Taft and Diaz Meet on American and Mexican Soil,

BRILIANT BANQUET IN JUAREZ

An Elaborate State Banquet in the Town of Juarez, Over the Mexican Border, Closed a Memorable Day in History.

El Paso, Texas. - An elaborate State banquet at the little town of Juarez, across the Merican border, brought to a close a memorable day in the history of the United States and Mexico.

Porfirio Diaz, Mexico's venerable President, had crossed over to American soil and had been received with a warmth that told its own story of the good feeling between the nations. President Taft, in his turn, throwing custom to the winds, had turned his back on his own country to receive General Diaz's cordial greeting on the Mexican side.

All this had been marked by the booming of guns, the blare of trumpets, the tooting of bands, in short, all the noise and pomp that ordinarily invest a state occasion of importance. But the culmination of the day's in ternational program came when President Diaz first arose to speak. He assured President Taft of his warm personal regard and his high esteem for the man who accomplished so much in the Philippines, in Cuba and elsewhere, and who now had the honor to be the Chief Executive of so great a nation as the United States President Taft declared that he was glad to meet President Diaz. was glad to know the President of such a great nation, and especially glad to meet the man who had made that nation great. Both Presidents dwelt on the cordiality of the relations between the United States and Mexico. President Taft said that the meeting was not necessary to strengthen the bonds of friendship. It merely typifies the strength of the bonds already exist

Less than a score of persons were permitted to witness the meeting of the two Presidents. Even these were excluded later, when President Taft and President Diaz withdrew into an inner room of the Chamber of Commerce Building, where the historic meeting occurred, and were attended only by Governor Creel of the State of Chihuahua, formerly Ambassador to the United States, who acted as interpreter. An interesting incident of the day was the decisration of neutrality over El Chamizal territory, a part of the city of El Paso over which Mexico is contending for sovereignty. El Chamizal territory was formed when the Rio Grande River took one of its periodical spells of contrariness and changed its course a mil; or two to

The contention of the American authorities is that this change was gradual and was due to natural accretions from the American side. The Mexican authorities contend that the change was due to a sudden shift of course, and that the United States gained no additional territory by the shifting of the natural boundary line. The question is still in dispute, was agreed between the Governments of Mexico and the United States that this territory, which lies on this side of the international bridge, should be regarded as neutral, and that neither the American nor the Mexican flag should anywhere be displayed

As President Dias made his way through the Chamizal to visit President Taft the roadway was lined with American troops. As President Taft passed over the disputed ground to return the call the way was lined with Mexican soldiers.

The ceremonies began when President Diaz, in a State carriage with gold hubs, gold-mounted doors, black horses and gay cockades, crossed the international bridge with an escort of soldiers. The main body of Mexican troops was left behind at the entrance to the bridge, President Diaz's carriage was driven at a smart pace through the Chamizal territory, to be met at the boundary by the American troops and by Becretary Dickinson,

A salute of twenty-one guns was fired as President Diaz stepped from his own carriage into one provided by the American authorities. With an escort of two squadrons and three batteries of American field artillery, the visiting President was taken at double quick time through the streets of the city to the Chamber of Commerce Building, where

President Taft awaited him

President Diaz wore full dress uniform. Gold lace was at his throat and on his cuffs, and a broad gold sash was around his waist. On his left breast many decorations glit-tered. All along the line of march President Diaz was cheered by the crowds. With plumed chapeau in hand, he acknowledged the greeting with bows to left and right. Secre-tary Dickinson rode beside him and an aide occupied the forward seat in the carriage.

President Taft and President Diaz chatted with each other through an interpreter and appeared to find re-lief in the fact that over their meal at least they could exchange a few informal remarks, President Taft left El Paso for San Antonio and President Diaz pulled out of Juarez for the City of Mexico.

It was granted, but the question of admitting the banker to bail was left If the United States Supreme Court decides against Morse nothing can save him from doing time excent a pardon from the President of the United States.

