Col. L. C. Hough.

Another one of that immortal band that followed Lee and Jackson has "crossed over the river to rest under the shade." Col. Labon C. Hough died at his home at Kershaw last Monday morning at 5 o'clock after suffering about two or three weeks with a carbuncle.

Col. Hough was 65 years old. When a mere boy he entered the Confederate army. He was a member of Co. F. 7th S. C. Battalion under command of Captain Dove Seegars. During the entire war he rendered valiant service. He was noted for his gallantry and was universally loved by his command. He was badly wounded in the battle of the Weldon R. R., on the 21st of August, 1864, from which wound he lost the sight of one of his eyes. This was the famous charge of Hagood's brigade when Gen. Hagood was forced to shoot the Union officer Capt. Dayley, to recover the colors of his regiment.

In life he possessed one of the most rare and noble virtues known to man in his intercourse with his fellowman—he was a true friend. If Col. Hough was your friend, in your absence and in his presence no one could traduce your good name without it being resented to the utmost. Were you hungry, if he had a crust it was yours; were you in need, if he had a cent it was yours.

He was a son of the late Ben Hough. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Son Kirkland of Kershaw county, and his second, Mrs. Cook, widow of W. B. Cook, who survives him with the following children of the first marriage: Daniel Hough of Kershaw, Clarence Hough of Flat Rock, Joseph Hough of Bethune, Mrs. Kirby Estridge of Bethune, Mrs. Bateman of Charleston, Misses Gusie, Lois and Eva Hough of Kershaw. He also leaves one brother, Amos Hough, and one or more sisters.

The funeral took place at 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon from the Presbyterian Church of which he was a leading member and elder. The services were conducted by his pastor, assisted by Rev. Jabez Ferris of the Baptist Church. The burial was in the Kershaw cemetery with Masonic honors. Through respect to him the stores in Kershaw were closed and all business was suspended for the funeral which was one of the most largely attended ever seen in Kershaw. Col. Hough was a member of the Masonic lodge of Camden and a delegation from this lodge attended the funeral.

In the death of Col. Hough Kershaw county loses one of her very best citizens. Peace to his ashes!
