Now and Then.

The sap is climbing up the tree,
And, dear, on every bough
Pink blooms are bursting from their sheathes.
'Tis nearly summer now;
I see the glint of your blue eyes,
Of your caressing hair,
Though you are there and I am here,
I love you here and there.

The old rock in the cool, dear,
I know it and I see,
And the cool shade, heed of our heard,
You'll perhaps call to me.
I greet you from the orchard perch,
You know it all and see,
I loved you when I'd helped you down,
I love you still and on.

And now, my love, when Sunday
It is the same to me that you knew
In days remembered well
The love that is in my heart
'Tis true is constant still
Know, heart, you will change
I love you now as then.

THIS DOLPHIN PILOTS SHIPS.

New Zealand Legislature Passes Act to Protect "Pelorus Jack."

"Pelorus Jack" is the name of an old dolphin which is protected by a special act of the New Zealand legislature.

According to an Australian colonist, George Hayes, the official proclamation of the government prohibits any interference with Pelorus Jack under a penalty of £100.

Forty years ago, when Mr. Hayes first emigrated to Australia, he heard an old sailor's tale, according to which a shoal of dolphins grounded on the shores of Cook Strait, and one of them escaped into the sea. That one, which is now acknowledged to be Pelorus Jack, never left the locality where he lost his companions, and, as Mr. Hayes says, "he is now protected by law as he has always been by sentiment."

The most remarkable fact of all is the one for the passage of the law, which is that Pelorus Jack acts as a most effective pilot, escorting all kinds of vessels in and out of the French Pass, Cook Strait, always keeping to deep water.

For years he was believed to be a porpoise, or white whale, but recent scientific investigation has shown that he is really a dolphin. As he never absents himself from his duties the proclamation has been received with keen satisfaction throughout Australasia by sailors who have to use the French Pass.

Overworking a Typewriter.

"When a typewriter has been operated for several hours at a stretch it becomes a centre of electrical phenomena," remarked a stenographer. "Touch it with connecting metallic and you will get a distinct shock. At the same time there will be a crackling sound and a spark will appear at the point of contact. If another person than the one who has been operating it should begin to pound the keyboard after the machine has been in continuous use for a couple of hours he will experience a real electrical sensation, the pins and needles feeling of a foot asleep. Drawing the sheet of paper off the roller rapidly will charge the paper and it will crackle when laid on other paper. It will also adhere to the other sheets or to any surface with which it comes in contact and quite a little fuss is necessary to loosen it. A long worked typewriter seems to become an electrical plant on a small scale and will furnish all sorts of surprises."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

News About Nerves.

London, Eng.—The Marshall Hall Prize, given every five years by the Royal Medical Society, has been awarded to Henry Head for an important discovery of the workings of the nervous system. Prof. Head had the sensory nerves of his arm divided, and then he watched the sensations that followed. Then he had the nerves knitted by stitching, and he watched the process of recovery. The result was that he discovered that there are two distinct sets of sensory nerves. One conveys the sensations of pain, heat and cold. The other conveys the sensation of touch, and also enables one to localize the sensations precisely. The lightning power of the skin depends entirely on the former.—Exchange.

CHANGED HUSBAND.

Who Made Wise Change in Food.

Change of diet is the right way to help many sick and ailing people.

A woman says:

"My husband had [illegible] when we were married and had [illegible] from it for several years. It was almost impossible to find anything he could eat without [illegible].

"I thought this was largely due to [illegible] and persuaded him to change [illegible]. He did so and began to drink Postum Food Coffee. The change did him so [illegible] from the beginning, his digestion improved, he suffered much less from indigestion, and when he added Grape-Nuts food to his diet he was soon entirely cured.

"My friend, Mrs. [illegible], of Vicksburg, my former home, had become a nervous wreck also from dyspepsia. Medicines had no effect, neither did travel helpher. On my last visit home I [illegible] and persuaded her to try Grape-Nuts food. She was in despair, and consented. She stuck to it and it restored her health so completely that she is now the most enthusiastic friend of Grape-Nuts that I ever knew. She eats it with cream or milk just as it comes from the package [illegible] in her room and eats it when-ever it is [illegible]."

"I can endorse Grape-Nuts food myself, when my baby was two months old and I don't know what I should have done with it. My appetite was poor, I was weak and nervous and afforded but very little nourishment for the child. The Grape-Nuts food, of which I soon grew very fond, speedily set all this right again and the baby grew healthful, rosy and beautiful as a mother could wish. He is two years old now and eats Grape-Nuts food himself. I wish every tired young mother knew of the good that Grape-Nuts would do her."

EXPLOSION ON GUNBOAT

Boiler on the U. S. S. Bennington Bursts, Killing Many of Crew.

