The incubating season is practically over with poultry, so far as profit to the owner is concerned, and the Minnegota experiment station advises that all old nesting material be taken out and burned, and that all nestingboxes be disinfected and given a coat of liquid lice-killer; after which fresh straw may be placed in them for late layers. The creosote preparations sold at lumber yards for wood preserving have been used with good etfect as lice killers.

The movement of so many thousands of young people from the farm to the city is largely caused by bad roads which isolate their homes and render the world about them inaccessible. The addition to the urban population lessens the producing force of the farm and at the same time creates a greater demand for farm prod ucts. This means a higher cost of living and an undestrable situation re

Social Conditions in Large Cities By REV. GEORGE W. McDANIEL, D. D. Pester of First Saptist Church Richmond, Va.

Text: Lovers of pleasure more I wish there were no occasion for this sermon. There are many sensi tive souls whom its plain language may offend. They do not believe that such subjects belong properly to pul pit treatment. However, I speak because my conscience bids me. This service is the discharge of a painful duty. "Do I seek to please men? If I yet please men, I should not be the servant of Christ. The church mombers of our city in their attitude to ward moral conditions may be grouped in four classes. First, those who do not know. They are good people, who attend church. They know nothing of the sin and shame of the city streets

e mined to take the shot. vith this in view I, accompanied y an officer in citizen's clothes, took wo walks down Broad street and saw sights which I blush to mention. The first was " Thursday night, the first clear night after about ten days of rain. They had come out like the insects from under bark and sod, with the first return of the spring sun. They swarmed the streets until it was difficult and, in some respects, dangerous to walk. Girls resorted to the pack parlors of Italian confectionaries, where they sat in suggestive positions to welcome and tempt whoever might enter therein. An older girl, on evil bent, led her little sister on her perilous mission. Others whose lives disgraced the name of woman stood on corners or marched brazenly down the street. Boys in knee trousers and girls in short dresses were out in the darkness of the night, when they should have been at home. Mashers followed girls from block to block and around corner after corner, and led them down dark alleys. All of this and more I saw. 'Twas enough to make the head heavy and the heart sick. On the second night we visited the moving pictures. I saw nothing obfectionable per se in the pictures. A minister was present, and they would be guilty of no impropriety. All classes and conditions were in attendance. A dude, dressed in Prince Albert, a bloated faced sport and a weasley halffed man were there, who bought tickets in rotation and entered one after with hent backed up on the side street waiting but many of the church members love the places of pleasure more than the house of God. They are too tired to attend the church on Sunday evening. but can parade the streets and stand for a long time and spend hours see ing moving pictures and vaudeville after a hard day's work. Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel!

Passing from the places of pleasure we saw young girls, whose mothers thought they were in no harm, enter ing automobiles and going on joy rides with young men who meant no good. One of the most demoralizing agencies in Richmond is the automo bile of the son of the rich. If you want to ruin your son, get him an automobile. Not more than one out of ten can own a machine without neglecting his business or injuring his morals. If the numbers of the machines that ride slowly along Broad street to entice young girls coming from the plays, or stand on Mayo and East Franklin streets after the midnight hours, were published in the daily papers, they would strike many hearts with consternation, and arouse the rich to the danger of their sons. If our papers want something sensational call their attention to this field of investigation.

It is not pleasant for one to speak so plainly about the deplorable conditions in the city that we love, but to keep silent is a sin. To submit with out a protest is to stifle conscience and betray a trust. We boast of our city as a churchgoing, well governed town. The conditions which I saw convince me that Richmond is an apple orchard without but rotting at the core. The social impurity and moral degradation are indescribable and unspeakable. As the city grows in size, it grows in wickedness. Can we check this evil? If not, we are to go the way of other cities.

On the Ball Ground There is no reason why the boy and young man on the baseball ground cannot be a Christian and lead an ex emplary life. The church, shop, bank and office should stand for one and the same thing.—Bishop J. H. Vincent, Methodist, Indianapolis.

Incident of Hannibal's Career That Writers Appear to Have Overlooked.

Hannibal and his staff were pacing merrily over the Alps on their faithful war elephants. Suddenly a man with a tin badge and chin whiskers rushed into the roadway and held up his hand. "You stop right where you be!" he cried. "Why should I stop?" thusdered the great Carthaginian as his mahout hooked the elephant's ear. You're exceedin' the speed limit," replied the man with the star. "An' I'm a duly appointed constable, by heck. Hannibal was so overcome by this amusing holdup that he tossed a bag of gazoolians to the officer and laugh ing hysterically rode away. Later on, however, his indigeation uppercut his sense of humor, and he proceeded to slam the life out of the Roman consuls and their picked veterans, forcing the fighting to the very gate of shuddering Rome.—Boston Traveler.

Weeding out the poorest cows is the best way to improve the record of any dairy in the amount of milk and butter produced, in proportion to the number of cows kept. This process of weeding out will also aid materially to increase the profits.

Large bands of sheep do not thrive to well under farming conditions as smaller ones, and are moreover especially apt to injure the land, for they not only crop the growing plants too closely, but by bunching, tend to puddle the ground.

While bran can be used with a decided advantage in making up the rations of the dairy cows it should be used to excess as it will make cream hard to churn while the butter will be pale rather than a golden yellow.

When the time for culling the young stock comes, the experienced breeder has a decided advantage over the beginner. The former can tell at a much earlier date those birds that it will be profitable to keep.

The time to place on surplus boxes is when the hive or lower story is full abundant room in the brood chamber to work they will not go into any surthis boxes.

If there were fewer dogs there would be more sheep; and as soon as farmers make up their minds to have more sheep and fewer dogs, they will bring that healthy condition to pass.
