The Censor.—His Duties and Responsibilities.

Occasionally we hear the title of "censor" centered upon certain persons, sometimes to a sarcastic, and at others in a complimentary sense, but it is seldom that the person using the title in conversation stops to consider (even if he or she knows) its true significance.

In ancient times the people of the Roman Republic regularly elected two of their number as Censors of the affairs of the Republic. It was the duty of these censors to watch over the moral as well as the material welfare of the Roman people, and to correct by such means as seemed to them advisable the various abuses that would creep into the body politic of a government that was of, by and for the people.

Space will not permit of a more extended description of the ancient censor, except that in those days, before people became so highly civilized that a slight bit of criticism would bring them up in arms directly, the office was considered as one of great importance and honor, and its occupants were revered as props to the stability of the Republic.

At some time, either before or after Christ (I've forgotten which), the office was abolished by the then reigning Emperor. In these latter days every one is in a sense a censor, their sphere of usefulness (or harmfulness) being bounded only by their capacity and opportunities for doing good or evil. The preacher in the pulpit is a censor because he tells his congregation of their faults and shortcomings, while he in turn is mentally exonerated by the listener in front, because he had seen the preacher scorching on a bicycle, or going out of town with a gun on his shoulder, preceded or followed by a "faller dog." The Christian woman is often by her sister workers in the vineyard of the Lord, denominated a hypocrite because of super-anxiety in dealing with the small things of life. The President of the Nation, Governor of States, Mayor of Cities, down to the lowest officer of a municipality and the humblest citizen of the Republic, none are free from censorious comments, for all are liable to it, and all at some period deserve it.

It is a rare thing however in these days that a real censor comes to the front and by word and pen tells the people plainly of evils present and warns them to prepare against its yet to come. Like all in extraordinary circumstances the man who attempts that role will meet with social as well as political ostracism. It is through fear of these two so-called evils that the membership of the majority of our Christian churches are held in tight regard. It is this fear that palsies the nerve and dampens the ardor of many a daring spirit and it is this cowardly and shuffling spirit that will drag down from power and power many who now fill the public eye.

It may be that later I will give the readers of The Chronicle a few more thoughts on this subject, but for the present I will close with the remark that the above article has a moral.

Who can find it? Respectfully, W. A. Seelrock.

Senator Tillman on the Situation in North Carolina.—He Thinks the Negro Editor Should be Food For the Catfish.

Senator Tillman on the 4th inst addressed a meeting in Charlotte. The following is the press dispatch relative thereto:

"One of the largest Democratic rallies of the present campaign was held in Charlotte today. There were about 1,000 mounted men in the parade. Senator Ben Tillman, of South Carolina and Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia were the speakers. They were enthusiastically received. Senator Tillman began by arraignment of Grover Cleveland, and after reviewing the conditions in North Carolina, urged the Democrats and Equalists to shake hands and get together, as no man need stay out of the Democratic party now on account of Clevelandism. "Poison in North Carolina now," he said, "is nothing but Republicanism. The way to kill fusion is to invite Populists back as brothers and white men who love North Carolina. But if they don't come, as one of the men who has the 150,000 Democrats will no longer submit to the present state of things. I say this because you people are of the same race as South Carolinians. In South Carolina the white woman could shake the white woman of the State as that Wilmington negro did. That negro might now be found in the catfish in the bottom of the Cape Fear River, instead of going around above ground. The negroes ruled as down in South Carolina once, but they never shandered our women like that, nor were they ever allowed to insult them.

You need not disfranchise any white people up here; neither need you disfranchise any negroes. But if you don't, you white people must stick together. It is a question whether you can stay longer and keep out the thieves. The source of government is the individual citizen. The stream cannot rise higher than its source. But when a State with 1,000,000 white majority give a State that government and parliamentarianism to the negro, it is hardly desirable to match sympathy.

Since the above mentioned speech was delivered notice has been served upon the negro editor to leave forthwith together with his printing establishment, and in the execution of the notice yesterday at 12 o'clock a riot occurred in which four negroes were killed.

The Thornwell Orphanage, under the care of the Southern Presbyterian, is located in Clinton S. C. It is itself a little village of family cottages, in which reside one hundred and seventy-five orphans and matrons. Here are the buildings for school and trade work for both boys and girls, are thoroughly fitted to care for themselves before being sent out into the world. These orphans are received from any State, and without regard to denominational affiliations. The orphans of Presbyterian parentage are in the majority. No indenturing or binding in or out, as in most homes, is required of the orphans. Love and advantage are the all-powerful means of discipline. The support of these children is provided by "whosoever will." It is wholly voluntary. If any reader of these lines is led to help them, he can send his gift to "The Thornwell Orphanage, Clinton, S. C." Provisions are as useful as money, where they can move easily be spared. At these thanksgiving times, our hearts are still alive with gratitude to God. How can we better show it than by pitying the fatherless?

