

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subsides inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and absolutely confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Advice—second, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps.

MUCH EXCITED ABOUT CASE

Mrs. Justice Refuses to Allow Operation and is Relieved by Cardui, the Woman's Tonic.
Pedro, O.—"I suffered for 35 years with weakness and female troubles, and nothing has done me so much good as Cardui," writes Mrs. Martin B. Justice, of Pedro, O. "Before I took Cardui, the woman's tonic, I became so bad that my son, who is a physician, wanted to have me operated on, but I refused and gave Cardui a trial. I had been so weak I could scarcely stand on my feet, but had taken Cardui only a few days when I became so much stronger. I had prolapse and became very much excited, but was greatly relieved as soon as I began to take Cardui. I thank you again and again."

GOOD ROADS CONGRESS

Southern Appalachian Association Meets in Asheville.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION

To Devise Ways and Means of Building 500 Miles of Good Roads in the Appalachian Mountains.

Asheville, N. C.—"There is no magical way of getting good roads and the people must go down in their pockets and bear the expenses if they want them," said Governor Kitchin of North Carolina in the opening address at the Southern Appalachian Good Roads Congress, in session here. Governor Kitchin added that the question of good roads was not a new one; that the Romans had built good roads—roads that have lasted more than 1,000 years. He said that the Romans appreciated the value of good highways, not only for purposes of war, but for the development of commerce.

Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt of North Carolina, was elected permanent chairman of the congress, and H. J. Watson of South Carolina was chosen secretary. Dr. Pratt, in opening the congress, stated that the purpose of the gathering was to devise ways and means for building 500 miles of good roads in the Appalachian mountains, with connecting links leading to South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia.

There were about 175 delegates from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia present. The work Georgia has done and is now doing in the interest of good roads was outlined to the convention by W. S. McCallie, state geologist. He briefly outlined the history of the movement in his state, telling how it began with colonization, when all roads led out from Savannah, and has continued to grow until the present. He spoke of the outlook as bright, especially in those counties where convict labor is used, which are building an aggregate of 12 miles of good roads every day.

But the real problem, he said, is in the mountain counties which have done but little, and where the taxable property is small compared with the mileage of roads. Links of the proposed system to the Piedmont section of Georgia will pass through this section and great stimulate interest.

NEW SICKNESS DISCOVERED.

"Creeping Eruption" Puzzle to Florida Doctors.
Pensacola, Fla.—A new disease in the south known as "creeping eruption," has been discovered by Captain F. H. Gosman, post surgeon of the artillery corps stationed at Fort Harrison. The victims are two artillerymen who were recently attacked by the disease and after ineffectual treatment by an assistant surgeon, they were turned over to Captain Gosman. This is said to be the first case of the kind in the south and the fourth case known in the United States.

According to Captain Gosman, the disease is caused by the lodgment of the eggs of a horse fly, and while not necessarily fatal, causes great discomfort and when not properly treated, becomes very aggravating. Photographs have been taken and will be forwarded with a full report of the cases to the department at Washington.

TO FIGHT NEAR BEER.

Georgia W. C. T. U. Will Begin to Wage War at Once.
Macon Ga.—A fight is to be aimed at near beer by the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Georgia. It is said that the state body now in session in Macon strongly desires to have a committee appointed to take care of legislation that will mean the abolishment of the sale of near beer. The fact that no change in the prohibition law for the next two years will not prevent the fight commencing at once.

Celestial Communication.
A story comes from a Kentucky town that is worth repeating. There lives there a woman who says that she has immediate communion with the Almighty, and now and then delivers to those of common clay a message that she has received from on high. The fact that these messages sometimes take on a very materialistic hue does not alter their effectiveness, in her opinion.

One day she went into the office of a well-known attorney and approached him solemnly as one about to reveal an awe-inspiring secret. "The Lord sent me to you for $25," she announced. "The attorney looked up and smiled. "That must be a mistake," he replied, blandly, "because the Lord knows I have not got it." Celestial communication was thereupon broken off.—From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Defended the Baby.
Tommy's mother had made him a present of a toy shovel and sent him out in the sand lot to play with his baby brother.

"Take care of the baby now, Tommy, and don't let anything hurt him," was mamma's parting injunction. Presently screams of anguish from baby sent the distracted parent flying to the sand lot. "For goodness' sake, Tommy, what has happened to the baby?" said she, trying to soothe the wailing infant.

"There was a naughty fly biting him on top of his head and I killed it with the shovel," was the proud reply.—Lippincott's.

