FORTUNES UNDREAMED OF.

Billions to Be Added to the Value of Southern Farm Lands.

It is possible that within the next ten years the average value of farm lands of the south, in addition to the annual profit to be made by the cultivation of these lands, will make $5,000,000,000 by the increase in their value, bringing the value up to nearly $11,000,000,000.

These stupendous figures illustrate the possibilities that may come to the owners of Southern farm lands. Not every land owner will share equally. Some will make more, and some will make less, but it is fair to say that ten years hence the agricultural lands of the South will have increased on the whole to such an extent that they will be worth from $5,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000 more than they are worth today. This unearned increment, as it may be called, will add enormously to the wealth of the South.

Between 1900 and 1910 the average value per acre of the agricultural lands of the United States increased from $15.64 to $32.48.

During the same period the average acreage value of the South's agricultural lands increased from $6.88 to $15.84, making the average acre value of the agricultural lands of the South something more than the acre value of the lands of the United States ten years ago. It is safe to estimate that within the next ten years southern lands will advance to at least the average acre value of the agricultural lands of the United States at present, bringing the acre value to $32.48, as compared with $15.84 the average last year.

The South has at present about 210,000,000 acres of land. This, at the present average value of $32.48 per acre, brings the aggregate up to the present average value of the United States, would make a total of $6,821,000,000 as the value for ten years.

When once wealth begins to accumulate in a community rich in natural resources, the momentum imparts an increasing power to the increasing wealth of the south, now proceeding at a rate that will make the momentum of the next ten years carry its growth far beyond anything that this section has ever had. PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gordon have returned from their summer vacation.

Miss E. A. and E. O. Thompson and their wives were in Camden yesterday afternoon. They came down from DeKalb with Capt. L. L. and Mr. L. C. Clyburn in their automobiles.

J. Frank Skinner, the tallest Elk in the world, died at his home in Augusta last Thursday, after an illness of several months. He was 7 feet and four inches high. He was at one time with a circus and traveled all over Europe as the "tall man." His grand father was the best man Georgia ever produced, being nearly eight feet tall.

Legal Problem.

From Onslow county, N. C., has come a legal problem for the U. S. supreme court to pass upon when it convenes in October that may affect bankrupts in all parts of the country. The question is "When is a thing concealed?" John E. James was a storekeeper in Onslow county, previous to Feb. 28, 1908, when a petition of involuntary bankruptcy was filed against him. Nothing developed until James asked for his discharge from bankruptcy. Four months and three days before the bankruptcy petition was filed against him, he had been charged with hiding in a swamp in Onslow county five caddles of tobacco, one case of gunshells, two trunks of shoes and some dry goods, with intent to defraud his creditors. The law would not grant his discharge if a "concealment" had taken place on the first day of the four months immediately preceding the filing of the petition, he had "concealed" any of his property with fraudulent intent toward his creditors. The circuit court of appeals for the fourth circuit decided that although the goods were placed in the swamp three days more than four months before the prescribed time, there was "continuous concealment," because without further action by James, the offense repeated itself every day until he disclosed the hiding place, which was alleged to have been January 5, 1908. It is said the supreme court never has passed on the question of whether there is such an offense within the meaning of the bankruptcy laws as a "continuous concealment."—Yorkville Enquirer.
