

View From The Tower

Shown in the picture above is Clinton's business district as seen from atop the 316-foot Southern Bell Telephone micro-wave tower on South Broad Street. The tower currently is being painted by Petroleum Engineers Associates of Charlotte, N. C., which has a $5,150 contract for the project. The picture was taken by Jerry Holland with the assistance of representatives of Petroleum Engineers. The tower, built in 1960, carries long distance telephone conversations from Greenville to Chapin and points in between, including Clinton. It has 18,420 voice circuits, meaning it can carry that many conversations at one time through the air between towers. Southern Bell will add 100 voice circuits in November at a cost of $14,000, according to local Southern Bell Manager Ray Fennell. The tower also carries waves from five ETV channels and the three major television networks.

County's PC Goal Set At $600,000

An unprecedented $600,000 goal toward the construction of Presbyterian College's proposed physical education center is the Laurens County objective as this local area prepares to launch PC's state-wide campaign for $2 million.

12:30 p.m. in Greenville Dining Hall on the PC campus. Leaders at that time will review the efforts to date and make plans for the kickoff dinner the following Monday evening, at which the entire working organization will assemble.

County Chairman C. W. Anderson of Clinton made the announcement today, less than two weeks before the October 14 kickoff date. He said prevailing enthusiasm for the project made him optimistic the goal can be reached.

Anderson said the $600,000 target represents a sizeable increase over the $500,000 raised for Presbyterian College by the local area in a two-state drive held in 1962 and 1964. That campaign, part of a total $1.8 million state-wide program for PC then, underwrote the total cost of Clinton Hall women's dormitory.

Anderson pointed out that effective work already is underway on advanced special gifts. Larger corporations and foundations are being approached by the committee headed by Tom Addison, George Cornelson and David Meyers. They hope to make a progress report next week.

The proposed new physical education center will replace the present PC gymnasium which has served as athletic headquarters for almost half a century. While the old facility is to be converted for other student use, the new center will provide ample space for an expanding coeducational student body and for varied community needs.

The county campaign steering committee is scheduled to hold another meeting next Monday at
