Building at the Methodist Church.

Another addition is being made to the Methodist Church building. Several years ago a Sunday School room was built and now a room for the young men's bible class is being built. This class has grown to such proportions that a separate room is a necessity.

Field Editor of The Baptist Courier.

Rev. E. A. McDowell has accepted the position of field editor of the Baptist Courier. Speaking of this the Baptist Courier says:

"We are pleased to announce that Rev. E. A. McDowell has accepted the position of field editor of The Baptist Courier and this week enters upon his duties as such. Bro. McDowell is well known to the pastors of the State, by whom he is esteemed for his own and his work's sake, and we are sure he will receive their hearty co-operation in his work of enlarging the circulation of The Courier.

Bro. McDowell is a native of Camden, graduated from Furman University in 1892, and has been a pastor fifteen years. He has held two pastorates, one at Monticello, Fairfield county, and the other at Ninety-Six, where he has been for eight years. In both pastorates his work was eminently successful and we feel confident that his work with The Courier will be also.

Pastors who may desire him to visit their churches in the interest of The Courier should address him at Ninety-Six, S. C., where he will continue to reside for the present. He will be glad to hear from those who desire his help."

Booker Washington in Camden

An advertised Booker T. Washington delivered an address at the Opera House on Wednesday night last. He was greeted by a large audience, a good many of whom were white people. We did not hear the address, but we learn that it was very well received. We trust that it will be productive of much good among the colored people for whose benefit Washington is touring the State.

The Girls in Business

The truth is that the girls are getting the better of the boys in many lines of genteel employment. The boys may complain of this as they will, but the fact stands. The young women in this, and many other towns, after a certain hour, are quite as much in evidence on their way to work as the young men; and it can easily be seen that they look trim and neat, that they hold up their heads as if they were ready to meet the world and their employers. They have none of the appearance of having deprived themselves of the necessary amount of sleep, or of carrying a headache along with them. Indeed on a frosty morning it is pleasant to see how their eyes sparkle and how their cheeks glow. They are getting the better of the boys because they can be trusted to come to their work in good form. They may not be as strong as the boys, but they take care of their strength. They don't smoke, they don't chew, they don't drink, they don't gamble, they don't loaf.
