The long trial of Captain Alfred Dreyfus, the much persecuted Jew, on the charge of treaton, ended at Rennes, France, on Saturday in a way that was not at all unexpected. The military dribunal at whose bar he stood accused, Bryan. All the mines were closed has from the first been deeply prejudiced against him, and has not lost an opportunity to display that bitter prejudice, arregantly flounting it in the face of an outraged public at all times.

The trial has been a farce from the beginning Dreyfus has shown the bearing of a man and a soldier throughout the terrible ordeal, and today stands immeasurably above the pigmies who accuse him and the perjued judges who condemned him without a scintilla of evidence on which to

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S TROPHY. CRUISE OF THE WILMINGTON. South Americans Object to the Exploring Expedition. Washington, D. C., Special .-- The rumors of possible combination among the States of Contrat and South America, directed against the United States, are received with some concern by officials here. Nearly a year ago this spirit of distrust on the part of the Latin-American people was first exhibited in the semi-official discussion by the press of the United States of Columbia, of a proposition to combine the nations of South and Central The central idea underlying the America. In that case, the ostensible purpose was to resist unjust demands for indomnities by foreign States. But incidentally during the discussion, it appeared that the scope of the combination would be broader than this and there was more than one intimation of a deep-scated distrust on the part of the United States. Two or three events have occurred since that discussion to strengthen this feeling. First there was a decision adverse to Colombia in the Cerruti case, and as President Cleveland was the arbiter. that unpopular decision was charged against the United States. Then, last spring, came the cruise of the United States gun-boat Wilmington up the Amazon and the Orinoco. These voyages were undertaken from innocent scientific and commercial motives. Commander Todd, of the Wilming-

His actions were, settled with honor to our country. If however, misinterpreted by some of the war continues, it will be a political the natives though in the end Captain issue, but if it ends, I doubt whether Todd is believed to have perfectly the question of the permanent retention satisfied the Brazillan officials as to the rectitude of his purpose. It is of the islands will figure so largely m the next campaign. The trouble with all said at the department that there is of us is that we lack information. WEEKLY CROP BULLETING Cotton Picking is Progressing Rapidly-Cur ing Tobacco is Practically Over. The mean temperature, during the week ending September 11, 1899, averaged about 88 degrees, which is nearly seven degrees per day above the normal. A maximum of 101 was recorded at Cheraw, and a minimum of 62 at Temperance. There were local showers over the untire State, light along the coast and over the Peo Dec region, havy over the central and western countles. where many localities had weekly amounts in excess of two inches. The need of tam is indicated for the two regions first named, while dry weather is needed to permit gathering crops over the greater portion of the State. Army worms either have already disappeared, or are fast disappearing. Corn that has recently come into silk and tassel, and on bottom lands. looks promising, but generally the crop has not improved and is a poor one. Fodder pulling is nearly finished and the fodder has been (secured in good condition. Locally heavy rains and high wluds damaged open cotton, and a few reports of rotting and sprouting were received. Picking was started in a lew western counties, by wet weather, but generally it made rapid progress as from half to two-thirds of the bolls are open, caused by the continued excessive heat. In sections, about all the cotton will be gathered during this month. There will be no top crop over most of the State, although late cotton is still growing and blooming, as it is improbable that frultage now being put on will have time to mature before frost. Also much cotton is not growing at all, the stalks having reached full maturity. Poor yields are reported from all sections, and as picking advances, the tendancy is to reduce previous estimates.

Sea island cotton has improved slightly, although it is rusting and is opening slowly. Second growth is also a damaging prevailing condition.

The weather was ideal for harvesting rice, and about half the crop has been out and stacked while the remainder is ipening fast.

Sorghum is being pressed and boiled with fairly good yields of excelent guilty of syrup. Grass for hay and pastures is making rapid growth. Peavines being cut for forage. Peas have mproved except in Marlboro and Cheserfield counties, where hot, dry weathor ruined them. The general prospect for minor crops is now quite promising, especially so for sweet potatocs. In the truck regions, fall crops are being planted, and the second crop of Irish pected has happened. Dreyfus has been condemned but though a majority of those in the court room fully expected the verdict, they were completely stupsfied when it was given, and the silence which prevailed in the room and the way mon turned pale and caught their breaths was more impressive than any other manifestation could have been.

