Your Telephone Manager

GARDEN SPOT? On an 11½-acre farm in Bainbridge, Georgia, some mighty peculiar "planting" is going on. Engineers of Bell Telephone Laboratories are "seeding" the ground with some 11,000 pieces of telephone equipment. They're trying to find out how these materials hold up underground, and the results may lead to telephone lines and cables being buried in the earth rather than running along pole tops. One more way telephone folks are working on new ideas to give you better service.

SPRING is a wonderful season of the year but it can sure keep you hopping! Things to do in the garden and the yard. House-cleaning from top to bottom. Maybe ever a fresh coat of paint here and there. So here's a timely suggestion to help you find the things you need in order to fix up and dig up—look in the Yellow Pages of your telephone directory. You'll find page after page of listings—of just about anything you might want for spring sprucing-up. Mighty handy to be able to call around to locate what you need. Use your Yellow Pages often—it's the easy way to shop!

SINCE we're on the subject of spring—with the weather getting nice, a lot of folks are planning trips. So often a Long Distance call can help with travel plans... make reservations... keep you in touch with home while you're gone. Yours for smoother traveling—Long Distance.

EVERYDAY COUNSELOR

By Bishop Herbert Spaugh

Here's a note to procrastinators inscribed on an office wall: "If you put off till tomorrow what should be done today, someone else will do it today."

It is well known that procrastination is the thief of time. It is the busy people of the world who get things done. Procrastination is a habit, and a bad one. I recall the story told me by a clergyman friend. He was late for a speaking engagement. He offered various excuses such as traffic lights being against him and interruptions before he left. The presiding officer who was his friend listened patiently and then said quietly, "Bill, admit the fact that you simply just didn't start in time."

Some people do not plan their work and have no daily schedule. Frustration and confusion is the result. Others plan their work too fully.

Every day should be planned, but there should be ample time allowed for interruptions. I've learned that I should allow about 50 per cent of my day for interruptions. Then when they come instead of being frustrated I have time for them. It is when they take up more than 50 per cent of my time that I get into difficulty.

I've often heard the saying, "Plan your work, and work the plan." That's good. But be sure that the plan allows for interruptions.

IF YOU DON'T READ THE CHRONICLE YOU DON'T GET THE NEWS
PHONE 74

Careful reading of the life of Jesus in the Gospels indicates that most of His time with people was taken up with interruptions. He was even late for His best friend's funeral. Most of His mighty works came as a result of interruptions when the need was "do it now." He did it. How? He frequently withdrew from all, including His disciples, for prayer and communion with God, the Father.

All of us are busy, even if we're busy at doing nothing. The important thing is to classify those things which call for the use of our time into the most important, the more important, the necessary, and the unnecessary.

Recently I was looking at the schedule of a fellow clergyman for the next two weeks. He had only one night free each week. He wasn't getting enough sleep and was under his doctor's care. As I looked at his schedule in terms of what was really important to him, considering his physical condition, I saw a number of things which could be deleted. I suggested that he reduce his schedule.

While most of us are busy, let's be sure that we're busy about the important things. I'm writing this column to myself, as I know my time is spread out quite thin, almost too thin. There are times when I must say no, and that's hard for me to do.

When I begin to feel too important I recall what happened when I stuck my finger into a bucket of water, withdrew it, and looked for the hole.
