Camden, S. C.

Senator Tillman for President.

Gov. Evans has just returned from a trip to New York and Washington. Immediately upon his return he was interviewed by a representative of one of the daily papers and the following account of the interview is given:

He was in good health and spirits and talked pleasantly on politics, State and national.

On the table in his library lay a handsome gold-headed walking cane, with John Gary Evans, April 21, 1896, engraved thereon. It was presented by an admirer of the Governor.

When asked how he was pleased with the actions of the different county conventions, which were held on Monday, he answered that he was more than satisfied with the result.

When the State convention met on the 14th inst., he said, Tillman would be present with a strong majority of the delegates thinking as he does, and ready to act with him.

There was no doubt in his mind about Tillman being sent at the head of the delegation from this State to Chicago. The delegates would probably go uninstructed, but with a firm determination to nominate a man as candidate for President who stood for silver at 16 to 1.

As to holding, he hardly thought the delegation would find it necessary, for there would be a majority at the Chicago convention holding the same views as they did on the monetary question.

The Governor was particularly gratified with the results in Charleston, Greenville and Laurens. One-half of the Charleston delegation, he said, were stalwart administration men, who could be relied on to support him.

In Laurens he hardly got in by the 14th inst. delegates in the convention supporting him. He would come to Columbia, but as a member of the State Convention, would, to use a slang expression, "not cut any ice."

His inconsistency is being brought out fairly, he thinks, for last year the senator would not hear of a division of delegates with the Antis, while now it looks as if he is trying hard to get their support since he is about to lose his seat in the senate.

The Governor is of the opinion that he is the man who is about to unseat Gray in the senate. Everything is moving smoothly to that end, so he says, and he entertains no fears of the result.

When Greenville was mentioned, Governor Evans could not repress a smile. "Yes," he said, "Gray and Demibush have been given back seats." He thought that the fight in Greenville had been made on very much the same line as it will be for the senate and it ends the same way he will carry the county.

While in Washington, the Governor said he had talked with many leading men from all over the United States. Almost every man thought Tillman the logical candidate to nominate on a free silver platform.

To win the fight for the Democratic party and silver, against McKinley, it will take a man who can arouse the enthusiasm of the people in the west. No half-hearted man would stand any showing, the times requiring a man of Tillman's magnetism.

It is marvelous, he says, to note the number of letters Tillman receives from all over the country, telling him how much he is admired. They are not confined to the west, but come from New York and other eastern States.

Tillman was not a candidate for the presidential nomination, but if the party demanded his services he would of course make the fight for silver.

Tillman's name would, almost without doubt, the governor said, be presented to the convention, and if it were he would probably receive the nomination.

As for Tillman not ranking well in Washington, that was all nonsense. He was regarded by other senators as a very able man and was listened to with great attention whenever he spoke.

In conclusion, the governor said: "Tillman's prebend will be the emblem of the victorious farmers of the south and west and there is promise of lively times ahead. Tillman stands before the nations now, as he stood in South Carolina in 1890 and I look for the same result."
