 14 participating states. This committee has the duty of coordinating the work of advisory groups and the state officials.

After conferences with a number of educators of the South, the executive committee presented to the Southern Governors' conference an extensive program for regional educational services and utilization of educational institutions on a cooperative basis.

Reward Offered For Parties Destroying Lovely Christmas Tree

One of the prettiest lighted Christmas trees in the city has been burning for several nights on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. J. Steiner on West Centennial street. Many passers-by have remarked on the loveliness of the tree and its decorations.

An unknown party or parties went into the yard Monday night and completely ruined the decorations and stole all the bulbs and equipment.

Mr. Steiner stated yesterday that he will give a liberal reward for the apprehension of the culprit. He was indignant about what happened, and rightly so.

It's a mean, low-down trick, The Chronicle says, for anyone to go on private property and destroy a Christmas tree provided for the enjoyment of the family and others during the happy Yuletide season.

"Nor have we voluntarily released anybody. We had to make the fight we did to preserve the principles of States' Rights. We are not ashamed of the showing we made. If we had carried two more states—Georgia and Texas, for example—we would have thrown the election of a president into congress." Electors all over the nation met Monday to cast their official votes for president and vice-president. Both Thurmond and his States' Rights running mate, Gov. Fielding L. Wright, of Mississippi, said they do not regard the States' Rights movement a failure or a dead issue. They are among the Southern governors taking part in a regional educational conference here.