Morse was asked if he had anything to say to the public about his ill-for-

"Naturally I am disappointed that the Circuit Court of Appeals did not reverse the judgment of the lower court," he replied "but I feel sure that the Suoreme Court will not unhold to-day's decision, and that I will get another trial. I am not cast down or discouraged. On the contrary. I expect to remain cheerful and confident, and, so far as I am allowed any liberty, I will continue to use all my efforts to repay those who are supposed to have suffered through me and my acts.'

Passing to the false entry ice stock counts, on all ten of which Morse was convicted, the Court said:

"We see no escape from the proposition that if the defendants were tained. Count No. 3B, for instance. charges that on December 8, 1905. the defendant, being vice-president of the National Bank of North America, unlawfully, knowingly and fraudulently did wilfully make in a book of the bank known as 'Call Loans,' on page No. 5188, a certain entry as follows: 'Davison-Brown, 114,712.85 6 Dec. 8. 1905, 4000 Am. Ice, Secy. Com.;' that this entry purported to show and did in substance indicate that a loan in the amount of $114. 712.85 had been made by the bank to Davison Brown, with 4000 shares of American Ice Company as security; that said entry was false, first, because no loan in that amount had been made to Davison Erown by the bank, and, second, that 4000 shares of Ice stock had not been placed as security for that loan, but were in fact the property of the bank. "That false entry was made by the defendant with intent to injure and defraud the bank and its shareholders and to deceive the other officers of the bank and any agent appointed by the Comptroller of the Currency to examine the affairs of the said bank. "The broad fundamental questions underlying several of these counts were: Who owned the Ice stock, the bank or Morse? 'If the bank owned it, was this fact concealed by false en ries in the books and reports made by the direction or procurement of the defendant?' These propositions were clearly and fairly stated by the Court, and the jury was repeatedly informed that the crucial question for it to determine was who owned the stock, and they were told again and again that if Morse was the real owner he must be acquitted. The owned the stock carried with it, almost as a matter of course, the other maintained that the entries were consistent with such ownership and the jury was justified in find not only that they were false, but were made with intent to conceal the true situation, so that the only question s whether there was any evidence to submit to the jury, or if there were whether it would have been error to have granted a motion for the direction of a verdict for the defendant." Regarding the counts charging false reports to the Comptroller of the Currency the opinion of the court says: The motives which actuate men can be ascertained only by a scrutiny of their acts. One who passes a counterfeit coin knowing it to be counterfeit, and receives value in return, is not permitted to say that he did the act with innocent intent, and the same rule applies to the crimes we are now considering. "A bank officer who wilfully mis-applies the funds of the bank or who makes or causes to be made a false entry in its books, knowing it to be he did the act innocently.

Little Daughter Stood Beside Him and His Sick Wife in Bed.

Beaufort, N. C., Special .- The grand jury Monday brought in a bill of murder against S. J Sanders .. tho had been arrested for the death of H. Z. Newberry of Newport, who was shot to death Saturday night at the door of his home there. Judge Guion ordered the sheriff to summon 200 talesmen in order to get a jury. The case is set for Friday at 10 a. m.

Sanders is locked in the Carteret county jail here, while his brother, B. F. Sanders, also is under arrest, held as an accessory. The prisoners were brought here Sunday night by Sheriff Hancock, after a coroner's jury at Newport had returned a verdict that Mayor Newberry's death resulted from gunshot wounds inflicted by S. J. Sanders and that his brother also was implicated in the shooting.

The assassination of Mayor New-Lerry was the direct outcome, it is said, of the prosecution of "blind tiger" cases. The mayor recently had several persons arrested for illegally selling whiskey, and four of the men, including the two Sanders brothers, were bound over for court at Beaufort next Monday. It is alleged threats have been made against. the mayor's life and after his assassination Saturday night, suspicion was directed to the Sanders brothers. Great excitement prevailed in Newport after the tragedy occurred Saturday night. The dead man's wife was ill in bed at the time of the murder, and his little daughter stood by his side when he was shot. Word of the shooting was sent to Beaufort and Sunday afternoon County Schicitor Abernethy, accompanied by Sheriff Hancock and a coroner's jury, went to Newport on a special train. Upon arrival of the train at Newport the Sanders brothers were arrested and later the coroner's jury ordered the hearing.
