Citizen No. 2 Replies.

Mr. Editor:—Please allow me a little space to reply to "Citizen" through your columns with regard to the dispensary situation. I happen to know something about the people of Kershaw county and it will take evidence of more mental calibre than "Citizen" has displayed to undermine the manhood of these people—when they realize what a low estimate he puts on them by appealing to prejudice about the cotton weighing business to dictate a policy for them to pursue.

Let us analyze the inconsistency of some of his statements. In one breath he says the Kershaw people have been outraged by Lancaster people in the weighing matter and in the next breath he says show your manhood and let the Lancaster county people give you a dispensary. Don't sign any petition—in other words just plow on!

The people have realized by this time that he was considerably off in the statement that the Lancaster people would be around to interfere with the dispensary as Messrs. D. M. Kerkley, D. A. Brown, O. M. Gay and J. T. Truesdel, with the assistance of Mr. W. L. Croxton are the gentlemen who are presenting the petition.

He insinuates that the town council is very much interested in the matter—(it is presumed that he speaks with authority). Part of the Council have signed a petition not to establish any dispensary. The first petition sent out in Kershaw county was presented to 50 men and 48 signed it, and if they had an opportunity to vote they would vote it out of the county. The old dispensary stamp that they have been whipping the devil around so long is fast decaying and the good people of South Carolina will inject a little social to alleviate the pain and extract the last root.

Lancaster county voted out the dispensary 8 to 1, and the town of Kershaw voted 92 against and 22 in favor of the dispensary and the sentiment growing stronger in favor of no stamp. Not over a half dozen drunk men have been incarcerated in the guard house since the election, fines growing less and trade improving. "Citizen" forgot to mention the big revenue for the schools which is 40 cents a year to the scholar. So the boys could not imitate much manhood from that source. Citizen No. 2.

Base Ball vs. Sewerage.

We are not condemning baseball. Far from it, we are gladly anticipating the season and a victorious Camden team. We believe that the baseball spirit instills life in the community otherwise dull during the summer months. Then too, this friendly rivalry between the various towns in the league brings each in closer contact and the result is surely beneficial. Other ways could be enumerated whereby baseball exercises a helpful spirit where played. The fever, as it were, has extended over the length and breadth of America. Camden has not escaped and the number of enthusiasts in the community is exceedingly great—all putting forth every possible power and regardless of expense for a baseball team. It seems to us that while this pleasant sport is being encouraged, there is a necessity that is being overlooked; that while the baseball fever has the populace mad, the question of sewerage has fallen into oblivion.

It is not our position that baseball should be sacrificed to sewerage; that the funds collected for the maintenance of a team should forthwith be appropriated to the establishment of a sewerage system. Let baseball flourish; we wish it long life; but we do say that as loud a cry as is being made for ball, so much greater and mightier in volume should be the cry for what was the primary motive in the asnaxiation of Kirkwood—sewerage. We have contrasted baseball and sewerage in one editorial, not to depreciate the former, but merely to show that the people are directing their energies in one direction, to the disregard of the other. We make a plea for division. The health of the community should be the first consideration. How poor will be the attendance at the Park if the citizens are prostrated by fever? So, for each cry for baseball, make ten for sewerage; we need it seriously, and we cannot understand why the subject is not receiving its just attention.
