Krupp guns are certainly not desirable neighbors, even in time of peace. The inhabitants of Essen suffer much in nerves and house property from the trials of the heavy guns close by. Many houses and walls show large fissures from the shocks, and many are actually unsafe. At the latest experiments all the doors and windows of Essen flew open at every discharge.

A Great Bleeding—Something in the Reach of Everybody.
What would you think of a man who was sick and constantly lying in bed, in great distress, because he had fallen in other ill reactions, refuses to take the blessing that is before him? This was the case with Mr. John S. Cook of Atlanta.

CURTAIN ABOUT TO FALL
ON THE "LONG SESSION" OF THE CAROLINA PARLIAMENT.
The General Assembly to Adjourn Since Die Saturday—Retrospective and Prospective Glances.

The heavy tapestry of uncertainty which has obscured even a glance at the hopeful prospect of an end to the seemingly endless session of the general assembly up to a week ago has been pulled aside at last and weary eyes of worn-out patient-exhausted newspaper men have been permitted to rest on the cheering vision of next Saturday standing with arm raised and holding a placard on which appeared the inscription, "Final adjournment March 7," the emblem of rest and relief from a six months monotony. These long weeks have not been like woman's "varium et mutabile semper femina."

It has been the same weary "demolition grind" that all men chafe under. And it may be said that the arrival of the last week of the session is more or less joyously received by many members and the mass of the people.

But all things must come to an end on earth sooner or later and the long session of the South Carolina parliament will conclude with this week. That is what the concurrent resolution says and what every one is expecting, though there may be some opposition still to changing "sub juries" to "sub jura," when the phrase appears in a new statute.

During the past week the general assembly has accomplished more real work than during any preceding fortnight. Nearly all of the important bills—the bills that had to be disposed of—have been gotten out of the way in the house, and are on the road to final disposition in ample time to allow the adjournment to take place at the appointed time.

The general appropriation and supply bills have been sent to the Senate. Of course there was of necessity much hard work on them. The 4-1-2 mill levy has been definitely decided upon at last, and the income tax scheme has died, he death it was destined to die. Governor Evans has been given his $6,000 in rather a satisfactory way and there won't be any trouble in the Senate over it. The house has given to the State fair $2,400 for premiums. It was not thought that $175 would be given to this in the senate, but the opposition committee has reported unfavorably as to the item. It will scarcely result in its being stricken out, however.

The pension bill has also been disposed of during the past week, making a liberal appropriation for the Confederate veterans, their widows and their orphans, and a committee of free conference is now settling the differences between the two houses.

The general school law has been pretty thoroughly worked over in the house, and the county school superintendents are going to stay unless the committee adjusting the differences decides to leave them out after all.

The election precinct bill has been disposed of finally, also in the house. On Saturday, the bill to prevent the extravagant printing of report of State officers was disposed of, passing the house. The other printing bill—the important one reducing the compensation for the public printing—is still resting easy on the senate calendar.

There was an interesting fight in the house over the bill to transform the dispensary law into a temperance law, before it was killed, and for the first time voices were raised against dispensary system.

The house has also passed the important bill providing for a State examiner, though the senate wished to impose the duties of that office on the State treasurer.

Nearly all the other general bills have been disposed of by the house, and the special order calendar is well nigh empty at last. Mr. Oll's school book bill is at the top, and is also Judge Townsend's bill relating to telegraph and express companies. The railroad bill relating to the interchange of freight has passed the house and the senate all right and there will be no further trouble over it.

The house made a vigorous attack on its calendar on Saturday and a couple more days' work of the same kind will get it pretty well cleared. The senate bills will be passed over for a couple of days more.

The house election of a public printer has been fixed for Tuesday. Mr. Calvo, the present public printer, will stand for re-election, and will be opposed for the position by Mr. T. S. Bryan also of this city. On the same day two trustees of the Winthrop Normal college will be elected, as will also the State code commissioner. Mr. Brazelton is expected to be elected to the latter position.

The bill providing for ten judicial circuits has never been considered yet and it is not likely now that it will be touched at this session, but will be left hanging in mid-air when the body adjourns.