Dr. Jacobs, the head of the Orphanage, will gladly give information to any desiring to know more of this remarkable and in some respects, pioneer work for the orphans.

The Charleston Messenger, a negro paper, says: "The white man is not against negro enterprises and negro prosperity among themselves. They rejoice in the hope of negroes trying to be something. It is the negro who hates to see another negro get up in the world."

Tonia. The box for which was given to the house of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Davis on last Tuesday night was quite a success. Among those who attended from a distance were Miss Alberta H. Landon and her mother, of Flint Hill, Mrs. J. W. English and daughter, Miss Jennie and Miss M. Ann Gilson, of Bishopville.

Miss Burgess Watts has returned to her home at Cherry after a short stay with friends here. Miss Watts' warm friends will be here who will be pleased to see her in our midst again.

On last Sunday morning Mr. A. H. Baker, of Lenoir and Miss Eva Plank, well of Darlington were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. The marriage took place in the Baptist Church, Rev. C. D. Peterson officiating. The attendants were Mr. Eddie Baker, brother of the groom who was best man, and Miss Julia Colvin, maid of honor. Mr. W. H. Lee, of Smithville, with Miss Annie Lee, of Zion, Mr. James Davis, Jr., of Antioch, with Miss L. G. Howay of Lenoir, M. J. Dalton, Gateway, of Lenoir, with Miss Carrie May of Mt. Zion. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the groom's parents, where a bonafide feast was awaiting us. After spending the remainder of the day very pleasantly we all took our departure, wishing for Mr. and Mrs. Baker a peaceful and flowery pathway through this "vale of tears" and hoping that they would have had enough clouds to make a gorgeous sunset.

Mr. Stephen M. Boykin has returned to the State Farm after a short stay at his old home here.

Our community was so shocked on last Wednesday, when the announcement was made that Mr. Thomas Holland had passed a way. Mr. Holland was nearing eighty years of age and had been sick for sometime, though not seriously so, and no one dreamed that the end was so near, until Sunday before his death, when he was taken seriously ill and all the loving hands could do could not stay the cruel hand of death. The remains were laid away by the side of his faithful and loving wife (whom he only survived a few years) in the cemetery at Salem. Mr. Holland was a consistent member of Salem M. E. Church. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him. Those who knew him best loved him best. The funeral was preached by Rev. C. D. Peterson, of Antioch. We extend our deepest sympathy to the grief-stricken family. Charterbox.

Abney. Mr. Editor:—After a long silence I come again claiming my place in your valuable column, although news is very scarce.

Our farmers are about through gathering. Corn stacking is now the order of the day. Cotton is out says someone and so is everything else except poverty and debts.

Miss Maud Wilson one of Marion's sweet and charming young ladies has charge of the Abney School. The patrons of the school are to be congratulated on securing the services of such an amiable teacher.

Prof. R. Thom. Blackmon, of "Hale Gold Mine has been elected teacher of the Roland School. Mr. Blackmon, though young, is one of the best teachers in Lancaster County.

With best wishes to all the correspondents and the editor we close. G. E. P.

To My Patrons & Friends:

This is the beginning of another season with cotton at 4 and 5 cents per pound. This means cheap goods or no sale. I have got the goods and they have got to be sold and as I have always said I never allow any one to undersell me, the money is what I want and that I am going to have if you come in my store. I have a big stock as usual, fresh and nice; never have and old stale stock.

FRESH GOODS

coming in every day. I went in business in 1891 when cotton was about the same price it is now and I am still here doing my share; some predicted that I would not pull through that season. Low priced cotton don't frighten me, I have gone through a hotter battle than this. I sold my goods for such small profits, I find that it pays to make small profits and quick sales. I have kept it up and I don't want to change it. I will say to those who have stores in the country to come in I will divide the profits with you as I have always done. Some business houses may tell you they carry a larger stock than I do; you can say to them you get more for a dollar.

than you get from them, it make but little difference to you how much stock they carry. What you want is all you can get for your money. I am satisfied with the past and I know I will be with the future for I am working just as hard for your trade as I ever did. Come on you will find me at the same place.

Yours Respectfully,
D. E. HINSON.