VESSEL IMMEDIATELY BEACHED

Accident Occurs Off San Diego, Cal., While Ship Was Preparing to Put Out to Sea—Defective Boiler Caused the Accident — Sailors Blown Overboard and High in the Air.

San Diego, Cal. By the blowing up of two of the main boilers of the United States gunboat Bennington in the harbor here Lieutenant Newman K. Perry, Jr., and at least thirty nine men were killed instantaneously and over three score of the crew were seriously injured.

There were really two explosions. The first took place in what is known as Boiler B, at the top of the lower furnace. The boiler was jammed back on Boiler A, and this was forced out of place and blew up. The explosion took place at 10.15 o'clock a. m., while all hands were at their stations and the vessel was about to get under way to go to the aid of the monitor Wyoming, which met with an accident off Port Hartford.

There were more than 250 men aboard when the accident occurred, and many were hurled or forced to jump into the sea by the terrific explosion, which lifted part of the deck and compelled the beaching of the ship.

The Bennington was lying in the stream just off the Commercial Wharf at 11 street. She had received orders from the Navy Department at Washington to sail in the morning to convey the Wyoming to Mare Island Navy Yard, San Francisco.

Steam was up and everything was in readiness for departure when the starboard boilers exploded with a deafening roar.

Where the harbor had been a scene of peace the air was suddenly filled with fumes, the water was strewn with the dead and dying, and the echoes of the explosion were reverberating through the city.

Men Blown 100 Feet High.

People on the shore saw a huge cloud of steam rise above the Bennington. Columns of water were forced high into the air. A dozen or fifteen men were blown overboard by the force of the explosion. Captain Wentworth, who was looking at the Bennington when the disaster occurred, says he saw human bodies hurled over a hundred feet upward. The air was clouded with smoke, which enveloped the ship.

When the haze cleared away only a few men could be seen on the decks, while many were floundering in the water. Boats were lowered from the vessel's side and most of the men in the water were picked up and taken on board.

On board the Bennington were presented terrible scenes. The force of the explosion had torn a great hole in the starboard side of the ship and the vessel was already commencing to list. A section of the upper deck was carried away from stem to stern. Wreckage was distributed over the entire ship. The after cabin and that part of the ship adjacent to the exploded boiler were torn up and bodies blown to pieces were in the debris.

Commander Distrusted Boiler.

The boiler which exploded, it is said, was regarded as unsafe. Commander Young stated that during a recent return from Honolulu the steam pressure was kept reduced in that particular one.

At the time of the accident Commander Lucien Young and Surgeon F. E. Peck were on shore. The officers, as soon as they learned of the disaster, hurried to the water front. Commander Young, as soon as he reached the ship gave orders that the air-tight compartments be closed to prevent the listing craft from sinking and that the magazines be flooded to avert further explosions. He then beached the vessel at high tide.

The removal of the wounded was conducted in perfect order. The crews of the De Russey and the other boats aided in transferring the men to shore.

The men bore their injuries with the greatest fortitude. Lined out in lines on the beach they gripped one another's hands and shut their teeth in their agony.

The hospitals were overfilled in an hour and private houses were thrown open and the mistresses of them Red Cross sisters of mercy on the moment. Ambulances were telegraphed for to the surrounding towns, and in a short time the work of transferring and caring medical and surgical assistance to the injured was being carried on systematically.

Boilers Fifteen Years Old.

Washington, D. C. Information that the boilers of the gunboat Bennington were fifteen years old and had been the cause of several reports was received here after news of the disaster to the craft became known. The boilers were installed in 1892-93.

The Admiral of the Pacific fleet in 1904 reported to the Navy Department that the boilers were in need of repairs but that the repairs were not urgent. A report from the engineer officer of the ship received at the department about the same time was that the boilers generally were in good condition but that the internal conditions were good.

HOOKER NOT REMOVED

Resolution Aimed at Justice Defeated in New York Legislature.

Vote in Assembly Was 76 Ayes to 67 Noes—One Hundred Votes Required to Pass It—Senate Did Not Act.

Albany, N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Warren B. Hooker, of Fredonia, escaped removal from office by the failure of the removal resolution to receive the necessary two thirds vote of the Assembly, the Senate not being compelled to put itself on record.

The vote on the resolution was: Ayes, 76; noes, 67. One hundred votes were necessary to pass the resolution, and, owing to absentees and vacancies, only 96 votes were required to defeat it. Forty one Republicans and thirty five Democrats voted for removal; fifty-eight Republicans and nine Democrats against removal.

After the defeat of the resolution was announced Mr. Agnew moved that since a majority of the members favored removal, the Assembly adopt a resolution censuring Justice Hooker. The resolution was tabled and practically killed by a large vote.

