The Williams Insurance Agency was established in 1865, and has had a long and successful career. This agency handles all kinds of Insurance and Surety Bonds. One hundred and fifty even kinds of Insurance policies are issued through the Williams Agency. It is one of the oldest Insurance Agencies in the United States, having been in operation for sixty seven years. The agency has large quarters on Broad St. near the Banks.

Among some of the companies represented by this office, are the following, together with the dates that The Williams Insurance Company became their representatives:

Northern Assurance Company	1865
New York Underwriters	1865
Southern Home Ins. Co.	1920
Sun Insurance Office	1926
United States Casualty Co.	1915.

The Agency is owned by R. M. Kennedy, Jr. Mr. Kennedy has been in the Insurance business since 1909, with the exception of time served in the World War, in which he was Captain in the Artillery. He purchased the Williams Agency in 1915, and has given it his continuous attention since that time. Mr. Kennedy is a native of Kershaw County, was former Alderman and was elected in 1930 to be Mayor of the city. He is a member of the Rotary Club, Director of Chamber of Commerce, Director of Enterprise B. & L. Association, member of the Hospital Board, Vice-president of the Associated Charities and is on the Executive Committee of the American Legion. In addition to his personal business, he finds much time to work with and for the community. Under his leadership as Mayor, the town's affairs have been conducted in such a manner as to reflect credit upon the citizenship of Camden. He has given unstintingly of his time and means to his community.

Trim Simplicity Keynote of Spring Styles

The smart ghillie tie shown above is destined to be very popular this Spring.

THE fashion pendulum swings again to the tailored mode. Spring styles this season are trimly smart in a distinctive military manner. Wide shoulders, fitted hiplines, straight skirts and the buttoning of suits, coats and dresses far over to the left side in a distinctively cadet fashion are characteristics of the mode.

This trend to simplicity of the ensemble has made accessories all the more important, according to Maurice Wit, nationally known women's shoe stylist.

Shoe manufacturers, appreciating the importance of accessories this season, have made prodigious efforts to give distinctive style to their new shoe models and there is decidedly an increase in good taste in design. Simple in line, discreet in trimming, they fit the new tailored trend like ham fits eggs on the breakfast menu.

The model shown above is the striking ghillie tie, which is destined to be extremely popular this spring. It is from the collection of smart new styles now being featured by the Thom McAn stores. Other new spring styles include the watersnake sandal with patent leather trim, which is designed for both street and spectator sports wear; oxfords of soft beige calf with narrow strips of darker leather as trimming, and pumps of dull kid whose only trimming lies in their unusual light stitching.

The dominating feature of the early spring shoe mode is the cutout. In all of the styles, whether oxford, strap or opera pump, this idea has been incorporated, in some to such an extent that the shoe consists of little more than a sole held on by numerous straps over the instep and ball of the foot; usually a heel piece, but not always; occasionally a toe piece, and generally nothing more.
