District Epworth League Rally Here Largely Attended

A large crowd of 210 attended the district Epworth League rally at Bailey Memorial Methodist church last Friday evening. Delegations from all the Southern Methodist churches from Columbia north to and including Greenville were present. It was termed the finest district rally in this part of the state in over two years.

The president of the district, John Price, of Columbia, student at Bob Jones university, Greenville, brought a quartet from the university which rendered several numbers. The Epworth league of Bailey Memorial, under the direction of Mrs. John Holland, and assisted by Mrs. Murray Adams and Mrs. Dan Dunaway, gave a play entitled, "The Church of the Future," which was well received. Mr. Adams constructed a beautiful miniature church with the front back and sides fixed so the church could be put together right on the platform during the progress of the play. This, of course, was done by members of the cast, which conveyed the idea of the young people building the church of the future.

The ladies of the church served sandwiches, potato salad, cookies, hot chocolate and coffee. The Leesville church, between Laurens and Clinton, received the banner for the largest delegation present, and the league of Maple Street church in Columbia received the banner for the highest average attendance at the meetings each Sunday evening.

The next rally goes to Morris Chapel Southern Methodist church at Pomaria on April 15.

Clothes for Everyday, Shopping, Need Not Be Dull, Uninteresting

By Ertta Haley

EVEN though the clothes you wear around the house or for shopping or for school are made primarily of cotton fabrics, and their design is simple, they need not be dull. At east, they should not be the kind that make you feel you want to get dressed up in your silks and satins just to make life a little bit more exciting.

Everyday clothes can be just as charming and as much fun to wear as the dress up clothing we have. You'll find loads of interesting fabrics on the market, and the styles for this type of clothing get better all the time. Let your everyday clothing harmonize with your coats and introduce just as much variety and color into them as you do in your best things. I can promise you there will never be a dull moment even though you are just keeping house or going on a daily trip to the market.

The trend in everyday clothing is strictly away from the type of dress that slips on and looks like a sack. Fit and styling are important, as proved by the fact that zippers and other details have been introduced in the house dress so that it can look as nice as other clothing.

Princess and Button-Front Styles Are Popular

One feature which we like in a dress of this type is the easy way it can be slipped into. Choose a style that buttons or zips down the front, or a princess style which is so flattering to the figure. Use care in the sewing, finishing details so that it will really look attractive.

If you use ruffles, lace, rick-rack or edgings of any kind, make sure they are washable, as this dress must stand up under plenty of sudsing. Trimmings of this type are sometimes a little tricky to sew because it's so easy to miss a bit in attaching them to the dress, so I'd suggest basting and checking carefully before you make the final stitches.

If you are using buttonholes, work them by hand, and make the stitches close and even, as they will need to take a lot of wear. Bound buttonholes may be used on silks and rayons, and even cottons, but they do not show up as well as on woollens.

Pinking shears may be used on all the seams to give a nice, long-wearing finish to the dress, and it's best to use them when cutting out the pattern to save the extra step in finishing them later.

Other Styles May Serve Needs Equally Well

Dresses that are ideal for market-ing or for afternoon wear about the house are the jumper styles and dicky-front dresses. They have a little more dressy appearance than those we have just discussed, and may be made without involving more work.

No matter what type of jumper dress you make, the sewing is easy. The skirt should fit smartly and may be full or tailored. If you want to do active work in it, it's better to have a roomy skirt that allows for plenty of movement. Jumper dresses should have several blouses that may be worn with them. Simple slip-on blouses are good for the

Red Plaid Wool

Red plaid wool goes to dinner this fall in this dress from Clare Potter's collection. The tuck-in top of pink wool jersey is smooth fitting and has loose sleeves cuffed into the plaid.

Tailored jumper; and for the more feminine or dressy jumper, you may choose those with a bit of trimming, puffed sleeves and other gay decorations.

Dicky-front dresses are of two types—those that are slashed to the waist and others which are slashed just to the half-way point. If the front is slashed it should be reinforced or it will not give the wear it may be expected. It may be faced with a plain fabric, or of the same material as the dress.

Pockets on everyday clothes are a necessity, and they should be roomy enough to take care of all the things that find their way into them. Pockets are best made of the same material as the dress (unless the material is too heavy) and they may be any shape.

Decorative stitches may easily be made with the machine if you want to add a bright note to the dress. Crochet cotton No. 30 is a good type to use for this stitching, as it is strong and heavy enough to make an effective stitch. It comes in attractive colors and irons well. It may also be used on hems and ruffles.

To use it, wind the crochet cotton on the bobbin and stitch from the wrong side of the fabric. This stitching must be made straight, so it's a good idea to mark the fabric with chalk or something else that will keep it in line.

Grooming Tips

Wash bowl laundering is an invaluable aid to keeping well groomed. There are so many small articles of clothing that can be tubbed easily in just a few minutes that the few minutes' time is well worth the effort.

Underwear, hose and handkerchiefs may be tubbed in the wash bowl. Let this clothing soak for a few minutes while you cream your face or take care of your nails, and they will wash more easily.

Girdles should be washed often. Contrary to the popular belief, they will not wear out because they are laundered often. In fact, they will probably keep their shape better with frequent cleaning.

Removable shoulder straps on slips and foundation garments make for easy replacements and help the cause of personal daintiness. They may be removed and washed along with other lingerie and hose in just a few minutes.

Invincible pads and socks should be washed after every wearing particularly when worn with open-toe and open-heel shoes. Women should be as dainty about their brief foot coverings as they are about full length hose.

Fastidious homemakers are those who are as neat as the woman who goes to the office first thing in the morning. If you get up in time to take a shower and put on a cheerful, starched frock, you'll be as much of a stimulant at breakfast as your morning beverage.

"Forty Strokes"—hair brushing, that is, is useless unless the hair brush is kept immaculate. The brush should be washed in soapy water once a week, rinsed and placed out in the sun and air to dry.

Fashion Forecast

Another new fashion note is the bustle that comes forward. This is actually made from the peplum, but it is very definitely the same type of bustle that was formerly used at the back.

Gilt buttons are being used extensively in this season when brightness and color are the keynotes in the fashion world.

Suit jackets may be long or short, but it does seem that the long jacket is slightly more popular. Necklines come close to the throat, and many show a soft rounded neckline as a finishing touch.

For day and evening wear, here are some of the season's most popular colors: a mouse gray, violet and fuschia.