As the audience left the court room fully 10 or 15 men were crying openly and the majority of these present walked quietly down the stret for more , than a block without speaking a word. It was like a funeral procession.

Meanwhile a tragedy was being enacted in the little room off the court. room, where Dreyfus listened to the reading of the verdict. He had been told the result by his lawyers and had wept bitterly, but when in the presence of the officials of the court martial, he listened impassively to the sentence.

His wife, who was waiting in torture and suspense at hes house, bore the news brayely, and when visiting her husband in the evening, showed the onlookers who were in the streets no sign of her sufferings as she walked from her carriage to the prison.

Mathieu Dreyfus was not present in court, but visited his brother after the verdict had been rendered. He found him perfectly calm and without any manifestation of surprise at the finding of the court.

The prisoner simply snrugged his shoulders, uttering an expressive "bah!" adding as he embraced his brother as the latter was preparing to leave, "console my wife."

The general helief is that Dreyfus will be pardoned; but this will not satisfy his friends, who vehemently dcclare that they will continue the battie until the judgment is reversed. The verdict, they say, is directed, more against the Jews than against Dreyius, and if allowed to stand will make the!r existence in France impossible. Maitre Labori and Maitre Demange took the midnight train for Paris. They drove to the station to a closed carriage, edcorted by four mounted gendarmes.

The road was practically deserted and no demonstration occurred. Maitre Demange and Maitre Labori will sign an application for a revision of the case, elthough there is no hope that the verdict will be revised. Both are much upset, though it can hardly be said that they are surprised.

The appearance on the streets when Rennes awoke Saturday morning left o doubte in the minds of any one that. the final crisis of the great trial had been reached. Instead of scattered darmes guarding the vicinity of the prison and the Lycee, the whole town bristled with soldiers, all the strects near the pourt were guarded at interof infantry mit on the church steps adjoining the Lyces, with their arms stabled in front of them, while in the proof pard of the prices and pt vanious state paints. covair/

he subscription of another $50,000. The Druce vault in Highgate Cemetery, London, contains, as alleged, the remains of Thomas C. Druce, who, it is asserted by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Anna Maria Druce, was the fifth Duke of Portland.

The faculty of the Diocese of London, in compliance with an order of the High Court of Appeal, on November 25, 1898, granted Mrs. Anna Maria Druce a permit to open and inspect the coffin containing the remains of Druce or a man buried as the latter. When the decision was rendered by Chancellor Triston, at the Consistory of the Court of St. Paul's, fifteen days were grar.ted for an appeal, notification of which was given at once, and on February 17 last the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice granted a rule to prohibit the order of the Consistory of the Court of St. Paul's being carried into effect without the sanction of the Home Secretary. Mrs. Druce claims that her fatherin-law's death and burial under the name of Druce were deceptions, and that he died later in a lunatic asylum under the name of Dr. Harmer. Her son, to whom she says the title of Duke of Portland is due, is in Australia, employed as a servant.

A recent/estimate of the rent roll of the Portland estate placed it at $2,000.-000 a year. It is claimed that Druce suffered remorse and abject fear, and that by adopting the name of Thomas C. Druce he transferred to himself as Druce an Immense property from himself as Duke of Portland. After realizing the risk of exposure from his double existence, he decided to end his life as Druce, and caused a coffin to be buried with his supposed remains.

It was announced last December that Mrs. Druce would carry the case to the House of Lords, and in order to obtain the necessary expenses was about to issue $500,000 of "Druce-Portland bonds," the holders of which, she claimed, would receive $25 for every $5 within twelve months after her son succeeds to the dukedom and estates She declared that $55,000 of these bonds had already been taken up.

Washington, D. C., Special.-It is believed that when Congrees assembles there will be considerable agitation of a proposition for the government to abandon its participation in the Paris exposition.