At the conclusion of action on the Hooker resolution Assemblyman Tomkins offered a resolution declaring that the testimony of State Tax Commissioner Lester F. Stearns had been discredited and repudiated, and that he had been found guilty of "subornation of perjury or perjury" and calling upon the Governor to bring about an investigation of his conduct, with a view to removing him from office. The resolution was ruled out of order.

The question of the removal of Justice Hooker came in final form before the Legislature at 10 o'clock, when Assemblyman Robert J. Fish, of Madison, Chairman of the Assembly Committee on the Judiciary, presented for adoption a concurrent resolution calling for the removal of Justice Hooker on the ground "that the said Warren B. Hooker, while a representative in Congress, prior to the tenth day of November, 1898, and while a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York since the said tenth day of November, 1898, has been wilfully guilty of corrupt, unlawful and immoral acts, which have tended to bring and have brought the said office of Justice of the Supreme Court and the administration of justice into contempt, and which show a personal unfitness on the part of said Warren B. Hooker to hold and occupy the office of Justice of the Supreme Court, which acts and conduct are set forth and described in the following allegations and specifications."

The vote upon this resolution was announced to be the only action necessary for the Assembly.

The most dramatic incident was the heated speech of the floor leader of the majority, James T. Rogers, of Broome, who voted in favor of Justice Hooker after a remarkable address, which closed with an impassioned appeal for clemency. He recommended that the Legislature say to the Justice, "Go, and sin no more."

Justice Hooker, unless he should resign or something unforeseen should happen, will remain on the Supreme Court bench for nine and a half years more. He showed great satisfaction when informed of the result of the vote, but gave no indication as to his intentions. Although elected in the Eighth Judicial District, which includes Erie County, he is at present serving on the Appellate Division bench in Brooklyn.

DANIEL S. LAMONT DEAD

Former Secretary of War Passes Away at Millbrook, N. Y.

First Protege, Then Intimate Friend of Ex-President Cleveland, He Became a Power in the Financial World.

Millbrook, N. Y. Daniel S. Lamont, private secretary to Grover Cleveland during his term as Governor and his first term as President, Secretary of War in Mr. Cleveland's second term, the most intimate personal friend Mr. Cleveland had, and a man prominent in railway affairs, died at 9:45 o'clock p. m. at his summer home at this place, twelve miles from Poughkeepsie.

The first intelligence of his death was conveyed in a dispatch sent by Miss Frances Lamont, one of his daughters, to Mr. Cleveland, who is now at his summer home on the Frye farm, North Sandwich, N. H. The message was sent to New Hampshire from Poughkeepsie only a few minutes before midnight and read:

"Father died to night. Come at once."

Mr. Lamont appeared in his usual health on the day before his death. He was entertaining a number of guests at his country home, Altamont, and in the afternoon took a long drive with Mrs. Lamont.

Returning, he dined with the party at his home, and it was not until 8.45 that he was taken ill. He was attended by Dr. Seward, of New York, one of his guests, but did not rally after he was stricken and died in exactly half a hour. It is believed that heart disease was the cause.

Mrs. Lamont and their daughters, Bessie and Frances, were with him when he died.

Daniel Scott Lamont was born in Cortlandville, Cortland County, N. Y., on February 8, 1852. His father was John B. Lamont and his mother Elizabeth Scott. His father was a country storekeeper, from which business he retired not many years ago with a competence.

Mr. Lamont had been identified with politics from his earliest boyhood. He was graduated from Union College in Schenectady, and immediately after leaving there he was appointed an engrossing clerk in the Assembly by Governor Hoffman. This was in 1870, when he was not yet nineteen years of age.

From this time on he was deeply involved in politics.

The death of Mr. Lamont will undoubtedly affect affairs in Wall Street. He had become interested in many big corporations, and was Vice president and director in the following companies: Northern Pacific Railway Company, St. Paul and Northern Railway Company, Northern Pacific Express Company, International Railway Company, Manitoba Railway Company, the Northwestern Improvement Company and Washington Central Railway Company.

Mr. Lamont's rise to wealth and prominence in the financial world began after the first Cleveland Administration, and it is generally believed that it was he who was instrumental in building up the fortune of Mr. Cleveland.

Portsmouth, N. H. [illegible]'s Point, which has been a [illegible] navigation in the Piscataqua River for many years, has been blown up. The explosion was witnessed by a crowd estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000 persons including Governor John McLane and staff, of New Hampshire; Senators Burnham and Gallinger and Congressmen Sulloway and Currier.

The explosion took place at nine minutes after 1 in the afternoon, when Miss Edith Foster, daughter of Superintendent Foster, pressed the button that discharged the forty pounds of dynamite. A huge mass of rocks and timbers was hurled into the air for a distance of 100 to 150 feet, forming a grand spectacle.

