Concert At Church Of Epiphany, Laurens

In the early nineteen hundreds an organ was installed in the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, Laurens, which holds a unique position today. Unlike many pipe organs of recent construction which contain intricate electrical systems, the organ of the Church of the Epiphany is a "tracker action," or mechanically operated organ. Such organs possess some of the fine qualities of instruments which were built five hundred years ago in Europe. Organists praise these old organs and organ companies have begun again to design instruments according to the old method, striving for clarity and brilliance.

Many of the churches in the South have replaced their tracker action pipe organs with electric organs which may be less expensive and easier to repair. The Church of the Epiphany, however, has maintained its old organ through the years.

To recognize the qualities of this fine old instrument a concert will be given at the church Tuesday evening, April 26 at 8 o'clock. Kenneth Hough, tenor, and Mack Israel, organist, will present a program of sacred music by Bach, Walter, Marcello and Handel to which the public is invited.

At the close of the concert offering plates will be placed at the door to receive gifts which will be used to repair the organ.