The Daughter of Jenny Lind.
Mrs. Raymond Maude, who is married to a nephew of the present head of the Maude family, Lord Dovercourt, is the daughter of Jenny Lind (Mme. Goldschmidt). Her father, Otto Goldschmidt, who is still living, is the well-known orchestral conductor and composer. Mrs. Raymond Maude is very musical, and her children also promise to develop lovely voices. Mrs. Raymond Maude is well known as a composer, and her delightful and sympathetic setting of those excellent little lyrics, "Rhythms About a Little Woman," show promise of attaining an immense and well-deserved popularity. Mrs. Maude is thoroughly British in character and manner, having been brought up in England, and only shows traces of her Scandinavian origin in her fair hair and complexion.—The Woman at Home.

Why do they keep on saying that the villain still pursued her? You see, he was a Philadelphia villain and has never caught up.—Truth.

The Port Royal and Western Carolina railroad has announced that it will run a special excursion train starting from Greensboro, going by Greenwood to Augusta and thence over the Port Royal and Augusta road to Port Royal. The round trip fixed rate is only $2.25. This excursion will carry an immense crowd of people to Port Royal. Augusta will send a large delegation.

Mr. Craig, the general passenger agent of the Port Royal and Augusta road, in his official announcement says that the Secretary of the United States navy and the naval committees of both Houses of Congress are expected to be present and witness the docking. He also says that "military will be in attendance and excursions will be run from all points in Georgia and South Carolina, to witness the inspiring event."

The Indiana is 850 feet long, has a tonnage of 10,255; carries 16 guns in the main battery and 400 men and draws 21 feet of water.

There will be steamboat excursions around the arbor of Port Royal carrying the visitors up to the ship.

The following interesting information about the event is taken from Harper's Weekly:

"A substantial notion of what the Indiana battled with on her speed trial will be shown when, in a few days, that ship goes into the newly finished dry dock at Port Royal, South Carolina; then, for the first time, the ordinary people might have been added her splendid performance and the exchequer of her builders had she gone forth with her bottom wholly freed of aquatic vegetation.

"The dock, a wooden one, was begun three years ago, and with certain needed alterations, suggested by the test-docking of the monitor Amphitrite, has been pushing to completion within the present year. The structure has an extreme length of 436 feet, a floor or bottom length of 455 feet, and an extreme breadth of 97 feet. The depth of sill at high water is 26 feet, with a variation of 25 feet from the ordinary spring and the heavy high tides. A peculiar feature of the dock is the tar concrete filling behind the sides or abutments, by which the basin is made practically water-tight.

"Two centrifugal pumps, with a mean individual discharge of 35,000 gallons a minute, will drain the dock, requiring for that service something over an hour and a half. With certain modifications demanded by the navy department, the dock was built after the plans of O von Nerta, by Justin McCarthy, the contractor, both Washingtonians.

"Today this dock is the only completed one in the United States able to take in one of our first class battle-ships, and the strategic meaning of this becomes more marked when it is known that the next nearest is that at Halifax, Nova Scotia, which, by the law of neutrality and the limited time allowance, would be denied us in a season of hostilities.

"The admission of the Indiana will try to the utmost the possibilities of the dock and establish the soundness of a very vital factor in the maintenance of our line of battle's efficiency, while widening our resources—desiderata strongly emphasized by Chief Constructor Hiebhorn in his paper on 'Experience Gained with our New Steel Ships.'

The Ins and Outs of It.
If you get best wear out of a coat, best work must have gone into it. You can't get good bread out of poor flour.

Moral: You can't get the best out of anything, unless the best is in it; and the best has to be put in before it can be taken out. Now, we have a rule to test those sarsaparillas with a big "best" on the bottle. "Tell us what's put in you and we'll decide for ourselves about the best." That's fair. But these modest sarsaparillas say: "Oh! we can't tell. It's a secret. Have faith in the label." . . . Stop! There's one exception; one sarsaparilla that has no secret to hide. It's Ayer's. If you want to know what goes into Ayer's Sarsaparilla, ask your doctor to write for the formula. Then you can satisfy yourself that you get the best of the sarsaparilla argument when you get Ayer's.