Fertile in Explanation.
She—George, did you mail that letter I gave you last Monday morning?
He, cornered, but fertile in expedients—No, I didn't! And what's more, I demand to know its contents!
She, amazed—Why, George, what's the matter?
He, inwardly delighted—I'm jealous—that's what's the matter! Madly, desparately, insanely jealous!
She—You dear old goose! It's only a letter to Cousin Sue.
He, apparently much relieved—Is that all? How foolish of me. I'll go out and mail it at once.

A Complex Relation.
She—Who was the lady you just bowed to?
He—That was the second wife of the third husband of my first wife.

Nothing to Worry Her.

FOOD QUESTION
Settled With Perfect Satisfaction by a Dyspeptic.

It's not an easy matter to satisfy all the members of the family at meal time, as every housewife knows. And when the husband has dyspepsia and can't eat the simplest ordinary food without causing trouble, the food question becomes doubly annoying.

An Illinois woman writes: "My husband's health was poor, he had no appetite for anything I could get for him, it seemed. "He was hardly able to work, was taking medicine continually, and as soon as he would feel better would go to work again, only to give up in a few weeks. He suffered severely with stomach trouble.

"Tired of everything I had been able to get for him to eat, one day seeing an advertisement about Grape-Nuts, I got some and he tried it for breakfast the next morning.

"We all thought it was pretty good, although we had no idea of using it regularly. But when my husband came home at night he asked for Grape-Nuts.

"It was the same next day, and I had to get it right along, because when we would get to the table the question, 'Have you any Grape-Nuts?' was a regular thing. So I began to buy it by the dozen pkgs. "My husband's health began to improve right along. I sometimes felt offended when I'd make something I thought he would like for a change, and still hear the same old question, 'Have you any Grape-Nuts?' "He got so well that for the last two years he has hardly lost a day from his work, and we are still using Grape-Nuts." Read the book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Turtle Lived on Ducks.
"I can't think of anything more pleasant," said a clerk in one of Washington's big stores, "than a visit to the home of one's boyhood, such as I just returned from, after an absence of 15 years.

"I tell you, boys," he said to the friends he was telling of his visit, "it brought the tears to my eyes, when I sighted the old farm down in Virginia. Everything was the same as when I left there a mere boy. There was the old house without a bit of improvement, the garden full of all kinds of truck, the ice pond, and a loving welcome by all the people in the vicinity.

"I don't propose to be sentimental. Not a bit of it," he said, "but I thought it might entertain you to hear of a turtle hunt in which I took part while I was down at the old place. You heard me speak of the ice pond on the farm. It was a little lake in its dimensions, and I have skated on it many a time when I was a youngster.

"My uncle, who is running the estate, had a number of fine ducks, and these ducks had great times swimming on the pond, which they seemed to prefer to other waters in the vicinity. The little old lake seemed to have a peculiar fascination, not only for them, but for some of the neighbor's ducks who paid visits to them and joined them in their natural exploits.

"At last one day one of the hands on the place declared that he had seen a turtle grazing up out of the water. Then everyone was convinced that he was a marauder and had been living of duck meat for a long time.

"Right away a searching party was organized and two or three of us armed with guns patrolled the banks of the pond, but without any success. The old pirate was wise and kept under cover. Then the pond was drained and we went for him with spades, and at last dug him up out of the mud with duck bones all around him."—From the Washington Post.

Can Anybody Beat This?
Mr. W. B. Dowdy living at the edge of town on the northeast, has one-third of an acre of corn that beats anything we have ever seen. It is on top of a hill and such a deep green as to be almost black. This is the second crop on the land, he having raised and sold $52.50 worth of cabbage off the same land in the spring, and from this crop of corn he expects to get 50 bushels, and $15.00 worth of fodder, and pens growing in the rows, which will pay for the fertilizer and harvesting of the crop. If any body can beat that we would be glad to hear from them. So, 42-'09.

It was in this very cottage in Brookside, 15 miles from Birmingham, Ala., that three Italians nearly died of Fever. They had been sick 3 months. Johnson's Tonic cured them quickly—read letter below:

Brookside, Ala., May 4, 1908.
The two physicians here had a very obstinate case of continued Malarial Fever. All were Italians and lived on a creek 80 yards from my store. These cases were of very long duration. I recommended them to let me try Johnson's Tonic. I removed all the printed matter and let the medicine go out in a plain bottle as a regular prescription. The effect in all three cases was immediate and permanent. They recovered rapidly and there was no recurrence of the Fever. S. B. SHIPLEY.