The work has been in progress for three years and the contract price calls for $7,000,000. When completed the channel at this point will be widened 250 feet and there will be a depth of forty feet at low water, allowing battleships of the largest class to go to the Navy Yard.

AIDS NATURE'S WORK

EFFECT OF ACETYLENE RAYS ON GROWTH OF PLANTS.

Grow to Twice Actual Weight of Those Exposed to Sunlight Only — Latest Victory For This New and Beautiful Illuminant.

The experiments recently made at Cornell University prove that the beautiful rays from the gas, acetylene, are as effective as sunlight on the growth of plants, and this may soon become a subject for serious consideration by all progressive cultivators of the soil.

The results of the experiments are astonishing, inasmuch as they show conclusively the great increase of growth attained by supplementing "The Light of Nature" with "The Light of Acetylene" during the hours in which the plants would otherwise be in darkness. For instance, a certain number of radish plants subjected to acetylene light during the night grew to twice the actual weight of the same number of radishes given daylight only, all other conditions being equal, and peas had blossomed and partially matured pods with the help of acetylene light, while without the added light not even buds were apparent.

Acetylene is already taking its place as an illuminant for towns from a central plant, for lighting houses, churches, schools and isolated buildings of all kinds, and it is being used successfully for many other purposes.

A striking and important feature of acetylene is the ease and small expense with which it can be made available compared with the great advantages derived from its use. The machine in which the gas is generated is easily installed.

Shoemakers Once Were Well Paid.

Thirty years ago, when all shoes were made by hand, the shoemaker earned a fair salary of from $12 to $16 per week. Every shoe shop had from five to ten shoemakers working. Shoes and boots cost from $8 to $15, and they received much more repairing than do the shoes of to-day. Now girls are working in the factories and hundreds of good shoemakers are looking for something to eat. Over half of the shoemakers who formerly worked in the shops are working at other lines of business, and making more money.

A journeyman cobbler seldom makes more than $8 or $9 per week.

One may wonder why it is that the cobbler nearly always finds a mean, dirty hole to crawl into and to call it a repair shop. The fact is, he cannot afford to pay much rent. In the average shoe shop in the good seasons—spring and summer—he can do $4 worth of repairing a day, and not more than $6 if he works in the night time. Four dollars per day and six days a week make $24 per week.

There are some children whose arguments are unanswerable. To this class belongs one of the pupils at the Indian school at Chamberlain, S. D., a prim, grave, little maiden, whose name is Arrow. She is a chief's daughter. Her father and mother are quite civilized, and she is being brought up in a household as civilized as any Bostonian's.

"But your old doll," her mother answered, "is as good as ever."

"So am I as good as ever," little Arrow retorted, "but the doctor brought you a new baby."

AN OLD MAN'S TRIBUTE.

An Ohio Fruit Raiser, 78 Years Old, Cured of a Terrible Case After Ten Years of Suffering.

Sidney Justus, fruit dealer, of Mentor, Ohio, says: "I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills of a severe case of kidney trouble, of eight or ten years' standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift anything and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the day time, but just as bad at night, and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and dropsical swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful and the secretions were discolored and so free that often I had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me, and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Increasing Among Women, But Sufferers Need Not Despair

THE BEST ADVICE IS FREE

Of all the diseases known, with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal, and statistics show that this disease is on the increase among women.

Unless early and correct treatment is applied the patient seldom survives when once the disease is fastened upon her. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most efficient treatment for kidney troubles of women, and is the only medicine especially prepared for this purpose.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, frequent, painful or scalding urination, swelling of limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys or notices a brick-dust sediment in the urine, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it may be the means of saving her life.

For proof, read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Sawyer.

"I cannot express the terrible suffering I had to endure. A displacement of the female organs developed, causing prostration and a serious kidney trouble. The doctor attended me for a year, but I kept getting worse, until I was unable to do my housework. I finally decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had helped others, and I am to-day a well woman. I cannot praise it too highly, and I tell every suffering woman about my case." Mrs. Emma Sawyer, Conyers, Ga.

Let Common Sense Decide

Do you honestly believe, that coffee sold loose (in bulk), exposed to dust, germs and insects, passing through many hands (some of them not over-clean), "blended," you don't know how or by whom, is fit for your use? Of course you don't. But is another story. The green berries, selected by keen judges at the plantation, are skillfully roasted at our factories, where precautions you would not dream of are taken to secure perfect cleanliness, flavor, strength and uniformity.

From the time the coffee leaves the factory no hand touches it till it is opened in your kitchen.

This has made LION COFFEE the LEADER OF ALL PACKAGE COFFEES.

Millions of American Homes welcome LION COFFEE daily. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity. "Quality survives all opposition."

(Sold only in 1 lb. packages. Lion-head on every package.)
